DEMOCRATIC ROUTE AGENTS.

It seems as if the Postoffice Department has fully determined to place the mail carrying business in the south entirely in the hands of the Democratic party. We are reliably informed that out of twelve appointments made recently in the vicinity of Atlanta, Ga., nine of them were appointed for Gen. Gordon and the Georgia Democratic delegation in Congress. We suppose the Republican party will have to submit to the outrage, but we can tell Mr. Thompson or whoever is responsible for this outrageous conduct that there will be a time when the wrath of a just people will reach him. In the meantime we advise Republicans (unless there is a change in the action of the Postoffice appointments,) to hold meetings and pass resolutions denouncing it, and send them to the President of the United States and see if the slights and treatment that the Republicans have received cannot be remedied. We believe the Postmaster General will take hold of the matter and see that the Republicans have their just dues when his attention is called to it, but if he will not then the President should be appealed to direct.

CAPT. THOMPSON - SUPERINTENDENT RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE.—It is said the gentleman whose name heads this article is a Republican, but we cannot believe it, but if he is he should at once resign and allow some fire eating Democrat to take his place, from the fact he is turning out Republicans in the south and appointing Democrats in their places, therefore to act consistently in the matter he ought to vacate for a Democrat also. If he don't we shall consider that he is a dishonest man or has been badly misled. If the Post Office Department is to be Democratic it should be so from the Chief down.

We understand that the new Postal Cars are to be turned over to good reliable Democrats. Young Taylor and Thompson who are good Republicans and are two of the best Route Agents between here and Columbia and to be put on the freight train between Florence and Columbia, and the Postal Cars between Wilmington and Charleston are to be filled by Route Agents who are good Democrats. And yet, the Department which has control of the matter claims to be Republican.

A few more good, reliable Democrats can get office by applying early at the Postoffice Department, as a few of the Route Agents left are Republicans, we suppose they will be soon decapitated for Democrats.

GEN. HAWLEY'S ADDRESS.

We publish below the most significant portions of the address of Gen. Joseph R. Hawley of Connecticut, at the reunion of the Society of the Army of the Potomac at the late meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic. We agree entirely with the sentiments of the whole speech, and hope soon to see the time when our Army and Navy shall receive better treatment from Congress:

Within 15 years after the close of the tremendous war, it may appear superfluous to insist upon the great duty of maintaining a thoroughly educated, disciplined, trained, effective National Army. The reduction of our Army from a million or more men in arms to 50,000, 40,000, 30,000, and 25,000 is one of the marvels of modern history. It is no less strange to find in the public prints and in the halls of legislation, sometimes among thoughtful, well-read men, the suggestion, if not the belief, that still further reductions might, and if they might, that they ought to be made. Those who recklessly declare that we have no need whatever of any Army are not worth regarding as an element in the discussion. It is altogether childish to prophesy that we are never to have war with any foreign power. It is almost equally foolish to say that we need not continue any precautions against civil war. It is good to believe that the world has made some progress toward peace, but the spirit of injustice has not altogether departed from nations, nor has arbitration become an accepted remedy for international controversies. Our situation reduces largely the probability of war with the greater powers of the earth, but does not destroy the possibility. To reduce or disband our armies, to dismiss West Point and Annapolis Academies and incessantly carping at the Army. Better teach the young men who are called to the study of arms, that they are the selected champions and vindicators of the nation, and let them be assured of a thoughtful consideration of rank and advancement—a grateful, cordial acknowledgment of services in war, and in old age an honorable retirement without petty grumbling over declining usefulness. Let us have an Army worthy of honor, or none at all, and if worthy of honor, let it have honor. A regular Army in a Republic like ours can be but the nucleus of a very much greater possible force. The states are wisely forbidden by the Constitution to maintain standing armies, but it is right, for many reasons, that they should make it their constant policy to maintain a well-organized and effective Militia.

What I have said of the necessity of a constant state of preparation applies with even greater force to the Navy than to the Army. The fighting ships of modern times cannot be extemporized from the mercantile marine. We must maintain a Navy, and yet the best we can do becomes antiquated year by year. Nothing remains then but a close calculation of what absolutely must be ready in case of instant conflict. An always ready judgment, modified from month to month as science develops the art of naval warfare, so that the best known vessels and ordnance in the world could be summoned to service with the day and night energy of our large manufacturers, must be, to a large extent, our substitute for a full Navy.

