TWOSISTERLY BY HALF.

In a certain part of our country, says the Falmouth (Ky.) Independent, there lives a family in which there are two brothers just entering on the prime of youthful manhood. A short distance from them—in fact, in the same neighborhood—there lives another family in which there are two sisters also in the prime of maiden-hood, beautiful, fascinating, and attractive. These young people being near neighbors and coming in contact with each other often, almost naturally, it would seem, fell in love with each other—the eldest brother with one of the sisters and the younger with the other. All went smoothly for a time, and these young people enjoyed themselves and dreamed bright dreams of the future, and, no doubt, in imagination constructed fairy palaces of love, and gardens that, paradise, should be only filled with the beautiful flowers and fruits of happiness and unalloyed enjoyment. Then, as a matter of course, the question of marrying arose, which must be referred to the parents of the young ladies for approval. The oldest brother had no difficulty in obtaining their consent to his marrying the young lady, and the wedding day was fixed upon. Then the younger brother went to the parents, and made known his attachment for the other sister, and their mutual desire to "aplice and travel the road of life together." But the old folks were decidedly opposed to having more than one of their girls marry into "that family," and plainly informed him that if he wanted a wife he must go elsewhere to get her, intimating that he should desist from paying further attention to the young lady in question. But the young man was resolved that if his brother married one of the girls he would marry the other. So he went to the young "lady of his love" and told her the circumstances of the situation, and desired her, if she loved him, to prove it by running off with him. To this she agreed, and the night was fixed upon when they should carry out this mutual agreement. But now comes the strangest part of our story. The two young ladies resembled each other very much in looks, voice, &c., and by some strange freak, when the night of elopement came and the young man went to the appointed place of meeting, he found a woman there whom he thought was the right one, but she was not Unconscious of this, however, he took her to the place where the marriage ceremony was to be performed before he found out that he was with the wrong girl. Most wonderful to relate, he thought that after he had gone to all this trouble he would get married anyway, so he asked her if she would have him, and she, in order to carry out the joke, said she would, and they were married then and there. It appears that she had overheard him making arrangements to elope with her sister, and, knowing the place of meeting, determined to go there ahead of her, and thus fool the young man for whom she entertained a secret liking, although she was engaged to be married to his brother. Our informant also states that after they had lived together for some little time the elder brother, determined to make the most of the situation, took unto himself the other sister.

Mr. Frank Greene requested us to advertise four weeks, his desire to rent his valuable farm. On the second appearance of his advertisement he had an applicant, and rented. This is but one of the many evidences to show that advertising in a widely circulated paper like the Gazette, does pay. Our paper is read weekly by ten thousand people. In order to convince ourselves of the importance of advertising generally, and whether or not it paid to advertise in our paper, we have been particular to ask many of our most intelligent readers whether or not they read the advertisements, and their reply, with one exception, was "yes," and we find that we get better bargains from those who advertise with you than other merchants; and besides after seeing an advertisement in your paper, we know exactly where to go to get what we want, and are saved the inconvenience and annoyance of going all around town to look for it."—Warrenton Gazette.

A HOME IN NORTH CAROLINA.

We were talking with an intelligent gentleman not long ago, when he said that he had lived in another State once, and had travelled through many States, but had yet to find the State that offered so desirable a home as North Carolina all things considered. We had had a similar experience and had arrived at the same conclusion. Of course North Carolina presents considerable variety of climate and great diversity of soil: nor is every portion equally well favored. But take it all in all from seaboard to mountains, and we know no better home. For ourself, we would rather live in the Northern section of our State than in any portion of the world. When the writer was a resident of Memphis, he was one day in the law-office of Heath & Lewis, both North Carolinians, the latter now a resident of Raleigh, Maj. A. M. Lewis' for like ourself it was impossible for him to stay away from the "Old North State." Well, one day we were conversing with the lamented Judge Heath, and our eyes turned towards our old homes, when the Judge said very tenderly: "I would rather live in the Albemarle region than any where else under the heavens." North Carolinians of the right stamp never forget their natal State—whose merits have never been appreciated by reason of her modesty.

