

JOSEPH A. HARRIS, Editor. R. C. NIGHTINGALE, Print.

GARFIELD is elected President, having swept the entire North, but by what majority it is not known as there are States from which the official returns have not yet been received.

FROM present indications Jarvis' majority will be somewhere in the neighborhood of 7,000. Why his majority this year was not greater than Vance's in 1876, we fail to understand, as he has made an excellent Governor.

THE making of a Cabinet for Garfield began before he was elected and the manufacturers are still at work. A Washington dispatch to the New York Herald says:

"So far, counting Mr. Ten Harrison for the State Department; Mr. Sherman, Treasury; Mr. Platt, Post-office; General Logan, Interior; and James F. Wilson, Attorney General, five of the seven Cabinet places are provided for by the gossips. But there is some expectation here that Mr. Garfield may offer the Secretaryship of War to General Grant. The General's friends say he really did immense service in the canvass; that he ought to be rewarded; that he likes Washington and has a house here; that he could scarcely afford to go abroad on a foreign mission; that he wants something to do, and that, in short, the War Department ought to be given him. There are others who urge that he ought to have the Department of State and that he would prefer this of all the Cabinet places."

PRESIDENT HAYES has appointed Thursday, 29th instant, as a day of Thanksgiving. In his proclamation he says:

"At no period in their history since the United States became a Nation has this people had so abundant and so universal reasons for the joy and gratitude at the favor of Almighty God, or been so justly so proud as obligation to give thanks for his loving kindness and bounty to improve His commandments and protection; Health, wealth and prosperity throughout all our borders; peace, honor and friendship with all the world; firm and faithful adherence by the great body of our population to the principles of liberty and justice, which have made our greatness as a Nation, and to the wise institutional and strong frame of Government and society which will perpetuate it; and all these at the thanks of a happy and united people, as with one voice, ascend in devout homage, to the favor of all good."

I therefore recommended that on Thursday, the twenty-ninth day of November next, the people meet in their respective places of worship to make their acknowledgments to Almighty God for His bounties and His protection, and to enter into His prayers for their continuance."

The Wilmington Star says that according to the New York Times Garfield will have a popular majority of 76,287. Some of our Democratic exchanges North of us have been claiming over 100,000. In New York Grace is elected Mayor by not more than 1,900. And the feeling against Kelly is on the increase. Justly or otherwise he is made a scape-goat of the party. The special to the Philadelphia Times says:

"The Tammany Democracy have issued an address to their brethren throughout the country lamenting the defeat of General Hancock as a national calamity and attributing it to fraud, the colonization of speakers and the intimidation of listening men. In support of this they ask that the vote of New York city be scrutinized and compared with the vote of 1876, when the Democrats cast 122,530 ballots and the Republicans cast 123,102 and the Republicans 81,726, showing a Republican increase of 23,165 and a Democratic increase of 19,572. The independent press of the city of New York is assailed and made partly responsible for the disaster. The address also declares that the nomination of Mr. Grace is a gross wrong and that Hancock's vote."

Our State Legislature will convene on the 3rd day of January being the first Wednesday.

North Carolina News.

The next census would have shown a citizen of Wake county 114 years old. It Hagar Outlaw had not taken it into her head to go on the road in the month of the year she was 113 years old. She was born on the 1st of January, 1867, and is now 114 years old. She is a native of Hillsborough, N. C., and is now living in Hillsborough.

Lambert Robinson, Mr. Joseph P. Cannon's young man about twenty years ago, and a native of Hillsborough, but for about twenty years a resident of Shaw Head, following the business of a salaried man, was stabbed through the heart and almost instantly killed Saturday night by Peter Hines, an negro. He made his escape and is still at large.

Fayetteville Examiner: On Friday a colored boy by the name of Robin Scott, about fourteen years of age, went into the stall of Mr. William H. Tomlinson, in the market place of this town, and was ordered out by James Reynolds, an employe of Mr. Tomlinson, but refused to go. Whenupon Reynolds pushed him in the direction of the door way. The colored boy drew a knife and stabbed Reynolds in the neck, inflicting a serious though not dangerous wound.

