MAHONE, THE UNDAUNTED STATESMAN AND PATRIOT.

It is one of the bases of political life that every generous and manly effort to repair past errors must run the gauntlet of misrepresentation and reproach, prepared by those who urge the claims of consistency when every effort to induce to continuance in error has been reprobated and ignored.

To such a trial has Gen. Mahone been subjected ever since the conscience of a patriotic statesman exerted its ascendancy over the tricks and wiles of expediency, devised by time-serving politicians, who felt that partisan dominion was the breath and essence of their lives.

That Gen. Mahone might have held any position of prominence—we care not saying "honor"—in the ranks of the Bourbon cohorts goes for nothing.

It was our personal good fortune to hear a Democratic ex-judge of Richmond, an unrelenting funder, and one of the ablest and purest men in that state, say not very long ago that he regarded Gen. Mahone as one of the ablest and most honorable of the great men who have preserved to "The Old Dominion" her immortal name.

What, then, but devotion to the right could have inspired him to turn his back on old friends and cherished associations? His prominence in, and familiarity with the inner workings of the Democracy of his state gave him an opportunity of seeing, in their unadorned hideousness and treachery, the machinations of that party, and, like a noble, brave, generous and honest man, he has divorced himself a vis-à-vis from such a dark and disgraceful alliance.

When taunted with defection from principle, and sought to be degraded below the level of even his associates, no wonder his intrepid and brightly tempered funder uttered in the grand words of "Marnion":

"And if thou sayst 'I'm not the peer of any lord of Scotland here, Highland or lowland, far or near, Lord Angus, thou hast lied!'"

We seldom "drop into poetry," but it is the language of fearless and faithful souls, and if men like Gen. Mahone, uniting the heroic and the practical, can give them such harmonious blending, we venture to follow humbly in his footsteps and declare that the worthy of statesmen has not lost the breed of noble blood while she boasts such sons.

Letter from Idaho.

SHOSHONE, IDAHO, Oct. 2, 1883.

EDITOR POST:—As many of your readers probably never heard of Shoshone, for it is only one year old, I will inform them that they will find it following the Oregon Short Line Railway from its junction with the Union Pacific in Wyoming, through that territory into Idaho, and along the road in this territory to its junction with the Wood River branch, running north. Commercially, Shoshone has not yet materially influenced the markets of the world by its sales or purchases, and I am afraid the same thing may be truthfully said of its productions; but then, remember, reader, it is barely one year old, yet it contains a population of some 6,000 people, a good hotel, and about one hundred stores and dwellings. It is to have machine and car shops, and being situated centrally, will in the future become the railroad centre, at any rate so those predict who own town lots.

But fifty miles from Shoshone north on the Wood River branch of the Oregon Short Line Railway, is the great mining region of Idaho. In this region are several pretty, thrifty towns; Hailey, on Wood River, the largest, containing some 3,000 people; Bellevue, situated on the same stream, five miles south, and Galena and Ketchum north and west. From these towns come the bars of silver bullion from which is made our circulating coin medium.

These towns all present evidences of thrift and go-ahead-iveness. Everything is stirring and active; prices of merchandise are high, but money is plentiful. New buildings meet your view in every direction, and prosperity seems stamped upon everything. Hailey is building a handsome brick hotel and granite court house, has laid out a mile long and two hundred feet broad boulevard, with shade trees on either side and limpid streams of water running along their roots the full length of the avenue. There are many tastily built cottages that would, in point of architecture, do no discredit to "the states," and at night, when the good citizens of Wilmington are all in bed, Hailey, with all her stores lit up, drives a good trade.

I am informed that the valley of Wood River is susceptible of cultivation, and I have seen a sample of an excellent quality of oats raised there this summer.

In all these towns "law and order" prevail in a remarkable degree, the laws being strict and strictly enforced.

The population here, as in all mining regions, is necessarily cosmopolitan, but a more open-hearted, pleasant people you would travel far to find. Every one works, and does it good humoredly. Of an evening you may see the miner just from under the ground, with his rough clothes and hob nailed shoes, holding pleasant conversation with the doctor or lawyer, in their professional black. Class distinctions are unknown here, honesty in business and respectability being the only qualification society demands ere its doors to a stranger.

