THE WILMINGTON POST

WILMINGTON, N. C., SUNDAY MORNING, NOV. 18, 1881

The repairs to the propeller of the steamer Elizabeth were completed on Thursday, and she resumed her regular trips to Smithville.

Says the Charlotte Observer: "The latest rumor is that the Best-Boston syndicate are negociating for the purchase of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railroad."

We have received a letter from Col. W. P. Craighill, in which he says he will not get here for ten days yet, to examine into the charges and complaints against Henry Bacon.

There seems to be a very general complaint of the scarcity of good cooks in this city, and as a consequence many families are having their meals supplied to them by the cuisines, of which there are some half a dozen of them in the Rev. H. A. Northrop, the newly ap. pointed Vicar Apostolic of North Carolina, is to be consecrated at an early day, not yet named, in Charleston. The Young Catholic Friends Society of this city will attend in a body on the occasion, having chartered a train of Pullman Palace cars.

PRESENTATION .- Col. R. S. Dinger's the able Director of Forepaugh's Show, was, after the performance last night. presented with a fine double case gold watch and a splendid supper. The watch was a present from the employees of the show, and the presentation was made by Dr. James Gannon. Mr. John Steljes prepared the supper.

We have been requested to call the attention of Capt. Brock, the efficient Chief of Police, or Mr. Scharff, the Health Officer for that district, to the miserable condition of an out-house on the corner of Nutt and Hanover streets, the condition of the same being, as we are informed, of such a nature as to prevent decent people to pass and repass, and if on the premises undoubtedly be presented to the Grand Jury at the next session of the Criminal Court for having such on his premises.

TANGIBLE APPRECIATION,-The wooden sheathing around the boiler at the engine house of the Clarendon Water Works at Hilton took fire from some loose plank which had carelessly been left under the furnace on Wednesday last, but was extinguished with little trouble and less damage. The Little Giant auswered the alarm and went out to Hilton but her services were not needed. Dr. Cloud addressed a note to the Company on Wednesday afternoon thanking it for its promptness, and enclosed $20 as a token of his appreciation of their efforts.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE.-The Grant property, running through from Second to Third, along the line of Princess street, was sold at auction by Mr. F. H. Darby, Commissioner, under a decree from the Superior Court on Monday last. The property was divided into four parcels, the house and lot corner of Second and Princess streets, occupied by Mr. J. D. Stelljes, two offices with premises fronting on Princes street, two offices and premises opposite the Court House, and the site of the burned stables, corner Princess and Third streets. Mr. Carl Mugge bought the corner house and lot for $1,550. Mr. L. Brown became the purchaser of the office and tract adjoining, at $1,150; Mr. E. G. Barker bought the office and tract opposite the Court House for $1,-387.50, and Mr. S. Stevens, of Onslow county, purchased the stable tract for $2,250. The entire sale realized $9,-337.50. Terms of sale, one-third cash and balance in 6, 9, 12 and 15 menths.

THE CLARENDON WATER WORKS. The Clarendon Water Works which have been under construction for the de brudder Abel? Cain said, 'dunno, Massa.' De Lord came a second time past six months were completed on Tuesday and the pipes were filled with water. The hydrants have been tested and were found to work to the misfaction of the contractor, the company and the city authorities. The water which has been selected has been prononneed by celebrated analytical chamists of Boston to be the best in this section. The reservoir which is located at Hilton, is about 70 feet high from its base, and 110 feet higher than the level of the river. It is of sheet iron and holds 200,000 gallons of water. The engine house and machinery building engine house and machinery building it a new brick building, situated 50 yards from the tank, immediately upon the bank of the river. In the building are the engines and boilers, all sew machinery and of the finest pattern. There are two engines for pumping water. The larger one has an 18 inch cylinder with a 10-inch stroke and the capacity of pumping one million of gallons of water a day. The smaller color was due to their color was due to the soil being dark and the citizent verse, which is thought was a sufficient reason for the lees are of the fine.

