AGRICULTURAL.

Kitchen Garden. Manure is the keystone, the king bolt, the beginning, middle, and end in a successful garden. It is the one thing of which a wide awake gardener never has enough. The home supply is usually supplemented by purchases, and those who buy should now make contracts with stable keepers, express drivers, and all who keep many horses for the year. The farmer's garden depends upon home supplies. It is too often the case that the best manure goes to the fields, and the garden gets what is left. It will pay to give the best manure to the garden. Unless the heap is so large, that the heat or its fermentation will prevent freezing, the manure should be kept in | Noah H. Swayne, of O., the barn cellar, or otherwise under cover. Private gardeners may well they supplement their stock by sweepings from paved streets, the waste of brewers, both spent hops | ber, at Washington. and malt refuse, and keep an eye open for every fertilizing material that will be cheaper than fine bone, dried blood, or guano, of which they all buy more or less. Muck, if frozen one winter, and then allowed to dry, makes an excellent absorbent in the stables, and if composted with lime, is useful on of those who grow vegetables for a living. Aside from all the stable manure they can make and buy,

So-with leaves, which is one of those things of which the gardener can never have too many, and in 4th some localities they can yet be col- 5th lected. Used as bedding, they make 6th a valuable addition to the manure 7th heap, and mixed with stable manure, sth for hot-beds, they are of great use. One-third leaves and two-thirds manure will hardly diminish the activity of the manure, and make it | The stated terms of the U. S. Circuit more lasting; reversing the portions, makes a mild and enduring heat.

Hot-bed and Frame Sashes are now made so cheaply by machinery that it is often better to buy than to make them. Near New York we pay $1.40, all ready for the glass. In residence, Baltimore, Md. glazing, bed the glass in putty only paint finishes the job. Get old sashes in a state to use; reset glass, paint, and, if shaky, put a brace across.

Straw-mats and shutters are as necessary as sashes, especially for hot-beds. Not only have we to generate heat by the manure, but to prevent its loss at night. Strawmats can be readily made in bad weather, and will often be useful for other purposes. Shutters should be made of the lightest stuff, with battens or cleats, and of the size of the sash. In very cold weather a mat with a shutter over it will be found very useful.

Plants in cold frames are more likely to suffer from heat than from cold. The object of putting cabbages, cauliflower, lettuce, etc., in frames, is to keep them dormant, as well as to shield them from excessive cold. If they are stimulated into growth by too much heat, they will be as badly off as if severely frozen. Beginners err in keeping the plants too warm. Air the frames whenever the outside temperature Western District; resi., Greensboro. is near 32 degrees, and in mild weather remove the sashes alto-

Hot-beds, for sowing seeds, will be needed this month in the Southern States; as the time for making these will differ in each locality, we need only repeat the general rule that they should be started-whether North or South-about six weeks before it will be safe to set the plants in the open ground. - American Agriculturist.

An Excellent Fertilizer.

The Journal of Chemistry says that one of the very best fertilizers used upon the farm for all the cereal grains and root crops may be made in the following manner: Take one barrel of pure finely ground bone, and mix it with a barrel of good wash ashes, during the mixture add gradually about three pailfuls of water. The heap may be made upon the floor of an outbuilding or upon the barn floor; and by the use of a hoe the bone and ashes must be thoroughly blended &c., office, Raleigh. together. The water added is just sufficient to liberate the caustic alkalies, potash and soda, and these act upon the gelatine of the bone, dissolving the little atoms, forming a kind of soap and fitting it for a kind of plant aliment. In this way the most valuable constituents of the bone can be made immediately available, and the addition of potash and soda aids in the formation of a fertilizer of inestimable value. A gill of this mixture, placed in a hill of corn, will work wonders. It is excellent for garden vegetables and for all kinds of roots. It will be ready for use in a week after it is made.