We are pleased to see from time to time, that many persons who get tired of their old homes and wander away, are constrained at last to come back to the place of their birth, for "At each remove they drag a lengthening chain."

WHAT CAUSES HARD TIMES.—Too many spend money, and too few earn it. Too much money is spent wastefully and needlessly, and too little saved and made productive and accumulative.

We are too speculative, unscrupulous and actually dishonest in our efforts to make money. Too many of us prefer idleness to industry and too few of us know how to work and derive pleasure and profit from our labor.

We talk and read too much, and act too little. We roll about too much like stones that gather no moss, enriching corporations and speculating capitalists, and defrauding ourselves of the profits of our own industry.

In short, we are too much what we ought not, and not enough what we ought to be.

THE MAN WITHOUT AN ENEMY.—We believe in the man or woman who "has enemies." This does not sound, but it is sound.—Your milk and water people, who content themselves with simply doing no harm, at the same time never do any good. They are mere negatives. Your man of force, who does not wait for a stone to get out of his heaven-appointed way, but manfully rolls it over, many unintentionally hurt somebody's toes in the act; but thousands who will have to travel that way will thank him for clearing it. The man or woman who has no enemies is generally a sleek, creeping, cowardly creature, caring for no one but himself—smirking and creeping in exchange way to the obscurity he merits. He adds nothing to the common stock—does no good in the world, and is lowered into his six feet of earth without sincere regret from any one. He has had no enemies; but had he a friend? A place is vacant, but not in any warm, grateful heart.—A fig for such people.

LOOKING UP.

In spite of the financial panic which still rages among the bankrupt merchants and manufacturers of Northern Ohio, and of the pecuniary pressure which is felt here in North Carolina, we are happy in being able to point to more than one indication of a brighter future; not to say present improvements. Chief among these is the coming in of immigrants from abroad to buy land and settle among us. Last week six Englishmen bought land in the county, about five miles north of Ridgeway; and we learn that others will probably complete the purchase of the same estate; making eight settlers, most of them with families, on tracts of about fifty acres each. These worthy strangers were deluded into coming to North Carolina by the fair but false promises of the English purchaser of the Ridgeway company's property. But being disappointed in the expectation of finding 40 acre farms with good eight room houses on them, they began to look around, and we are happy to say that they are now perfectly satisfied that their first disappointment was a blessing in disguise. They have made better purchases, at cheaper rates, and are more than content with the result. They are more than ever believers in the maxim, "All's well that ends well." A week or two ago, the Canadian gentlemen who in August purchased the splendid Elgin Estate of 10,000 acres, came and took possession; and only the past week, the Canadian purchasers of Mr. Sledge's two places between the town and the Depot, moved in. In addition to these are a number of English, Canadian, Northern and French settlers, and the cry is, still they come. We hear of many others that are to come during the Autumn and winter.

And no wonder. For North Carolina, especially this middle and the upper region, is the land which is never visited by Cholera & Yellow Fever, rarely by small Pox; and where financial panics, are only trifling and transient annoyances. —Warrenton Gazette.

THE HONEYMOON.—A visionary newspaper is now trying to persuade young married people that it is better for them to stay quietly at home and not go wandering off on exhibition. As if any bride would forego the blessed privilege of leading her prize around with a blue ribbon tied to his neck in a hotel or other public places where brides most do congregate. But there is a legend, unauthorized, told some-where of a young bride who brazenly tried to pretend she had been married years and thought to deceive people by saying aloud and snappily to her husband of half a day, "I wish you would not always be walking on my dress." But some indiscretion betrayed them. Most likely he changed places with her, so that she would not sit in the draught.

A lady having said that she would make but a poor sailor, a nautical bystander replied, "You would make an excellent mate, though."

A widow said to her daughter: When you are at my age it will be time enough to dream of a husband. Yes, mamma, replied the thoughtless girl, of a second one. The mother fainted.
