Mr. Warner on the Donkey.

The best way of getting about Cairo and its environs is on the donkey. It is cheap and exhilarating. The donkey is easily mounted and easily got off from; not seldom he will weaken in his hind legs and let his rider to the ground-a sinking operation which destroys your confidence in life itself. Sometimes he stumbles and sends the rider over his head. But the good donkey never does either. He is the best animal of his size and appearance living. He has the two qualities of our greatest general, patience and obstinancy. The good donkey is easy as a rocking-chair, surefooted as a chamois; he can thread any crowd and stand patiently dozing in any noisy thoroughfare for hours. To ride him is only a slight compromise of one's independence in walking. One is so near the ground, and so absent-mindedly can he gaze at what is around him, that he forgets that there is anything under him. When the donkey, in the excitement of company on the open street and stimulated by the whacks and cries of his driver, breaks into the rush of a gallop, there is so much flying of legs and such a general flutter that the rider fancies he is getting over the ground at an awful rate, running a break-neck race; but it does not appear so to an observer. The rider has the feeling of the swift locomotion of the Arab steed without its danger or expense. Besides, a longlegged man, with a cork hat and a flying linen "duster," tearing madly along on an animal as big as a sheep, is an amus-ing spectacle.-My Winter on the Nile.

[Battle Creek, (Mich.) Daily Journal.]

Upon being spoken to concerning St. Jacobs Oil, our fellow townsman Mr-Theodore Wakelee, said: I had been suffering with rheumatism, and obtain. ed the greatest relief from the use of St. Jacobs Oil. It has also been used in my family for some time, and has never been found to fail in giving promt relief.

ENGAGEMENT broken: An Iowa paper tells of two lovers who were permanently separated by the interposition of a "cold cloud of realism." Being freely interpreted this means probably that they were not kindned souls. The circumstance recalls the instance of a romantic young lady why had a very fine head of hair. One evening, when her affianced stood gazing very inquisitively at it in the midnight, she said, with much feel-ing: 'John, are you thinking that each one of these hairs is like a golden cord, binding you to happiness?" "Well, no," he answered, mechanically, "I was thinking what a nice mosquito net they would make."-Brooklyn Eagle.

Discoveries by Accident.

Valuable discoveries have been made and valuable inventions suggested by the veriest accidents. An alchemist, while seeking to discover a mixture of earths that would make the most durable crucibles, one day found that he had made porcelain. The power of lenses, as applied to the telescope, was discovered by a watchmaker's apprentice. While holding spectacle-glasses between his thumb and finger, he was startled at the suddenly enlarged appearance of a neigh-boring church spire. The art of etching upon glass was discovered by a Nurem-burg glass-cutter. By accident a few drops of aqua fortis fell upon his spectacles. He noticed that the glass became corroded and softened where the acid touched it. That was hint enough. He drew figures upon glass with varnish, applied the corroding fluid, then cut away the glass around the drawing When the varnish was removed the figures appeared raised upon a dark ground. Mezzotint owed its invention to the simple accident of the gun barre! of a sentry becoming rusted with dew. The swaying to and fro of a chandelier in a cathedral suggested to Galileo the application of the pendulum. The art of lithographing was perfected through suggestions made by accident. A poor musician was curious to know whether music could not be etched upon stone as well as upon copper. After he had prepared his slab his mother asked him to make a memorandum of such clothes as she proposed to send away to be washed. Not having pen, ink and paper convenient, he wrote the list on the stone with the etching preparation, intending to make a copy of it at leisure. A few days later, when about to clean the stone, he wondered what effect aqua fortis would have upon it. He applied the acid, and in a few minutes saw the writing standing out in relief. The next step necessary was simply to ink the stone and take off an impression. The composition of which printing rollers are made was discovered by a Salopian printer. Not being able to find the peltball, he inked the type with a piece of soft glue which had fallen out of a gluepot. It was such an excellent substitute that, after mixing molasses with the glue to give the proper consistency, the old pelt-ball was entirely discarded. The shop of a Dublin tobacconist by the name of Lundy was destroyed by fire. While he was gazing dolefully into the smoldering ruins he noticed that his poorer neighbors were gathering the snuff from the canisters. He tested the snuff for himself, and discovered that the fire had largely improved its pungency aroma. It was a hint worth profiting by. He secured another shop, built a lot of ovens, subjected the snuff to a heating process, gave the brand a particular name, and in a few years be-

The French Peerage.

France has no peerage officially recognized, or baronetage, while the conferring of knighthood is a ceremony unintelligible to even educated Frenchmen. Several other fashions in which the British sovereign delights to honor her lieges by making them "Privy Councillors." or of her "counsel learned in the law," are wholly unknown to her neighbors. The "cross," which is a star of five rays, and the various other grades of the "Legion of Honor," established by Napoleon in 1802, are the only visible honors with which France rewards her illustrious sons. Any citizen can obtain them; none can bequeath them, In the last days of the Second Empire the Legion numbered 60,000. Within a few months of the proclamation of the third Republic the National Assembly imposed restrictions on the creation of new members. By the principal clause it was enacted that only one member should be created for every two vacancies.

