ANOTHER GUN FROM THE WEST

The Republicans of Illinois have held their state convention at Spring-Michigan and Iowa. They declare for the old Republican doctrines, and give another cheering word to the Robubliannounce that the southern Republicans must be protected in the right to vote, and in all rights. They scout and scoff at the miserable twaddle about the "bloody shirt," with which every southern Bourbon uses to fool northern dough faces and flunkies.

Washingron, D. C., June 27, '78, A few words about the earlier history of Louisiana Anderson in Washington will be of interest. He came to Washington with the present administration. His record was to the effect that he had done the Republican cause great service and was in danger of losing his life .-But his manners were so offensive that he rapidly lost friends. He said he was poor and accordingly he was given temporary work in the Government Printing office. Here his natural instincts size and vividness of his imagnation. a question whether the huge proportions and utter uselessness of his lies were excelled by their number, or not. When he was notified that he had been appointed Consul to Funchal he came into the proof room and commenced swinging his jaw in his most offensive manner. He had the administration on the hip, by ---. He was just going in "on the make." Others had become rich and he was now going in for his pile; and so on. His sentences were blistered with oaths. All in the room knew him, and all took a part in the general chaffing that assailed him from all sides. Speaking of his consulship, he said he was going to make $10,000 by -, if he had to steal it. Whereup- showing to its satisfaction that the bur- electing Hon. Jay Heaton Chairman remarks seemed to be taken as compli- this parting shot : ments by Anderson.

That day he went on a big spree. He said he bailed from Ohio, and hinted that he must not be known as coming from Louisiana. He was asked what title he had to be credited to that state. His reply was that he had passed through the state-two or three times by rail, and he added, 'by God, I once jumped a bounty from Cincinnati." One of the proof readers, who was personally acquainted with the President. at once sent a note to President Hayes, telling him of Anderson's conduct and his general reputation in the Government Printing office. He was asked to call on the President. During the interview the note was written by this gentleman, Col. A. J. Straight, which was sent to Mr. Seward, and has since been printed in the evidence. It was found that Anderson's comm'ssion had been made out and sent to him that evening. A messenger was sent to find ecalled. Anderson, who was floating spotl ss, it replies: around the city, "getting on a big drunk," was not found until early the next morning, at which time he was still drunk. When the messenger asked him for his commissione, he at once gave it to him. Mr. Seward then revoked it. The story that he refused it is one of his characteristic lies. Col. Straight, at the request of the President, then saw Stanley Matthews, and gave him Anderson's real history. From that time dates the efforts of Mr. from Anderson. It has since transpired ed. that at the time he was appointed to Funchal he was intriguing with the to sell his story to the New York Sun

Mitthews, from the Republican party; the members of the bar in his district, field, and have followed in the wake of but he "scooped in" the whole Democratic party. The Potter investigation committee is already sick of the whole business. Their labors no longer attract any serious attention.

> Isaac Cohen and his next friend, Dr. Lawrence, talk of a coming monster gathering of 100,000 working men in this city. I have known Dr. Lawrence by sight and by reputation for years. All accounts agree that Cohen is another of the same stripe, namely, an unmitigated blatherskite who makes a precarious living off any reform that may temporarily come uppermost. How the laboring men of this District could be so imposed upon as they have been by these men, is a mystery.

Why Representative Brogden, who managed to majutain a masterly inactivity during the whole session of Congress should have waked up long enough to vote against the army bill is a mystery to Republicans here. May be he has some reasons to give to the Republicans of North Carolina that will be interesting reading here. The columns of the Post would be a good medium for what now seems a needful explanation.

The Republican of this city charged the Hon. J. M. Leach with being a demagogue. He called upon the editor of that paper and himself wro'e out what he thought to be a candid retraction of the charge. It was printed in full just as he left it. Here it is :

HON, J. M. LEACH.

We take pleasure in correcting a mis statement in our issue of the 20th. in regard to this gentleman. Seeing rapidly developed. He seemed filled the article, and being in the city he only with whiskey and wind. His ten- called, and stated, that there is not a dency to brag was only equalted by the word of truth in the article alluding to himself and challenges the proof that he ever gave an illiberal vote while in Among the employes of the office it was | the Legislature of his state for 14 years; or while a member of Congress, before and since the war; or a vote that smacked, the slightest, of demagoguism; and declares that the public Journals of his State, the Records of Congress will prove the contrary. He does, claim to have had the taxes on tobacco reduced while tu Congress, as the Record shows,

It is quite apparent, even if the Hon. John is the "boss" statesman of North Carolina that he had better employ the printer's devil of the next printing office he favors with his puffs for himself to revise them and make them plain to common people.

Thus has another great Democratic apostle gone to glory. The same gentle Democratic demolisher of reputations is now whetting his knife to raise the political hair of the young and athletic Alexander H. Stephens, because he opposed the folly of the Potter investigation and has the pluck to go home and stick t) his opinions giving ample reasons for the faith that is in him. Turning its attention to another famous Democrat, the same paper gently says:

"So far as Glover is concerned, outside of his vote he hasn't as much inflence in Congress as one of the tow headed pages who run at his bidding."
