

POETRY.

NIGHT.

Night is the time to rest;
How sweet, when labours close,
To gather round an aching breast
The curtain of repose:

Night is the time for dreams.
The gray romance of life,
When truth that is and truth that seems,
Blend in fantastic strife;

Night is the time for toil,
To plough the classic field,
Intent to find the buried spoil
Its wealthy furrows yield;

Night is the time to watch;
On ocean's dark expanse,
To hail the Pleiades, or catch
The full-moon's earliest glance;

Night is the time for care;
Brooding on hours misspent,
To see the spectre of despair
Come to our lonely tent;

Night is the time to muse;
Then from the eye the soul
Takes flight, and with expanding views
Beyond the starry pole,

Night is the time to pray;
Our Saviour oft withdrew
To desert mountains far away,
So will his followers do;

Night is the time for death;
When all around is peace,
Calmly to yield the weary breath,
From sin and suffering cease;

Think of heaven's bliss, and give the sign
To parting friends—such death be mine!

INSURANCE.—Sea-burking.—This is a name given to a crime of extreme civilization: just as land-burking springs out of science and humanity, so sea-burking takes its origin in mutual distress. Advantage of this is taken to insure unseaworthy vessels for a sum...

ALI PACHA'S DIAMOND.—The following relation gives us a famous illustration of the doctrine that second thoughts are best: "In 1840, the Porte, after being foiled in several attempts to release itself from this too powerful servant (Ali Pacha) set a price upon his head, and sent Redschid Pacha with a large army to take it. Janina was besieged and reduced to great extremities. However, Ali's immense wealth, the fruit of half a century of rapacity, still afforded him great resources; and if he could only have resolved to distribute it with liberality, he might even then have turned away his fate. As it was, the siege was prolonged for several months, till at length the Albanians, disgusted with the increasing avarice of their master, deserted in great numbers. Ali then retired to a small fort which he had built on an island in the lake, leaving a faithful slave, with a loaded pistol and several barrels of gunpowder, in the cellars of his palace, where his treasures were concealed, with orders to blow up the building if he did not receive every day, at a certain hour, a written message from him to the contrary. While on the island, Redschid Pacha contrived to persuade the old rebel that he was his friend and wished him well, and might perhaps be able, in the case of immediate submission, to procure his pardon from the Porte. They had several interviews, and in the last of these, Ali had accompanied his visitor to the door, and was politely bowing him away, when Redschid Pacha drew a pistol and wounded him in the arm. Ali instantly drew his sabre, and made a cut at the assassin; but the weapon caught in the top of the door, and Redschid escaped. The unfortunate Pacha then shut the door, and retired to the divan, writhing in pain from his wound. He saw his time was come, and turning to Captain D'Anglos, an Englishman who had been with him for some time, and was present at the scene, he requested him most earnestly to poi on Vasilika, his favorite wife, that she might not fall into the hands of the enemy, and at the same time gave him a large diamond, said to be worth thirty thousand pounds, and desired him to pound it to pieces in his presence. Captain D'Anglos took the diamond, and, in the simplicity of his heart, began to pound away with great zeal and vigour; and it was not, he declared, till the gem was utterly destroyed, that he was struck with the idea how far more sensible it would have been to have put it into his waistcoat pocket, when there was no one near to see or prevent him, and when Ali was lying on the divan almost insensible with pain. He had not been long in this situation when a shot came through the floor below, struck him in a vital part, and his assassin, entering the room, cut off his head and sent it, as is customary, to Constantinople. The unlucky captain was so overwhelmed with a sense of shame at his want of savoir faire, that he subsequently avowed the crime and hanged himself in his dungeon for months after. Vasilika still survives; we saw her at Janina as she was walking out to visit a friend."—Sketches in Greece and Turkey.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT. April 12th, 1833. IN the late conflagration of the Treasury building, nearly all the correspondence of the Secretary of the Treasury, from the establishment of the Department to the 31st March, 1833, was destroyed including, as well the original letters and communications addressed to the Secretary of the Treasury, as the records of the letters and communications written by him. With a view to repair the loss, as far as may be practicable, all officers of the United States, are requested to cause copies to be prepared, and authenticated by them, of any letters (excepting those hereinafter alluded to, which they may at any time have written to) or received from, the Secretary of the Treasury; and all those who have been in office, and other individuals throughout the United States, are invited to do the same. That this correspondence may be arranged into appropriate books, it is requested that it be copied on folio foolscap paper, with a sufficient margin on all sides to admit of binding, and that no more than one letter be contained on a leaf. It is also requested, that the copies be written in a plain and distinct or engraving hand. Where the original letter can be spared it would be preferred. The reasonable expense incurred in copying the papers now requested, not exceeding the rate of ten cents for every hundred words, will be defrayed by the Department. The correspondence which has been saved, and of which, therefore, no copies are desired, are the records of the letters written by the Secretary of the Treasury to Presidents and Cashiers of Banks, from the 1st October, 1819, to the 20th February, 1833; all the correspondence relating to Revolutionary claims under the act of 15th May, 1828, and to claims of Virginia officers to half pay, under the act of 5th July, 1832; and to applications for the benefits of the acts of the 2d March, 1831, and 14th July, 1832, for the relief of certain insolvent debtors of the United States. Copies of some circular letters and instructions, written by the Secretary, have also been preserved, and it is requested that, before a copy be made of any circular letter or instruction, written by the Secretary of the Treasury, the date and object of the circular be first stated to the Department, and its wishes on the subject ascertained. LOUIS McLANE, Secretary of the Treasury.

FAMILY STEAMERS. The subscriber has obtained the right of vending in the Counties of Craven, Jones, Carteret & Hyde, MORNING'S CELEBRATED FAMILY STEAMER, For Steaming BEDSTEDS, ROOMS, &c. This article is admirably adapted to the uses for which it is intended, and families will find it to their advantage to avail themselves of its benefits. Persons disposed to purchase, are invited to call and examine the machine, at the Washington Hotel, where it may be seen in successful operation. JOSEPH BELL. From the Nashville Banner. FAMILY STEAMER.—Scarcely have we seen a little apparatus so admirably adapted for its simplicity, its easy application, and its various and important uses, to the convenience and comfort of the neat and industrious house-wife, as that which has recently fallen under our notice. The above apparatus is a portable steam generator, who principal object is to assist in cleaning and preserving cleanliness, to destroy noxious insects and vermin, and to prevent their increase. It is used without trouble or inconvenience, and supercedes the annoying application of water in many cases. That verminous but indispensible crew, which is after all too often inefficient, the cleaning of bedsteads, may be performed most thoroughly by the aid of this apparatus, without taking them as art or removing them, and without the slightest injury to the floor or carpet upon which they stand. A bag or other insect can possibly escape the searching and destructive power of this instrument. For cleaning furniture, removing spots from paint, purifying varnish, cleaning windows and looking-glasses, picture frames, maps, &c. it is most completely adapted. Its penetrating power is truly wonderful. The smallest crack or fissure may be thoroughly searched, and every thing harboured there effectually removed. It may be used, too, to destroy worms, which so often infest fruit trees, without injuring the trees themselves, and to remove skippers from bacon without affecting the meat. In fact, in those numerous essential family operations, which, while they contribute to neatness, health, and comfort, are so often full of trouble and vexation to the matron, and to all about her, it is an almost invaluable auxiliary, and when it shall be introduced into general use, we have no doubt it will rank among the most valuable and indispensable articles of housewifery. It is capable likewise of being employed in many cooking operations to great advantage. It will, for example, boil-eggs or potatoes with great ease, and in the most excellent manner. The price is only five dollars.