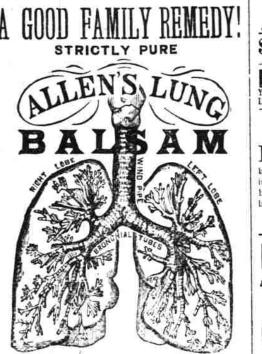

No Room for Wisdom Teeth.

The London New Quarterly Review has discovered that in the United States the degeneration of the wisdom teeth has gone further than in any European country; that the jaws are almost abnormally short; that the lower jaw is apt to be rather "under hung," and that it is becoming a common practice to remove some of the molar teeth of children, as the jaw does not grow large enough to hold the proper number.

Can Consumption Be Cured?

Read what Mr. William C. Digges, a merchant of Bowling Green, Va., writes under date of April 14th, 1881. He says: I firmly believe that Allen's Lung Balsam will and has cured consumption if taken in time and proper care be taken of the Patient both in suitable food and clothing. Six years ago my mother was attacked with pneumonia. The attending physician, "some time after," told me that the disease had settled on her Lungs and that she had the consumption. Not believing that a permanent cure could be effected, but thinking I might be able to get an expectorant not containing opium, which would afford some relief, I enquired of a druggist at Richmond, Va., if he had any medicine not containing opium, that was a good expectorant. He then recommended Allen's Lung Balsam which I purchased and induced my mother to try. Before she had taken the first bottle, the improvement in her condition was so marked that I purchased three more bottles. The attending physician seeing the beneficial effects, recommended its continued use, and in about twelve months her lungs were pronounced cured. Upon my re-commendation many others who had the con-sumption have been cured. I think you can claim for your medicine, the following: Expectoration without irritation, and healing of the lungs, by keeping them free from foreign substances, thus arresting and curing this dread disease. Mr. Digges says he writes because he wants it known that Allen's Lung Balsam is doing good.

An Overdressed Vid Lady. [London Telegraph.]

An old lady named Keylar, aged seventy, had come from Cheshunt to Liverpool street by rail and was proceeding to Broad-street Station (North London Railway), on her way to Chalk Farm, where she was to visit a relative. When she had ascended the station stairs she had a fainting of the heart and expired before a doctor could be fetched. That her death was accelerated by her being over-weighed with clothing, may be judged from the fact that she had on two chemises, two pairs of stockings, two pairs flannel drawers, two flannel petticoats, a pair of flannel linen stays. four thick petticoats, two skirts, four jackets, two crossovers, a thick woolen shawl, a fur boa, two caps and a bonnet and boots.

Ale

Great Britain never "goes back" on its ale, although these States do. In a single year the English firm of Bass paid to railways, canal companies, and other carriers, the sum of £180,102 for carriage merely. In malt tax and license duty the same house pays £236,000 a year. The yearly revenue of the kingdom derived from duty on alcoholic drinks amounts to £28,000,000 sterling. To this sum the house of Bass contributes at the rate of £780 a day. It has 543,869 casks in stock. The bottle trade is separate; 100,000,000 labels for bottles are issued in a year.

Irlumphant Argument of the Wheels

Rufus Choate once made an argument of three days to convince a jury that the car-wheel sold by the defendant was radically, intrinsically, and indubitably different from that patented by the plaintiff. Webster arose to answer, and the jurors rustled uneasily in their seats, settling themselves for another three days. But he simply tilted the two models upon the table in the jurors' sight, fixed his great magnetic eyes upon the entire twelve at once, and said : "Gentlemen of the jury, there are the wheels; look at 'em." Verdict for the plaintiff on the spot.

How Watches are Made.

It will be apparent to any one, who will examine a Solid Gold Watch, that aside from the necessary thickness for engraving and polishing, a large proportion of the precious metal used is needed only to stiffen and hold the engraved portions in place, and supply the necessary solidity and strength. The surplus wold is actually needless so far as utility and beau'y are concerned. In James Boss' Patent Gold Watch Cases, this wasta of precious metal is overcome, and the same solidity and strength produced at from one-third to one-half of the usual cost of solid cases. This process is of the most simple nature, as follows : a plate of nickle composition metal, especially adapted to the purpose, has two plates of solid gold soldered one on each side. The three are then passed between polshed steel rollers, and the result is a strip of heavy plated composition, from which the cases, backs, centres, bezels, etc., are cut and shaped by suitable dies and formers. The gold in these cases is sufficiently thick to admit of all kinds of chasing, engraving and enamelling; the ergraved cases have been carried until worn perfectly smooth by time and use without removing the gold.

This is the only Case made with two Plates of S did Gold and Warranted by Special Certificate.