All have confidence in the future of their respective towns and evince a degree of public spirit that would astonish some of the good people of Wilmington. There is no such word in their vocabulary as fail. Whatever they undertake they push to a successful termination; anything for the general good or convenience brings them all together at once.

What would strike a North Carolinian's attention in this country is the absence of church edifices. As I said before, crime is almost unknown, and so is religion; that is in its outward demonstrations, but I venture to say that there is no less morality within the breasts of those out here who seldom see inside a church than with those who reside where churches are plentifully distributed, and regularly patronized; but, to use the language of one of the oldest inhabitants, "the folks don't seem to hanker after churches as much as they mou"—probably being influenced by their eastern brothers' experiences who have "hankered."

The Oregon Short Line has crossed the Boise River and is pushing on for Oregon. When its objective point is reached, it will be the great short line to the Pacific Ocean, opening the way to migration and settlement a heretofore unknown country, rich in minerals, woods and farm lands. Already immigration has set in this way, and with the $500,000 hotel and grounds at the Shoshone Falls, on Snake River, which are 18 feet higher than the Niagara Falls, which will be built next summer, and the celebrated Soda Springs, already well patronized, at which the railroad company are going to build a fine hotel, and are now making extensive improvements, this hitherto almost unknown country will be brought into notice.

At Hailey, on August 21st, I saw an icicle seven inches long, which had formed during the night, and at 2:30 p. m. that same afternoon the temperature in the shade was 82 degrees.

EX-REB.

PERSONALS.

Gen. S. H. Manning, our worthy sheriff, has returned from his northern trip with his family. We are glad to inform his many friends that the General has nearly recovered his health, and if he keeps on he will soon be the same old Manning of 1870. He looks better than he has for ten years, we are glad to say.

Mr. George R. French has returned from Henderson, where he has been spending the summer with his daughters. We had the pleasure of shaking his hand a few days ago, and he looks vigorous again. In fact he has improved very much. His friends were much delighted to see him again looking so exceedingly well, and we congratulate him and his family on his successful recovery.

Zera Seaton, this faithful and successful fraud, has at last left our city for the benefit of the fools of Wilmington, who were not able to take care of their money. The bigger the fraud and the bigger the rascal, the bigger the crowd in this city, and all he will have to do is to advertise in certain papers and a good local is guaranteed, it matters not about the character of the show.

Capt. Jos. W. Etheridge, superintendent of the life saving service of the sixth district, was in our city last Saturday, accompanied by his good lady. The captain is looking well, but we are sorry of the fact of his wife's bad health, and sincerely hope she may recover soon. Capt. Etheridge has charge of the coast of North Carolina and a portion of Virginia, and we are glad to say that since he has taken charge of the service he has brought it up to be equally as creditable as that of any district in the life saving service, and that is saying a great deal, for the whole service is exceedingly well managed and is very popular throughout the country. Capt. Etheridge is a thorough business man, a good sailor energetic and faithful, which makes him the right man in the right place.

City Items.

Messrs. Brown & Roddick's new store, which is a model of beauty and convenience, has twenty-eight show cases in it.

The Norwegian Barque Elisa, which cleared on Tuesday last, took out 3,000 barrels of rosin for London, valued at $4,500. Messrs. A. Sprunt & Son were the shippers.

The members of the choir of the First Baptist Church presented their late organist, Miss Connie Chasten, with a handsome toilet set last week as a testimonial of their esteem.

Rev. T. A. Reed, of Beaufort, N. C., occupied the pulpit of the First Baptist church of this city on Sunday last, and Rev. Mr. Kirkland, of Whiteville, preached at the Second Presbyterian church, the pastor, Rev. C. W. Payne, being absent on his bridal tour.

Mr. Geo. M. Summerell has completed and launched the last of the government scows which he recently contracted to build. They will be used by Messrs. Ross & Lara in conveying rock from their quarry at Gander Hall to Cornecko Inlet.

Messrs. Holmes & Watters, grocers, have moved into the store formerly occupied by Messrs. Brown & Roddick, and Messrs. E. J. Moore & Co. have removed their candy manufactory and confectionery to the store vacated by Messrs. Holmes & Watters.

A singular and fatal disease is prevailing among the ducks at Wrightsville. A dropping of the wings, a giving way in the back and a loss of locomotion is followed by a swelling about the eyes, when another dead duck is added to the list that has gone before. One family has lost as many as thirty ducks.