BISHOP J. W. HOUD. We copy from the Star of Zion the speech of Bishop Hood, which should be thoroughly examined:

OUR DELEGATES ABROAD COMMENTS PROM THE ENGLISH PRESS. We clip the following from the Loughborough Herald and North Leicentershire Gazette of Sept. 29th, 1881: 'The concluding services of the an-niversary of the Wesleyan Chapel were held Monday, when a sermon was heid Monday, when a sermon was preached in the afternoon by Bishop J. W. Hood, a delegate to the Ecumenical Methodist Conference from the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, Fayetteville, North Carolina, U. S. A. The pulpit was draped in mourning for the great and good man, President Garfield. There was a good congregation. The text was Matthew XXV., 10th verse: 'They that were ready went in with him to the marriage and the door was shut.' In the riage, and the door was shut,' In the course of his sermon the Reverend gentleman made a touching and appropriate reference to the President's death. He said that the deceased President was stained with no dishonest act, notwithstanding that he was subjected to great temptations in his lofty official position. His career was a singularly pure and upright one, and he rad taken the precaution to get ready before the bullet of the assassin had stricken him dows; and he left the highest position in America—the executive chair-for the throne above, eternal in the heavens. After the service an excellent tea was provided in the schoolroom where about

A public meeting was held in the chapel in the evening. J. Coy, Esq., Leicester, presided, and he was supported by Bishop J. W. Hood, Rev. C. B. Sykes, Rev. T. P. Spencer, Rev. G. Gibson (Weeleven ministers) ibson (Wesleyan ministers), Rev. J. Twydale (Independent), Mesars, J. Towne, Josiah Gill, and D. J. Parker, The Chairman who was received with cheers, made a characteristically hu-morous address. He also expressed the pleasure he had in again being present in that chapel and depicted the deep sorrow he had witnessed in Amerresident Garfield. * * 12.*

The Chairman hoped that Bishep Hood would be able to convey to the American people the sense the English nation entertained of the great loss they had sustained in the death of their dress on "The intellectual, moral and religious condition of the freedmen of doubted whether the black man was capable of any very great intellectual culture. It was a favorite idea with the advocates of American slavery that the black man was only fit to be a slave, that he was not capable of any higher position, and that he was, in fact, in the position in which the Almighty had assigned him, and that any attempt to raise him was to come into conflict with the purpose of the super-intending Providence of the universe. Much too, has been written about it, and not long since a book was pub-lished in which it was claimed that the black man was a species of rather highly developed monkey. Well, he upposed it was agreed that the monkey and not a soul, and the question occurred to him that as many of them were of a mixed kind, how much of a soul they had. (Laughter.) He claimed that the black man, like every other man, has mind, and where minn is there is no limit to the capacity for improvement. (Hear, hear.) No matter what color the skin was that covered the body, it had a soul in it, which was capable of the highest possible develop-ment. He had heard it said that color only went skin deep, but it was only on the outside skin that the color lay. If they hang up the two skins of a black and white man the wrong side out they could not tell the white skin from the black. If they drew blood from a man black as Indian midnight it would come out red as the blood of the fairest Saxon, proving the truth of the Apostle's words that God made of one blood all nations that dwell on the face of the earth. It was a question yet ameng some people wherefrom the black In the days of slavery the theory was that he killed his brother Abel, and this color was a mark put upon him, There was, however, another version of it, and he would give it in the words the Mississippi brother: "My dear brethren, Adam was a black man, and so was Eve. | Laughter. | And so were Cain and Abel all black! Oh yes, I spose it strikes you very forcibly where de first white man came from— I'se tell you, bress de Lord. [Laugh-ter.] You know Cain killed his brud-der Abel. De Lord said to Cain, where Massa.' De Lord came a second time and said, 'Cain, where de brudder Abel? Cain said, 'dunno, Massa.' De Lord came a third time and said in a sharp, awful woice, 'where de brudder Abel?' and Cain turned quite white. Now, if it had not been for dat nigger Cain, we should not be troubled wid de white men on the face of de earth, bless de Lord." [Loud laughter.] Seriously. Lord." [Loud laughter.] Seriously he took neither horn of the dilemma It did not matter whether Cain was cursed black or scared white; they had none of Cain's posterity on the face of the earth. They would remember that the earth. They would remember that the some of God and married the daugh-ters or men—that was, that the poster-ity of Seth had maried the poster-ity of Cain. face of the earth that has made as rapid advacement in intellectual develop-ment as the African race since their emancipation. We have in England at present a young man named Price, who graduated at Lincoln University with the highest honors, toth from the collegiate and the theological depart-ments; notwithstanding there were white men in the college who had the same advantages as he had. And by his eloquence he has succeeded in rais ing in the north thousands of pounds for the institution, so that it might con-