The armed forces of the country, the Regular Army and the trained Militia, may be, and sometimes are, called to duties far more disagreeable, yet equally essential to the maintenance of law and order and liberty. Every stable and wise government has in view always the possibility of a resort to armed force against its own citizens. Besides those disturbances which rise to the dignity of insurrection or civil war, I refer to the lesser evils of domestic violence, coming down to the riot, great and small, and all such infractions of law as to break the public peace and surpass the power of the civil authority to suppress. Law and public sentiment ought to sedulously guard against a too prompt resort to the soldier, but it is equally an offense against sound practice to omit providing the ready means of vindicating law in the last emergency. I follow in the footsteps of many illustrious predecessors in engaging the duty of a well-organized Militia, I do so because it would furnish the Executives of the several states the means of enforcing law in nineteen cases out of twenty without any resort to Federal power, and thereby escaping many controversies and heartburnings.

I do it because it is the duty of each state to maintain order within its own limits, and command respect for its own laws. I do it because it would excuse the National Government from the maintenance of a large standing army, and would afford the most economical and satisfactory preparation for a foreign war. I protest, as unjust to the army and dangerous to the government, against a false economy, and an unreasonable jealousy of the soldier and the profession of arms. I do not assume to fix the numbers of the national army, or the numbers of trained militia. Possibly, of the former, 25,000 or 50,000 may be sufficient. I trust it is in all matters concerning the protection of the public property and the maintenance of our fortifications, and the keeping of the public peace. I have had serious doubts when I perceived the very great labors and sufferings of our soldiers in repeated instances in those unhappy wars which it seems our fate to wage constantly with the Indians. To discourse upon the dangers to liberty of any such regular army as we have ever maintained or are likely to maintain in time of peace is an injustice to American soldiers and a lamentable misjudgment of the American citizen. That 25,000 or 50,000 or 100,000 regular troops, under the lead of an ambitious General, could overthrow the American government is not within the limits of possibility, and if we may judge of the future by the past, there is even less likelihood that any great American soldier will ever undertake it. No, we need fear no attack upon our liberties from any army that America will ever organize. The high aim of the soldier is subordinate to the aim of the citizen, and if he indulges in ambition outside of his profession, it is stimulated by the example of the generous confidence and high regard given many of his predecessors. Washington, Jackson, Harrison, Taylor and Grant, of our Presidents, proved themselves in all things worthy of the highest respect of the American people, but in large degree they earned the preferment to which the triumphal voice of the people carried them by their services as soldiers; nor will any soldier of the American Republic seek its high honors save by proving a noble devotion to the civil law, the Constitution, and the ancient rights and liberties of the people.

THE HULL MURDERER CAPTURED.—The Wilmington Light Infantry were out on Thursday afternoon last.

The weather for the past week has been fair, clear and beautiful. How's that?

HOUSES, HOMES AND LOTS.—Lots and houses for sale by W. P. Canaday. See his ad.

Rev. Dr. L. S. Durkhead preached at Front Street M. E. Church on Wednesday night last.

The yachts have been sent across to the sound, to be ready for the regatta on the 4th of July.

An excursion party passed through this city on Tuesday last from Charlotte for Beaufort, N. C.

We see from the New Berne Democrat that Rev. Dr. Patterson of this city is stopping at the Gaston House in New Berne.

Quite a large number of vessels have sailed for this port and in a short time the wharves in this city will be lined with them.

EXCURSION FROM CHARLOTTE.—We understand that their will be an excursion party from Charlotte on the 3rd, 4th and 5th of July.

The Postal Cars will not be put on this route by the first of July as the Department intended, as the postal cars will not be ready by that time.

SAMPSON COUNTY.—A fruit exhibition will be held at Clinton, Sampson county, on the 31st of July. Col. D. K. McRachas been invited to deliver the address.

Messrs. Thomas H. Smith and Thos. Monk, of this county, left here on Tuesday last for Europe, on a visit to their parents. They will be absent for two months.