Raleigh Evening Visitor: As a passenger train on the North Carolina Railroad bound West was near Princeton a negro man was discovered lying across the track. Air brakes were put on and the engine stopped. The engine stopped in three feet of the negro. (He was approached by engineer Swan and woke up. The first question the negro asked was "Where is my bundle?" He didn't have enough generosity in his heart to thank the engineer for stopping the engine in time to save his life.

Elizabeth City Economist: Nearly every house on our coast presents a busy scene of activity, the women and children making nets, the men building batteries, painting scud ducks, &c., getting ready for fishing and ducking, which commenced on the 1st of November. Will toy are now abundant in Currituck Sound, and the whistle of the duck, the honk of the goose, and the whoop of the swan are heard at every turn. Taylor and Hampton killed 128 ducks in two days in October, 15th and 19th. The Independent Fish Company commenced fishing for rockfish last week, with a good prospect for a successful season. They fish a "purse net," making about four fishings a day. They catch about two hundred pounds some days. The catching rockfish lasts until the middle of the month.

Wilmington Star: There are dawdles among certain papers in New York that Hancock is elected against Garfield. The Republican papers intimate very pointedly that Garfield by Congress there will be no mistake. Whilst we have plenty of doubt that the Radical party would have no idea there will be no mistake. The country submitted to a great deal of trouble, when it had found out the cause for a grand fight, and there will be hardly a small settlement now. The Radical Co. is elected in the Fourth District by 13,100 majority. Latham's majority in the First District is over 800, but the great vote has not been received. C. A. Arvild is elected in the seventh by over 2,300 majority. May for Clem Dewald's majority in the Fifth is thought to be 3,000. North Carolina has seven Democrats in the House certain.

The Ute Troubles.

THE UTE TROUBLES. THE UTE TROUBLES. THE UTE TROUBLES. THE UTE TROUBLES. THE UTE TROUBLES.

Galt writes to the Cincinnati Enquirer the following thrilling account of the battle of Jackson, the first fight of the Utes.

M. James Schurz, who has just returned from Colorado, thus relates the present Indian difficulty there, which is threatening to take hold of the Territory. "I was a trapper, fifteen miles from the late Ute encampment. It was a horrible occurrence, and cannot fail, notwithstanding what Carl Schurz says, to drive the Utes out of the Territory. A wagoner, called out there a freighter, was hauling goods over a distance of one hundred miles or more. His name was Jackson, and he is represented as being a hard working, respectable man. With him was his son and nobody else. They had encamped for the night, when there came riding up to them at full speed two Indians, each with a Henry rifle, and one was the son of the chief of the Ute band. These Indians were drunk and horribly abusive. They damned the white men for dogs and slaves, and demanded that they go fetch water for them to drink. The white man in that country are not fond of slaying for Indians, but the old man said to his son: "Never mind, get the pail and go dip them some water and bring it to them. The Indians, still sitting on their horses with their rifles across their knees, drank the water, and then continued: "G—d—n white dogs! Make fire and cook supper for Injun," following it by every epithet Indians could recollect from white men, and at the same time sullenly tapping their rifles. The old man said to his son: "We might just as well die right here to be cursed and ordered about any more. Go get your rifle son."

The rifle lay in the wagon box at the tail of the wagon, and the boy took out the rifle and sighted it on the wagon-longue, only intending to shoot as a last resort. But the chief's son, looking around and seeing the boy at aim, instead of starting off, in which case he would not have been harmed, slipped the tube of the breach of his rifle and felt for a cartridge, showing that he meant to shoot the boy and his father; but before he could get his gun raised the boy shot him dead, and the other Indian rode off at full speed. Then these two men, who had been quietly attending to their business, had to mount their horses and ride to the nearest post and Indian agency, four or five miles distant. They had not been there long before the Utes came galloping up, and the Indian agent, a fellow named Berry, deliberately gave both that man and boy over to the Indians, who took them away and tortured them to death. They hung them up by their feet, mutilated their persons, and after inflicting various cruelties, cut their throats. Such a condition of things, existing in a country as vigorous as Colorado, with about a half a million of people, and with a capital town of nearly fifty thousand inhabitants, inflamed the population to the highest degree. The Indian agents were arrested and will be tried for giving up these men. The people are going to have no more of the Utes in Colorado.