Atonement, commenced on Wednesday evening and continued until sundown yesterday. It was duly opened by our Jewish fellow-citizens, who are required to renounce all business pursuits and devote the time to the work of self-examination and supplication. The Temple was open all day and appropriate services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Mendelsohn.

Two young bloods got into a difficulty at the Purcell House on Saturday night last and quite a scuffle ensued, during which several friends of the respective parties showed a disposition to engage, but better counsels prevailed and the trouble soon came to an end. The case came before the Mayor, who required the originator of the disturbance to pay a fine of $10 and let the other go unpunished.

Prof. Wm. B. Phillips, chemist of the Navassa Guano Works, of Wilmington, a graduate of the University of North Carolina, having passed with high honor an exhaustive examination, has been awarded by the trustees and faculty of the University the degree of Doctor of Philosophy (Ph. S.). This degree is only given for work and study done, equal to a two year's advanced course and Dr. Phillips is the first who has ever gained it from our University.

Rev. Petroleum V. Nasby (D. R. Locke) will travel through the southern states during the fall and winter, for the purpose of writing a series of letters to his paper, the Tobacco Blade, his impressions of the great south. The million readers of the Blade who have imprinted themselves with the name of Nasby in "EXILE" (Nasby's Letters from Europe) will appreciate how the subject will be handled.

Every reader in the south is invited to send for a Specimen Copy. See advertisement in another column.

The Cowan house, corner Front, between Chesnut and Mulberry streets, which was recently purchased by the Carolina Central Railroad company, is to be converted at once into a handsome suite of offices for that company. Col. Robinson, Maj. Winder and Col. Jones were here on Wednesday and inspected the building, preparatory to commencing the work of transformation. The offices are intended to be very fine and substantial, and will be provided with vaults and other conveniences.

LOCAL SHORTS.

Eggs continue very high.

Wood is getting scarce and high.

Peach and apple trees hereabouts are in bloom for the second time.

Mr. B. G. Worth, one of our "County Fathers," has been rusticated in Bladen.

The annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held yesterday afternoon.

The Ladies Benevolent Society of this city have commenced their labors of love for the winter.

Mr. J. M. Forbes is just completing a fine residence on Frost, between Orange and Ann streets.

Cotton is coming very freely just now, and is bringing better prices than it did awhile back.

Rev. Mr. Wood, of the Front street Methodist church, will preach especially to the young men on Sunday evening next.

Mr. Abram Evans, of Brunswick, who has just returned from the Boston Exposition, says it was the grandest display he ever saw.

A meeting of the Wilmington branch of the Irish National League was held on Monday night last for the consideration of important business.

Timers, house carpenters, brick masons and painters are getting plenty to do here just now. There is much building and repairing going on.

The pilots, in their last report of soundings at the mouth of the river, make the depth on Bald Head Bar 13 feet and 6 inches, and on the western Bar 11 feet and 5 inches.

The lot opposite the Cape Fear Academy has been rented for a gymnasium for the pupils where healthy exercises can be indulged in when they are not engaged at their studies.

Rev. R. O. Burton, Presiding Elder of Wilmington District, M. E. Church South, who has been in very feeble health, has very much improved and is now filling all his appointments.

The Wilmington Light Infantry have received their quota ($150) of the appropriation made by the state to the military companies banded together under the name of the State Guard.

Green Lucas and Thos. McKoy, convicted of larceny at the late term of the Criminal Court, and sentenced to the Penitentiary for two years last, were taken to Raleigh yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Murray.

William was sentenced by the Mayor a few days ago to be locked up for ten days for throwing rocks on the streets. This is a warning to the boys who are in the habit of throwing rocks.

The Carr house at the eastern end of Market street, near its intersection with Seventeenth street, has been thoroughly overhauled and remodeled and is now a handsome and stylish residence, the property of Mr. W. J. Gordon, who, we understand, will occupy it.

The matrimonial fever has not raged to any great extent in this city lately. There has been only one marriage license issued to whites since about the 21st of August, and very few to colored couples. Cool weather will stimulate the market.

Wilmington is to have a lady artist. Miss Bessie Willard has returned home after a three years absence north, where she studied the art of drawing and painting, finally graduating with distinction at Cooper Institute. She will open a studio.

An Herb Doctor in Trouble.