Mayor S. H. Fishblade is absent in New York. Dr. Henry G. Planner is acting Mayor very acceptably the people. In fact the Doctor is a very popular man, as well as being very handsome. He is married.

Preston Bridgers don't keep a ten cent store, but, from what friends say he sells goods ten per cent. less than any other retail grocery store in the city. Examine his ad and give him a call before purchasing.

The Star has been on a big spree for the past month, or its local has. He has made several attempts to report the Brunswick county case, but has always gotten it wrong. It is very amusing to see such mistakes.

SOL BEAR & BROS.—These gentlemen sell goods so cheap, and are so polite and attentive to customers, it is not surprising that they do such a very large business. They sell goods so very fast that they have new goods all the time on hand for sale.

Col Chamberland, Special Agent Post Office Department, has been in the city the past week investigating post-office matters. The Colonel is in fine health and seems to enjoy life wherever he goes. May his flag continue to wave and his staff never break down.

Mr. L. A. Angel, Gen. Agent of the Western Union Telegraph Company has received twenty-five of his Telephones and will have the balance in a few days. He has now upwards of sixty subscribers and is constantly receiving new orders. See list of subscribers published in another column. Every business and professional man in the city should be connected with the Western Union Telegraph Office by Telephone.

Mr. Henry Nutt having closed up New Inlet, and having completed all that relates to the improvement of our channel except a little dredging, several gentlemen, members of the Chamber of Commerce and the Produce Exchange, assembled and by resolution thanked Mr. Nutt for accomplishing this great work. That period is now about to return to us when a man saw a man, who said that a man told him that his father said that he had seen vessels lying at the wharves of Wilmington drawing 30 feet of water!

BADLY BURNED.—Mary Holmes, an old colored woman—about 70 years of age who lives on Brunst between Fifth and Sixth streets, was badly burned on Wednesday night last. She had retired and desiring a smoke she struck a match and ignited a piece of paper to light her pipe and attempted to throw the paper on the floor, but instead of falling on the floor it fell on the bed which was soon in a blaze and frightfully burned the old woman before assistance could arrive. Dr. McDonald was called in and dressed the wounds. The chances of her recovery are poor.

jointed sentences, and reluctantly, though not at all sullenly, given. He said that he lived, until a few months ago, in the same street in which the Hulls lived, and directly opposite their house. He had been employed as a servant. He had done occasional work for Mrs. Hull, washing windows and the like. Previous to the night of the murder he had not been above the first floor in the house. He entered the house, he says, by a basement window, which he fastened after he had got in. He then groped his way up stairs. He heard Mrs. Hull snoring, and was attracted thereby into her room. He began to bind her hands and feet, and while doing so she partially awoke and murmured: "Who is that?" He replied, "It's the doctor," and then put his hand over her face, while he snatched some rags or clothing with the other and stuffed them into her mouth. He then groped around to see what valuable articles he could find, when he discovered or thought his victim was not breathing. Frightened at this, he went to her, took the stuff out of her mouth, and, thinking she had fainted, dashed some cologne in her face, and then put back the extemporized gag. Alarmed still at her appearance, he felt of her leg and found there was no pulsation. Then he put the candle to her face, and in so doing set fire to the cologne on the clothing stuffed in her mouth. He thereupon brought his hand down flat and hard on the stuff in her mouth to smother the fire, and this may account, he thinks, for the bruises on the face. He says he fled suddenly, with what he could lay his hands on. What possessed him to do the deed, he says, he does not know. The devil, he says, must have put him up to it.