Significance of Personal Beauty.

A beautiful person is the natural form of a beautiful soul. The mind takes precedence of the body and shapes the body to its own likeness. A vacant mind takes all the meaning out of the fairest face. A sensual disposition detaches the handsomest features. A cold, selfish heart shrivels and distorts the best looks. A man, groveling spirit takes all the dignity out of the figure and all the character out of the countenance. A corrupted intellect transmits the most beautiful ideas into an image of ugliness. It is as impossible to preserve good looks with a brood of bad passions feeding on the blood, as it is for a low loves tramping through the heart, and a selfish, distasteful spirit enshrouding in the will, as to preserve the beauty of an elegant mansion with a litter of swine in the basement, a tribe of gypsies in the parlor, and oars and catheads in the upper part. Cleanliness and beauty will no more keep company a great while than paper will consort with health, or an elegant evening survive the presence of the flea. The experiment of putting them together has been tried for thousands of years, but with no envying result. There is no scepter like the mind. There is nothing that so refines, polishes and ennobles face and mind as the constant presence of great thoughts. The man who lives in the region of ideas, moonbeams though they be, becomes idealized. There are no arts, no gymnastics, no cosmetics which can contribute a life so much to the dignity, the strength, the ennobling of a man's looks as a great purpose, a high determination, a noble principle, an unquenchable enthusiasm. But more powerful still than any of these as a beautifier of the person is the overmastering purpose and prevailing disposition of kindness in the heart. All that is the organizing force in the human constitution. Woman is kinder than man because she has more affection than man. Loveliness is the result of love. Kindness, with a prevailing desire and the emotional body a temple of the Holy Ghost. The soul that is full of pure and generous affections fashions the features into its own angelic likeness, as the rose by inherent impulse grows in grace and blossoms into loveliness which art cannot equal.

ESTIMATED POPULATION OF THE WORLD.

The present population of the entire globe may be estimated at 1,450,000,000. This is a number almost beyond the grasp of persons who are not very conversant with arithmetical calculations. Suffice it to say that the population of London taken in its widest sense, is 4,000,000, and that, consequently, the whole world contains only 364 times as many persons as the metropolis of the British empire. If the numbers are arranged in the order of the great division of the globe, Asia, with its 374,000,000 of inhabitants, stands first on the list, followed by Europe, with less than half as many, viz: 315,000,000; Africa less, 200,000,000; and America only 55,000,000, while Australia and Polynesia contains 4,000,000, and the Polar regions only 2,000,000. These numbers added together, with the fractions we have omitted, give the grand total of 1,450,000,000. If we divide into the population of the different countries of Europe we find that Great Britain and Ireland, with its 42,000,000, is by no means the most populous, for Germany is estimated at 41,000,000; Austrian Hungary at 38,000,000; and France at 36,000,000. Among the smallest kingdoms Denmark has about half the population of London, namely, only a few thousand over 2,000,000; Switzerland has 2,000,000 more; Belgium, one of the densest populated kingdoms, has 5,500,000; Sweden 4,300,000; Spain 16,000,000; and Portugal nearly 5,000,000. Russia is sparsely in proportion to its extent, the whole population of its immense area only amounting to 85,000,000. But perhaps the most striking results of these investigations lie in the fact that the handful of British in Asia control the destinies of 240,000,000 of natives. In America the United States is by far the greatest power, the population of Brazil coming next, with 11,000,000.

WHAT WE SHOULD DO!—Since the election is now over, let us turn our attention to matters material to the improvement and development of our waste paper. We have a generous soil that responds kindly to all our well directed labors, a climate of the most salubrious, where more can we wish? We are free to go with wherever we list, and to engage in what ever business we like. 'Tis a free country. Our farmers have made us rich, and have laid the foundation and control the present year, in fact, it is said that the crops are finer than those of any year since the war. Then let us forget the title of the old strain, and turn our attention to other matters of more importance. Let us go bravely to work, and improve our stock, put our lands in a higher state of cultivation, and hold that proud place as the home of being called the best farmers in the State. It is only by delving in the soil that plenty is reached, and with plenty comes happiness.—Tarboro Southerner.
