WITTICISMS.

"As beautiful as a bust in a hair-dresser's window," is a reporter's description of a bride.

What is the longest word in the English language? Smiles. Because there is a mile between the first and last letters.

Why is it better to be burned to death than to have your head cut off? Because a hot stake is better than a cold chop.

"That beet's all" as the man said when he sat down to his first dinner in the new house, on moving day, and found the supply short.

An exchange says: "We'll ride two miles to see two brothers under twelve years of age go to bed together without having a dispute about something."

The new building of the New York Tribune is nine stories high. When a man comes in and wants to know who wrote that article, he is told that the author is on the top floor with the elevator broken.

At a fire in Trenton, N. J., a man yelled out, "Glory! glory! the last day is here!" but when a fireman knocked him in the ditch he made as much fuss about it as if the world had just commenced.

A young man who knows all about it, states that his experience has taught him that a flirt is a fool who delights in fooling fools, and the fool who is fooled by such a fool, is the foolishest kind of a fool.

"Well, Uncle Billy, don't you want any more civil rights?" "Not anything no, I thank you," replied Billy. "Nearly done ruined now! Hev to pay my own debts, I'll lost all my money in the Freedman's bank, neiber got no forty acres in de mud dey promised me, an' can't help myself a little chicken, fryin' size, without gwine to de penitentiary. Ise got 'nuff cibbil rights."

A Mississippi bootman with immense feet, stopping at a public house on the levee, asked the porter for a boot jack to pull off his boots. The colored gentleman, after examining the stranger's feet, broke out as follows: "No jack here big nuff for dem feet. Jackass couldn't pull 'em off, massa, widout fraktring de leg. Youse better go back about tree miles to de forks in de road an' pull 'em off dar."

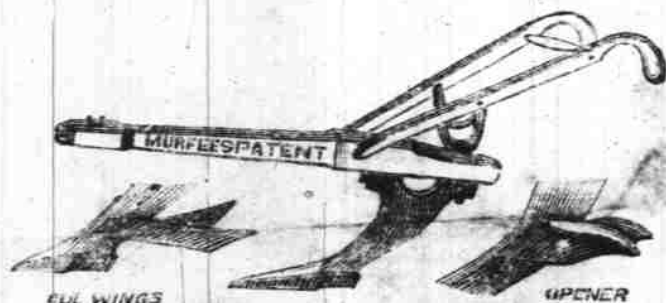

DUBLIN, June 18. Mayor Leech has presented the all Ireland challenge shield. The Americans will be allowed to compete, as they are made honorary members of the shooting club. No matter which team wins, it must be shot for next year at Philadelphia. This shield is on competition every year.

When Edwin Forrest was about to go upon the stage for the last time, he was so weak and enfeebled that his physician gave to his friend a small phial of whiskey, telling him that, if Forrest showed signs of suffering to administer it to him. When Forrest heard it, he said: "If I die on the stage, I will die; but they shall not find any rum in me." It was his last play.