He is said to be an ignorant fellow, and cannot read or write. Mr. John I. Davenport, assistant counsel for a Captain of Police, has given the following statement to a Times reporter: "Cox was in one sense an 'insider' in the Hull residence. Fifteen months ago he was in Mrs. Hull's employ as her special and private servant, had the run of her apartments and had the freedom of the house. He must have known all about Mrs. Hull's habits of life. He left her employ over a year ago, and returned to it within a short time, and then remained two months. He then again left the house. He was not again noticed about the place until about five weeks before the murder. He then called upon Mrs. Hull and had an interview with her in the back parlor. He called again in a week, but did not see her. Just two weeks before the murder he again called. Whether or not he saw Mrs. Hull is not known. He, however, told the colored female servant that he had seen Mrs. Hull and had had a long talk with her. He said he had engaged himself to do some carpet-cleaning for her. He was to come and do the work on that (Wednesday) morning two weeks. That was the morning of the murder. He said that Mrs. Hull had said that he should be let in by the front door, and he remarked that he was particular about that. He did not get in at the front door on that morning, or night, but he knew that he climbed in a front parlor window from the front door-steps, and it is not true, as stated in some of the testimony before the coroner, that all the front parlor windows were securely fastened the night before. When within, he murdered Mrs. Hull. This arrest entirely absolves Dr. Hull from all the suspicion that has been directed against him from every quarter, and shows the absolute injustice of all the stories that have been current implicating him. No matter what good reason there appeared to be for suspecting any one, Cox's arrest shows its utter fallacy."

Cox will be taken to New York as soon as possible. He states that a neck lace and a fine cameo will be found in possession of a woman living on Bleeker street in New York, to whom he pawned it 48 hours after the murder.

The manner in which the day was celebrated, the fine appearance of the Lodges, more especially Shekinah, of Charleston, is truly commendable, and is spoken of in glowing terms by all who witnessed it. May Giblet always live to do as well. The visiting Lodge took their departure for home on Thursday morning train well pleased with a trip to Wilmington. * * *

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

Whereas, the Great Destroyer, Death, has for the first time invaded our Lodge, and removed therefrom our brother KNIGHT, JOSEPH N. HINTON, thus depriving us of the society and counsel of a most useful and exemplary Knight of Honor; and whereas it becometh us to sorrow not as those without hope, but to bear with patience and fortitude all distresses as but temporary affliction, looking for a happy reunion in the great light of the world beyond; therefore, be it Resolved, That in the death of our brother or Knight, Joseph N. Hinton, this Lodge has sustained the loss of a most useful and devoted member, one attentive to his duties and true to his obligations.

Resolved, That we believe in the overshadowing mercy of a beneficent Almighty, who doth neither ruthlessly destroy nor indiscriminately cut off, but deigns to gather up the sheaves against a merciful harvest, who doth exhibit his tenderness in the dispensation of affliction, and affords us examples both profitable and precious.

Resolved, That as Knights of Honor and individual creatures, we bow submissively to the Divine Hand in its our first and sore affliction, and that we are thus put in active remembrance that each one of us must soon close his mortal career.

Resolved, That we tender to the widow and orphans of our deceased brother Knight our sincere sympathy in their bereavement, and would invoke for them the continued protection of Him who has declared himself to be "a father to the fatherless and a God of consolation to the widow."

Resolved, That this Lodge wear the usual badge of mourning for the period prescribed in our laws; that a page in our minute book be inscribed to the memory of the deceased Knight; that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the bereaved family, and that publication be made in our city papers.

What a storm was brewing (in a teacup), and how far off that shutter was, we should never have ventured our head outside of that window, but it is too late for regrets now; we are nonplussed, completely squelched, and the public generally are respectfully invited to attend the obsequies on and we stake our reputation on its being the grandest funeral they ever witnessed.

As he slips he slides, and every time he slides he slips up most woefully. We leave our "kind friends" to find out the meaning of the above, and while they are doing so we will ask the following questions:

Hav'n't we the ugliest and dirtiest store in the State?

Hav'n't we the poorest stock of goods in Wilmington?

Hav'n't we made prices much higher than we commenced?

Hav'n't we been very unaccommodating and impolite to you?

Hav'n't we charged you for all the goods delivered?

Hav'n't we made a great many mistakes and refused to correct them when our attention was called thereto?

All of our friends who answer "yes" to the above questions will please not buy from us any more. Respectfully and truly,

P. L. BRIDGERS & CO.

In glancing over last Sunday's paper we regretted to notice the fact acknowledged by some of our brother grocers that we had taken away part of their trade, and making an appeal to the others not to leave them. We regret this exceedingly, especially as they were so kind and considerate about our coming to grief, but suppose, as we have determined to do the
