NOTICE.—The publisher will not be responsible for any debts contracted against the paper, except by his individual or written order.

THE "good" Outpost can get work by applying at this office.

No Mayor's Court yesterday. No criminal cases before the Justices.

THE WEATHER.—Yesterday was an all mixture of good and bad. Over head it was splendid, the sun shone bright and cheerful while under foot, it was miserable.

THEY THREW WIFE AND PARTY.—The Wilmingtonians appear to be greatly exercised and particularly pleased, at the expected visit of Tom Thumb and wife.

We suppose the Journal and Star folks will believe we are joking, when we say that they make a gross deal of fuss about a little humanity, but we ain't, eh, no!

CHARITY FUND.—The following named persons have accepted the challenge of "Colonel Duke," which we publish by request of the Relief Committee:

Mrs H B Lehman, John Patterson, C K Dutt, n, Capt E C Taylor, Ed R Young, C B Dibble, Geo W Nasson, Jr, R W King, Capt Wm H Chapin, F W Jones, James Redmond, J Nelson Wright, H T Berry, Isaac & Ep, Geo Bishop, C A Hart, Wm C M, M Hahn, Weinstein & Bros, Wm L, John Hume, E W Carpenter, giving $10.00 each, Jas A Bryan, giving 6 cords of wood, Dr J L Watkins $20.00, Col Duke $30.00.

Mrs H B Lehman, W G White, Mr Cash, D N Kilbourn, Capt J Longhlin, C B Jones, Geo W Nasson, Jr, A H Foster, Rev E M Forbes, Wm Woodcut, O P Sheldon, R J Brown, Thomas Towers, E J Clayton, J A Snydman Jr, Wm F Lego, Chas Zinkard, Leopold Baer, Geo W Potter, James W Jones, George C Bessner, Jas C Harrison, William Cleve, F Cutbert, giving $5.00 each, J E Brush, through E Hubbs, $2.00. It will be observed that some names occur in both lists.

This work is one of vast importance, and the donors who have thus nobly come up to the help of the suffering poor of our County are truly worthy of all praise. Who will be added to this list next? All will be called upon in turn. Let none refuse who can give. Our people must not, shall not starve.

"SOME" FRUIT.—Yesterday we became the recipient of some Strawberries, in quality and size among the best that we have ever seen that had been grown in the open air and in the garden of Mr. Thomas Swan, of Goldsboro. We were informed that Mr Swan has 24 acres planted in Strawberries and that a few days ago they were in full bloom and fast ripening, a number having already ripened. We fear, however, that the recent snow and cold weather has been the effect of seriously retarding their growth if not entirely killing them off. Imagine your delirious of the joy North, if you see the delightful weather that exists in Eastern North Carolina, that permits Strawberries to be grown in the open air in December and ripen in time to become a part of the desert, of a Christmas dinner.

INQUEST.—Coroner Young yesterday held an inquest upon the body of Charles Crawford, who, while engaged in a dispute on Friday afternoon, received a blow that resulted in his death. At the inquest the facts in the case as elicited, were as follows.

On Friday afternoon Crawford came into the barber-shop on Craven street under the billiard saloon, and proposed to a young man by the name of Green who was employed there, to have a game of cards; the proposal was accepted, and Crawford and Green began to play for ten cents a game, a young man by the name of Nelson being made stakeholder and referee. During the progress of the game a dispute arose and, according to prior agreement, was referred to Nelson for settlement, who decided against Crawford and in favor of Green. Crawford became indignant and loudly and soundly abused both Green and Nelson. Nelson began quietly to remonstrate, which appeared to further incense Crawford, who seizing a tin cup full of hot water from the stove, hurled it at Nelson. This was too much for Nelson, who in turn naturally became indignant and expressed himself freely; and Crawford still bent upon mischief seized a bottle for the purpose of striking him, but being too quick he snatched the bottle from Crawford's hands and retreated. Crawford, then seized a razor and made for Nelson, with the evident intent of injuring him; being closely pressed and fearful of the injury that might be inflicted upon him, Nelson threw the bottle that he had taken from Crawford at his (Crawford's) head, hitting him in the temple and knocking him down senseless. He then left the place and the body in charge of Green, who called in some friends; but they not deeming the effect of the blow to be as serious as it really was, did nothing for the sufferer; and thus he was allowed to remain from 2 o'clock in the afternoon (the time when the affray happened) until 6 o'clock in the evening, when he was taken to his home on a cart and in care of a friend. No medical aid was rendered, and about 11 o'clock that night he died.

As soon as his death was known, Sergeant Colligan and officer Keeler went in pursuit of Nelson, whom they found at his residence and conveyed him to the Police Station, where he remained until the inquest, when he was conveyed to the jail.

After hearing the facts as above stated, the jury rendered a verdict that "Charles Crawford came to his death from a wound in the trough by a bottle thrown by George Nelson, December 11th, 1868."

Nelson was then remanded to jail to await the action of the trial term of court.

The parties in this affair are all colored, and industrious, respectable young men, which makes the affair more deplorable. Crawford leaves a young wife.

Although the affair creates a great deal of feeling and the prevailing opinion seems to be that, if not the circumstances, Nelson was just led in his case.