tions the good work of educating his race. The speaker also referred to Fred

Douglass, a colored man of great ability and eloquence, to prove that the Speaking of the morals of the blacks he said that after 250 years of the degrading system of slavery—a system thut disregarded the marriage and parental relations-it would not be strange if there were not the highest morals in the world amongst them; but be was happy to say that there was much morality among them; and while there were black men and black women as unfaithful to their marriage vows as there were white men and white women, here were thousands among them who were as true as the truest men have ever been. He thought that the attachment between the blacks was as strong as in any race in the world, and more so in many instances, and more so in many instances, and they were rapidly rising to a higher state of morality, and a more prosperous position. There were many white men in the south, who had been nursed by black women and there was hardly one who had not learned to call a black woman 'mama," while there were thousands of them who had drawn life from black women's breasts. Hence there is really ess aversion to contact with the nogro in the south than in the north. As far as regarded their church relationship they had very much more to hope for from the south than the north. After describing the beneficial results of prohibition in some of the states of the Union, he concluded by making a powerful appeal on behalf of the funds of the chapel.

rote of thanks to the speakers and the chairman.

Bishop Hood said that could hi heart have remained unmoved by the words of the resolution to which he had listened, which they had so feelingly carried, he would be destitute of that gratitude which was expected from all who could appreciate the kindly sympathy of a nation not exactly his own. He was happy to be here on this occa-English people have for them in their sadness and in their distress. There were many reasons why he rejoiced he came to England at the present time, but nothing had afforded him more real happiness than the sympathy they had manifested to his people in their sore distress. The race he rapresented felt more deeply that stroke perhaps than King. any other. They were perhaps aware that the man who has been stricken down by the assassin has been a friend to his race. He lived, moved and had his being in that particular state of Ohio from which their best friends have emanated. He was the successor in the Congress of the United States of a man whose name would be remembered by the African race as long as it ex-

Garfield was not only a great statesman, but he was great in every respect. There never has risen a man in America in whom the people have shown constantly and continually more confidence than they had shown in General Garfield; and there never was man who had shown himself more worthy of that confidence. Without effort on his part, or even endeavoring to push himself forward in any single case, he rose to the highest position in America. Ever since he was 25 years of age, step by step the American peo-ple have led him upwards. He was president of a college when the war broke out, from which position he was called to go forth and battle for freedom. He did so; and by gallant services he rose to the highest position in the Army, and while filling this position he was elected to the United States Congress, and as leader in the House of Representatives he was elected to the United States Senate, and before he had the opportunity to take his seat he was elected President. Never has man in America been more honored, or man been more worthy of such honor. They felt deeply his loss, but,

God moves in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform; He plants his footsteps in the sea, And rides upon the storm.

Deep in unfathomable mines Of never-tailing skill, He treasures up His bright designs And works His sovereign will.

The following came home to them more clearly-

Ye fearful saints, fresh courage take The clouds ye so much dread Are big with mercy, and shall break In blessings o'er your head.

Blind unbelief is sure to err, And sean His works in vain, God is His own interpreter, And He will make it plain.

Loud cheers.
