A CARD.

"Truth is Mighty and Will Prevail." My attention has been called to the following, which I learned appeared in the Washington (N. C.) Index.

"When the 'iron-clad' oath was administered to the new Municipal officers of New-Bern, Mr. E. R. Stanly requested a note to be entered at the bottom of his to the effect that he was a rebel agent, for the purpose of keeping out of the war—hence he took the oath under protest. Strange as it may seem, slaves he voluntarily labored so incessantly on the 'rebel' breastworks which encircle his city. That was worth a position."

"I never went with my own slaves to build breastworks, nor those of any other person; nor did I ever throw a shovelful of earth on a rebel breastwork."

"As to what is called the 'iron-clad oath,' of which he speaks, it has never been presented to me, and further, at the time the above article was published I had not taken any oath as a municipal officer of the City of New-Bern. So it will be seen that it is ahead of time, which shows evident haste to circulate what is not true."

"My advice is, should there be any desire to make statements about me again, that the above heading should be observed."

NEW BERN, June 14, 1867. E. R. STANLY.

STATE ITEMS.

The Charlotte Times advises Gov. Worth to resign; and as he is entitled of his fair proportion by order No. 34, self-respect requires that he should resign.

The heavy rains of last week caused much damage to the growing crops of cotton and corn in the counties of Anson, Richmond and Montgomery. The wheat, furthermore, was also materially injured. The 'Wadeboro' Argus says that the cotton in many plantations between that place and Charlotte was so badly injured last week by the cool weather, that the farmers had to plow up and corn planted instead.

General Order No. 67, from District Headquarters, appoints a board to report a code of rules for the regulation of the subject of registration for the consideration and approval of the Commanding General. The board was to meet in Charleston yesterday. It is composed as follows:

Col. W. B. Royal, President, H. H. Hooper, of South Carolina; J. H. Fisher, of Raleigh, N. C.; Leonard Bozzer, of Lexington, S. C.

The anti-liquor law of General Stekler is attracting considerable attention at all points in North and South Carolina. The Salisbury Banner says: "The bar-keepers have paid their taxes, rented houses at a very high figure, and otherwise incurred heavy expenses, trusting to that liberty which is awarded to all free traders to prosecute, whatever business they may choose to follow, consistent with the laws of the land. This suppression of this particular business may be all right and proper, but the principle is a dangerous one."

Manufacturing in North Carolina is destined to become a great element of popular wealth. We find in the Fayetteville News a statement of the operations of the Beaver Creek Company for the month of May, and we think it a very encouraging exhibit. During the twenty-six working days, sixty looms turned out 454 yards of cloth to the looms, 70,800 yards of sheeting, and 9,700 pounds of yarn. The consumption of cotton amounted to 81 bales. The goods of this factory are widely known and highly esteemed, and command the best prices wherever thrown on the market. We have been promised a visit to Beaver Creek factory, to go through the establishment and examine its operations, the result of which will lay before our readers.
