A SINGULAR CASE. A Murderer Goes Free for the Reason That He Killed His

Victim Across a State Line. RALEIGH, Dec. 29.—It may be safely said that the case of State vs. Hall, in which the opinion of the Supreme Court wasfiled yesterday, has had no parallel. Hall, stan ling just on this side of the line, fired and killed a man just over in Tennessee. He was tried and convicted in this State. On appeal this was reversed on the ground that "in contemplation of law" Hall was in Tennessee where the killing was done. He was then arrested and held as a fugitive from justice. The judge below refused to discharge him. On appeal, the Supreme court, by a majority of one, decide that he must be d.scharged because not having been in Tennessee at the time of the killing, he cannot be a fugitive from justice. Justice Clark dissents (Justice MacRae joining in the dissent) on the ground that if in contemplation of law Hall was in Tennessee at the time of the killing so that he cannot be tried in North Carolina, in the same contemplation of law he must be a fugitive from justice, for he cannot now be found in Tennessee, but in North Carolina. He says: "If a mob occupying the Jersey side of the Hudson should shell the city of New York, or from the opposite side of the Delaware should cannonade Philadelphia, under the decision of the court they would be liable to no punishment in New Jersey because "in contemplation of law" the mobs were in New York and Pennsylvania. But if it is true, as contended by counsel, that the members of the mob cannot be extradited because the mob was never in those things, and would place those cities, as well as Savannah, Memphis, St. Louis, Louisville, Cincinnati and hundreds of other border towns at through it and tied with a piece of the mercy of any mob which might range across the State line." "Civilized man must recoil from the practical ruling that the territory adjacent to the State boundaries is a no man's land,' and that n.urder is privileged if committed lead him to mill and I have known across a State line.

The two dissenting judges think that as murder has been committin North Carolina, he should be delivered up to Tenuessee to be tried; that extradition is not a criminal but a remedial statute and should be liberally constructed to effect ty of the State, at the County Site cor.