A colored herb doctor, who gives his name as Dr. Richard Kane, and says he came here from Charlotte, where he had an "extensive practice," was arrested here on Tuesday last, on a warrant issued by Justice J. C. Hill. He has been in Wilmington for a month or two, and is said to have had during that time quite a considerable number of patients. A few days ago, it is alleged, he administered a dose of his medicine to one Maria Smith, who was almost immediately afterwards seized with a violent vomiting, rendering it necessary to call in Dr. Potter, the city physician, to administer an antidote, when she finally experienced relief. He afterwards, it was stated, seized a good portion of her furniture and removed it to the house he was occupying on Ninth, between Castle and Queen streets. One Henrietta Harris was also said to have suffered from a dose of the doctor's "specific," and at last accounts was prostrated from the effects of it. He had a preliminary examination before Justice Hill, on the charge of violating the pharmaceutical laws of the state, but the evidence was not of a character to fasten the charge upon him, and he was therefore discharged.

Very few scuppernon grapes are coming to market now.

Captain Ed. Wilson Manning, of the Pine Grove Hotel, at Wrightsville, has enclosed his pavilion so as to protect his guests from the weather, and built a first class oyster roast close by. Everything is progressing toward making Wrightsville a number one seaside resort. Being in possession of all the natural advantages to that end, at the start, it will take no great amount of artificial appliances to bring it up to the proper standard. One thing needful is the proper cultivation of oysters there and at the adjacent sounds.

The fishermen all along our coast are complaining that fish were never so scarce since they can recollect as they are now. This absence of the usual supply of fish in our waters has been noticeable ever since the storm in September. Stultels are particularly scarce, and at this season of the year they are usually the finest, fattest and most abundant. In the present condition of affairs the fishermen can't supply the home demand, let alone furnishing their customers along the lines of the different railroads.

The Good Samaritans.

Grand Lodge No. 2, of the "Independent Order of Good Samaritans and Daughters of Samaria," of North Carolina, met at the City Hall on Tuesday morning last, this being its third annual session. I. E. Abbott, Grand Worthy Chief, read his annual report, a committee on credentials was appointed, and the Grand Lodge then adjourned until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The Secretary reported one hundred and twenty-five Lodges represented by two hundred and fifty delegates.

There is a large attendance from every portion of the state in attendance upon the body.

Literary and Library Association.

The colored people have a literary and library association which is flourishing. The first lecture was delivered before the society on Thursday night of last week, and last night it was proposed to discuss the question: "Will the colored people of North Carolina build the Wilmington, Wrightsville and Onslow Railroad?" Select readings and essays were also included in the programme. Such an institution will be a great help to the colored people of both sexes, in stimulating a laudable desire for useful information, and in furnishing the material for its gratification.

J. H. Williamson's Speech.

On Tuesday night, pursuant to appointment, John H. Williamson, Secretary of the North Carolina Industrial Association, delivered an address to a large audience, at the City Hall, in the interest of the Association and in behalf of the approaching Fair to be held in Raleigh on the 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th and 17th days of November. He made an urgent appeal to the colored people of this city and section, to do all in their power for the success of the Association, and the approaching Fair, as their mission is one of vital importance to the colored race in North Carolina, upon whose self-reliant energies and exertions so much of their future depends. The meeting was presided over by Alfred Howe, a leading colored citizen of Wilmington, and the secretary's chair was filled by our worthy Registrar of Deeds, Joseph E. Sampson. Rev. D. J. Sampson, Pastor of the First (col.) Presbyterian Church, of this city, opened the proceedings with prayer.

Drowning in the Cape Fear.

There was a sad drowning case in the river opposite to the southern section of this city on Monday last. A small batteau containing three persons—a man and two women—was seen to put off from Kidder's rice fields, on the west side of the river, and head toward the city, about half past 3 o'clock. The boat had not reached the middle of the river when from some cause it was suddenly capsized and the inmates were left struggling in the water. A boat put off to the rescue, but the unfortunate victims of the disaster had all gone down before the party reached the scene. The name of the man was Charles Simmons, well known in Wilmington, having formerly been an employe in the steam saw mill of Messrs. Northrop & Cumming. He is said to have been about 32 years old, lived on Surry, between Castle and Queen streets, and was unmarried. His companions were Mary Eliza O'Hannon, daughter of Lewis O'Hannon, aged about 20 years, and a strange young woman, whose name could not be ascertained.

