

THE GLORIOUS NINETY THREE.

IN good Queen Bess's golden days her nobles one and all, fir,
 Wore shaggy locks and whiskers, like the giants in Guildhall, fir.
 While a pair of yellow worsted hose adorn'd a courtier's pins, fir,
 And a plaited band, like buckram stiff, they tuck'd beneath their chins, fir;
 But Queen Bess's boasted days unpriuzed must be,
 Contrast'd with the golden days of glorious ninety three.
 Now, our beaus can never cut a dash unless their locks they lop, fir,
 Like a dangling string of rat's tails, and so become a crop, fir,
 While, like horses in the glanders, when bandag'd, after roweling,
 They wind about their craggy necks a dozen yards of toweling.
 Such are the golden days we now all see,
 So merry be the memory of glorious ninety three.
 Then such language to adopt as would poze a classic noddle, fir,
 Length of fork is all the tippy, length of waist is all the twaddle, fir,
 For with breeches to their armpits, so queer and so quoddy, fir,
 They're all legs, and thighs, and hips, and heads, without a body, fir,
 Such are the golden days we now all see,
 So merry be the memory of glorious ninety three.
 But as liberty depends on the freedom of the press, fir,
 Why who shall dare dispute our right of liberty in dress, fir,
 As de leetel pert French miliner assures you "dat's de plan, fir,"
 And smirking Snip, the taylor, tells you that's the rights of man, fir.
 Such are the golden days we now all see,
 So merry be the memory of glorious ninety three.
 Yet as no fashions here prevail, our freedom to retrench, fir,
 May Englishmen disdain to borrow fashions from the French, fir.
 But may we, when our foes deserve a dressing and a trimming too,
 From civil discord still preserve the rights of men and women too,
 Britons then such golden days with joy shall see,
 As to bless the memory of glorious ninety three.
 For reason still forbids the foot, ordain'd the dust to tread, fir,
 Or the hand that's form'd for labour to conspire against the head, fir,
 But while headed by a glorious king, whose heart is ours alone, fir,
 May our heads, hands and hearts be the pillars of his throne, fir,
 Britons then such golden days with joy shall see,
 As to bless the memory of glorious ninety three.
 And as in lusty youth we prize our days, as days of gold, fir,
 May we value them, while young, to enjoy them when we're old, fir,
 And tho' we all must fill the gap, prepar'd by good-man Delver,
 May all our days be day of gold, when all our hairs are silver,
 And that we such golden days with joy may see,
 May we revive the golden age at the age of ninety three.

GIVEN under my Hand, at Philadelphia, the day and year above mentioned,
OLIVER WOLCOTT,
 Secretary of the Treasury.

March 10. N. B.—Since the foregoing notice was prepared and printed, a bill has passed the House of Representatives, by which the stamped duty on debentures is proposed to be abolished.

Messrs. Hodge & Boylan
ARE requested to inform the public, that some time in August 1796, I sent forward to Geo. Ogg, Esquire, of Fayetteville, five Land Warrants in the name of Robert Cochran, numbered and located as follows, (viz.) Robert Cochran, 640 acres, No. 1195, joining Isaac Jones' land on Woodward's lake, including part of said lake, 13th April, 1795; No. 1196, joining his former entry or the next vacant land; No. 1501, joining his former entry; and No. 1502, joining his former entry, &c. and No. 1503, joining his former entry, and which said warrants are certified—no land to be found—the above-mentioned warrants have been lost or mislaid so as not to get to Mr. Ogg, and I hold myself accountable for the same—The secretary is therefore directed, not to issue grants for any lands whatever on said warrants, should they be brought forward for that purpose without legal authority; also the treasurer is directed not to receive said warrants in lieu of the purchase money, should they be presented for that purpose without legal authority—Should said warrants come to the knowledge of either department, I shall esteem it a particular favour to be informed of it by the first opportunity.
