

From the New York American. What are a thousand living loves To that which cannot quit the dead?—Byron.

They bade me woo her—to broad lands They say that she is heir; And many a gem of princely worth Gleams in her raven hair. They thought I loved her—as I looked Upon her radiant face— But surely, in that saddened glance, No passion they could trace. Yet to me she is beautiful: Each smile—each thrilling tone— Brings back a smile of other days— A voice, like music's own. I gaze upon her eyes, till mine Are filled with memory's tears, She is so like the gentle girl I loved in earlier years. She stood within a lordly hall, And to the proud ones near, She sung the lay, I once so loved From other lips to hear. It seemed, as meant, to mock my heart— I could not bear to stay, And listen to that hallowed strain, Breathed in a scene so gay. And there were dark and star-like eyes, And forms of beauty rare— But my lone spirit sadly turned From mirth I could not share, To dwell beside a lowly grave. Ah! far more dear I prize The memory of my buried one Than any living love.

The poet Carpani once asked his friend Haydn "how it happened that his church music was almost always of an animating, cheerful and even gay description." To this, Haydn's answer was, "I cannot make it otherwise: I write according to the thoughts which I feel—when I think upon God, my heart is so full of joy, that the notes dance and leap as it were from my pen; and since God has given me a cheerful heart, it will be easily forgiven me that I serve him with a cheerful spirit."

The Christian Era.—The venerable Bede, the English Historian, who published his Ecclesiastical History, in the year 731, is the most ancient author whom we find using the modern date, Anno Domini. It was adopted in France under King Pepin, and fully established in the reign of Charlemagne. The custom of beginning the year on the 1st of January, commenced in France in 1564.

The Acacia Tree—Emblem of Domestic Beauty.—Tints of the white, the golden, and the red rose, are beautifully intermingled with the blossoms of the Acacia. It is found in the most retired places, and it blooms the fairest in the closeness of its own foliage. It loves the mossy rock and the solitary grove; and places away in the gay garden and crowded parterre. Nourished singe: Our rocks are rough, but smiling there The Acacia waves her yellow hair; Lonely and sweet, nor loved the less, For flowering in a wilderness— They come—thy Arab maid will be Thy loved and lone Acacia tree."

There could be no fitter emblem of a modest woman, flourishing in the retirement of home, secluded from the vanities of a "crowded life" and adorning with her bloom the abode of domestic affection.

A poet hurls himself by writing prose; as a race-horse hurls his motions, by condescending to draw in a team.—Shenstone.

There is none made so great, but he may both need the help and service, and stand in fear of the power and unkindness, even of the nearest of mortals.—Seneca.

Power of Intellect.—There is a certain charm about great superiority of intellect that winds into deep affections, which a much more constant and even amiability of manners in lesser men, often fails to reach. Genius makes many enemies, but it makes sure friends; friends who forgive much, who endure long, who exact little; they partake of the character of disciples as well as friends. There lingers about the human heart a strong inclination to look upward—to reverence: in this inclination lies the source of religion, of loyalty, and also of the worship and immortality which are rendered so cheerfully to the great of old. And, in truth, it is a divine pleasure to admire! admiration seems in some measure to appropriate to ourselves the qualities it honors in others. We wed,—we root ourselves to the nature we so love to contemplate, and their life grows a part of our own.—[Eugene Aram.]

Substitute for Lithotomy.—A highly respectable subscriber from Virginia called upon us yesterday, and exhibited a calculus from which he had been relieved on Saturday last. The operation was performed by Dr. Depreyre, without the use of a knife. In size and appearance the calculus was much like a ground-nut after taking off the husk. The patient experienced very little pain in the operation, and the second day was able to walk abroad. The instrument made use of is composed of several parts. One, in form and motion resembling a bird's claw, seizes the calculus and holds it fast, while another, set in motion by a bow and string, bores it to pieces. This mode of operating has been practised a good deal in France. It is the fourth operation of Dr. D. in this country. N. Y. Jour. Com.

The finest dressed, the most talkative, and the richest, are not always the most intelligent, though they may be the most worshipped.

A CARD.

MRS. ALEXANDER

Continues to conduct her Seminary on the popular and improved Pestalozzian Plan, now so generally acknowledged to be superior to all others in its adaptation to the younger classes of children. The advantages connected with this method of instruction, consist chiefly in the rapid improvement which it imparts to the infant mind, as well as in the systematic and fascinating organization of its operations. In our Northern Cities, where it has acquired a high reputation, the benefits resulting from this system are strikingly illustrated in the effects it has produced, and the extensive patronage which distinguishes it from all others. Parents and Guardians who are unacquainted with this mode of instruction, and who may desire to witness its operations, are respectfully informed that Mrs. ALEXANDER'S Seminary is open every Monday forenoon for the reception of visitors. Children of both sexes, from 3 to 12 years of age are received upon the following terms. For Spelling, Reading, Writing and Arithmetic, $2 50 per quarter.
