

POETRY.

THE LAND.

"I've been upon the moonlight deep,
When the wind had died away,
And like an ocean deep asleep,
The bark majestic lay;
But lovelier the varied scene—
The hill, the lake, the tree, When bathed in light of Midnight's queen—
The land! the land for me!

The glancing waves I've glided o'er, When sweetly blew the breeze;
But sweeter was the distant shore—
The zephyr 'mong the trees, The murmur of the mountain rill, The blossoms waving free,
The song of birds on every hill—
The land! the land for me!

The billows I have been among,
When they rolled in mountains dark,
And night her darkest curtain hung Around our heaving bark; But give me, when the storm is fierce, My home and fireside glee, Where winds may howl but dare not pierce—
The land! the land for me!

And when around the lightning flash'd, I've been upon the deep;
And to the gulph beneath I've dash'd Adown the liquid steep;
But now that I am safe on shore, There ever let me be—
The sea! the sea for me!

PULPIT ELOQUENCE.

Extract from Dr. Channing's Sermon on the Immortality of the Soul.

"I have thus, my hearers, endeavored to show that our nature, the more it is inquired into, discovers more clearly the impress of immortality. I do not mean that this evidence supersedes all other. From its very nature it can only be understood thoroughly by improved and purified minds. The proof of immortality, which is suited to all understandings, is found in the Gospel, sealed by the blood, and confirmed by the resurrection of Christ.
But this, I think, is made more expressive by a demonstration of its harmony with the teaching of nature. To me, nature and revelation speak with one voice, on the great theme of man's future being. Let not their joint witness be unheard.

"How full, how bright, are the evidences of this grand truth! How weak are the common arguments which scepticism arrays against it! To me, there is but one objection against immortality, if objection it may be called; and this arises from the very greatness of its truth.
My mind sometimes sinks under its weight—is lost in its immensity. I scarcely dare believe that such a good is placed within my reach.

"When I think of myself as existing through all future ages, as surviving this earth and that sky, as exempted from every imperfection and error of my present being, as clothed with an angel's glory, as comprehending with my intellect, and embracing with my affections, an extent of creation, compared with which the earth is a point; when I think of myself as looking on the outward universe with an organ of vision that will reveal to me a beauty and harmony, and order, not now imagined, and as having an access to the minds of the wise and good, which will make them, in a sense of my own; when I think of myself as forming friendships with innumerable beings of rich and various intellect, and of the noblest virtue, as introduced to the society of heaven, as meeting there the great and excellent of whom I have read in history, as joined with 'the just man perfect,' in an everlasting ministry of benevolence, as conversing with Jesus Christ, with the familiarity of friendship, and especially as having an immediate intercourse with God, such as the closest intimacies of earth shadow forth—when this thought of my future being comes to me, whilst I hope, I also fear: the blessedness seems too great; the consciousness of present weakness and unworthiness is almost too strong for hope. But when in this frame of mind, I look around on the creation, and see the marks of Omnipotent goodness, to which nothing is impossible, and from which every thing may be hoped—when I see around me the proofs of an infinite Father, who must desire the perpetual progress of his intellectual offspring—when I look next at the human mind, and see what powers a few years have unfolded, and discern in it the capacity of everlasting improvement; and especially when I look at Jesus, the conqueror of death, the heir of immortality, who has gone as the preserver of mankind, into the mansions of light and purity, I can and do admit the almost overpowering thought of the everlasting life, growth, and felicity of the human soul."

A late number of the London Athenaeum contains the annexed singular paragraph:
"Letters from Paris make mention of a work about to appear there, which it is expected will create no little bustle in the cabinet of Louis Philippe. When the Duchess of Berri was apprehended, she was so well pleased with the courtesy of Gen. Darnaud, who had commanded in La Vendee, that she intrusted to him the whole of her papers. As she refused to deliver up to the government, but now, in consequence of some disagreement, he is about to publish them under the title of 'La Vendee et Madame.' He has resolved, it is said, to state, without reserve, all he knows of the intrigues that were carried on, and among the documents will be a letter from one of the most influential Ministers of Louis Philippe to the Duchess, wherein he offers to establish her son on the throne, upon condition that she give to him; and one from another Minister apprising her that her place of concealment was known, and directing her to remove for Thun, or she would be arrested."

Men of the Revolution.—We last week saw in this town six brothers, the youngest over sixty years old.
They had not been together before since the Revolutionary war. Four of them were out in the American service in that war.—Four of them lived in this country, and are well known here;—the others in Massachusetts. They are all worthy and respected, hale and vigorous, enjoying a 'green old age,' the fruit of a temperate life, and a clean conscience.
Their names are Craig—Moses, Elias, Elijah, Jesse, Enoch and David; and they have a sister in this town, widow of the late Lewis Hamlen, also over 60.
These men of the Revolution, are an iron race, unlike the pale dyspeptics, and chicken-fated dandies of the present day.—[Augusta (Me.) Journal.

benefits. Persons disposed to purchase, are invited to call and examine the machine, at

JOSEPH BELL.

From the Nashville Banner.

FAMILY STEAMER.—Scarcely have we ever seen a little apparatus so admirably adapted, for its simplicity, its easy application, and its various and important uses, to the convenience and comfort of the next and industrious house-wife, as that which has recently fallen under our notice with the above appropriate title. It is a portable steam generator, who principal object is to assist in cleaning and preserving cleanliness, to destroy noxious insects and vermin, and to prevent their increase. It is used without trouble or inconvenience, and supercedes the annoying application of water in many cases. That vexatious but indispensable ceremony, which is after all too often neglected, the cleaning of bedsteads, may be performed most thoroughly by the aid of this apparatus, without taking them apart or removing them, and without the slightest injury to the floor or carpet upon which they stand. Not a bug or other insect can possibly escape the searching and destructive power of this instrument. For cleansing furniture, removing spots from paint, purifying varnish, cleaning windows and looking-glasses, picture frames, maps, &c. it is most completely adapted. Its penetrating power is truly wonderful. The smallest crack or fissure may be thoroughly hit, searched, and every thing harbored there effectually removed. It may be used at, too, to destroy worms, which so often infest fruit trees, without injuring the trees themselves; and to remove skippers from bacon without affecting the meat. In fine, in those numerous essential family operations, which, while they contribute to neatness, health, and comfort, are so often full of trouble and vexation to the matron, and to all about her, it is an almost invaluable auxiliary, and when it shall be introduced into general use, we have no doubt it will rank among the most valuable and indispensable articles of household economy. It is capable likewise of being employed in many cooking operations to great advantage over the common manner. The price is only five dollars.