JOHN J. DAVIS.

Pioneer Life.

In the literature of the day we frequently meet a genuine surprise—a gem of purest ray—a history impartially written, devoid of dullness, and brim-full over with incident and anecdote. Who is not reminded of Macaulay's England by such allusion to historical composition? Probably not one, and yet there has just issued from the press an American book which will prove of even greater interest to American readers.

This new favorite is entitled "Romance and Tragedy of Pioneer Life." Its author is A. L. Mason, A. M., who has proved his right, in this volume, to stand in the front rank of native historians. It is certainly the best historical exhibit of "the times which tried men's souls" that has yet appeared from any pen.

"Romance and Tragedy of Pioneer Life" is the latest and, unquestionably, the best contribution yet made to this department of history. The reader finds it wonderfully absorbing from the first chapter to the last, and then there is a powerful impulse to go back and read it all again. The trials and successes of the early settlers; their wars and treaties with the Indians; captures, escapes, and almost miraculous recoveries of women and children; great conspiracies, which only lacked success to change the history of the world and turn backward for a whole century the course of civilization upon these shores; romance, sentiment, toil, tribulation, and gigantic achievement of a class of brave and hardy men and women, of whom their descendants can not learn enough, will probably never find a more complete and attractive record than is supplied in the work under discussion.

It is a record of truth, and assisted by the rare descriptive powers and finely drawn metaphor of this writer, its pages become a series of word pictures as impressive as the finest specimens of the art of composition. Incident and anecdote illuminate its chapters and make every part of the book attractive. Illustrations of the text in elegant full page engravings are very numerous, numbering about sixty, and in the words of the publishers' announcement, are, probably, "the best ever employed to illustrate an American topic."

Let it be understood that this work is a history of pioneer life and achievement from the earliest recorded date of the Anglo-Saxon race upon the Western Continent; that its facts are drawn from thoroughly authenticated sources, and that it is full in data, substantial in a book of 1,000 royal-octavo pages, printed from new type upon beautiful toned paper, and bound in neat and substantial style. Such a volume, with its attractive text and great wealth of illustration, can not appeal to purchasers in vain.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Nasby in the South.

A Tour of Observation in the South.

Mrs. D. R. LOCKE (Nasby), the editor of the "Tobacco Blade" of this city, will make a tour of the Southern States, commencing on or about October 1st, and continuing during the autumn and winter the object being a series of letters descriptive of the whole country, which will appear weekly, and will be entirely non-political, their object being to place before the people of the Southern States, especially the half million readers of the "Blade," such facts as are necessary to give a comprehensive view of the resources of the South.

The great South is entering upon an era of development that will result in a few years will work wonderful changes in population and general wealth. What the Southern States need more than anything else, is that its advantages in soil, climate, forest and mineral wealth be known and made use of by the millions of people who are coming into the North who are seeking new homes in the South, more a knowledge of the resources and advantages of the Southern States.

The "Tobacco Blade" has the largest circulation of any paper published in the United States, and these letters will appear regularly in its columns. In fact, the letters from the South will be its great feature for the coming year. The importance to the South of a work like this can hardly be over-estimated.

The letters will not be confined to the regular tourist's routes, but to descriptions of what the regular tourist writes about. Messrs. Locke will visit the best points, remote from the much-frequented lines of travel; they will investigate, personally, soil, water-powers, forests and mines, land, man-made and natural, and in short pertaining to the material development of the vast country south of the Ohio and Potomac.

Those who have followed the work of the "Tobacco Blade" during two years and a half, will understand their method of getting information, and their manner of treatment.

These letters from the South will come in the "Tobacco Blade" about November 1st, and will continue probably a year—at least until the subject is exhausted.

The weekly "Blade" is $1.00 a year, post-paid, to every body.

Those preferring to receive the "Blade" three months by remitting 30 cents, or six months by remitting 60 cents, or a year by remitting 1.00, will be glad to send you a copy of the "Blade" free to any address. We want as many as possible to send specimens of the "Blade" to our publishers, Messrs. W. H. Walker & Co., 101 N. 3rd St., Philadelphia, Pa. We want to send out a half million specimens of the "Blade" to the next month. Don't be misled as to the number.
