THE FREED BIRD.—BY MRS. REMANS.

Return, return, my bird! I have dressed thy cage with flowers, 'Tis lovely as a violet bank In the heart of the forest bowers.

under heaven. I must describe it like a jeweller to you, or I can never convey my impressions.

First of all, a quarter of a mile away to windward your eye is caught by an uncommonly high wave rushing right upon your track, and heaping up slowly and constantly as it comes, as if some huge animal were ploughing his path steadily and powerfully beneath the surface.

I am sure this language will seem exaggerated to you, but upon the faith of a lonely man, (the captain has turned in, and it is near midnight and a dead calm) it is a mere skeleton, a goldsmith's inventory of the reality.

LONDON.—The following lively description of London is from the pen of a correspondent of the Southern Religious Telegraph.

What a city is London. From the top of St. Paul's, an elevation of 414 feet, I have endeavored to estimate its extent. Imagine yourself on the pinnacle of your highest edifice. Survey an area of ten miles square, and, excepting the river that passes through it, crossed by numerous bridges, and covered with vessels of every description, let your city overspread the whole; that is London.

Original Pun.—Two Americans meeting in Europe, a proposition was made by one to visit one of the splendid cathedrals in the city where they then were.
