BUY A HOME.

Young men, don't spend your money foolishly with no thought for the future. Go to the constry and save your money for home of your own. Parchase piece of land and own it Buy it with the determination to keep it as long as you live and leave it to your heirs, If you have no money except that you care yourself, scrupuously save and ay aside a part of your income until you have onough to pay for a piece of land. To be the owner of a homestead will have a beneficial effect upon your character. It will increase your self-respect, your confidence in your-self. You will feel that you have a substantial position and something at stake in community. The habit of saving which you will have formed in saying money to purchase a piece of land is to make you self-reliant, more for Mr Seudder. ambitious, more industrious, more careful, and a better citizen. The ownership of a home will add greatly to your happiness. The feel ing which it enganders is a source of constant satisfaction. There is one spot of earth which you amprove and beautify. With that spot your thought and affections become identified You learn to love it. It is like an unchanging friend. It becomes an unfailing source of enjoyment,

Many of our most interesting youths waste a great portion of their time in fruitless endeavors at nothing. They have no trade, no profession, no object before them, nothing to do, and yet have a great desire to do something worthy of themselves. They try this, that and the other; offer themselves to do any thing and every thing, and yet know how to do nothing. Educase themselves they can not, for they know not what they should do it for. They waste their time, energies and little earnings in endless changes and wanderings. They have not the stimulus of a fixed object to fasten their attention and awaken their energies; not a known prize to win. They wish for good things, but have no way to attain them; desire to be useful, but have little means for being so. They lay plans, invent schemes, form theories, build castles, but never stop to execute and realize them, Poor creatures? All that ai's them is the want of an object single objec!
