There are thousands of acres of good wheat land in south Caldwell selling at $1.00 to $2.00 per acre. That is not so kigh that hundreds of our people could not rent or buy. Try 50 acres, 'Procon;' you can soon pay for it in corn, even at 50 cents per bushel.— With land at that price it is strange that any man should look forward to the employment of "day labor" for himself and his children for all time to come; that he should deliberately and contentedly take his stand there, never expecting to own a nice little farm on which to live and die. The highest clerical salary bad roads and distant markets, could higher and more thoughtful s and point than would be proper in a school history. This demand we are happy to say is satisfactorily met in "The Centennial History of the United States," a work which is evidently destined to take rank as the Stand ard History of our country. The author, James D. McCabe, is an able and well known historical writer.

We most heartily commond this book to our readers. It is no dry mass of details, no bombastic effort to influee the national pride, but is a clear, vivid, and brillrant narrat ve of the events of our history from the discovery of the American Continent to the present day. It gives a must interesting account of the Indians of North Ameria, from the time of the coming of the whit men, The voyages of Columbus, the explorations of the different nations, of Euope, and the wanderings of the Spandiards In search of gold and immortal youth, are told with graphic power.
