boat sanguine of our planters. I have but little doubt, that there are very few among quent complaints of the carelessness of post them that will realise half as much as they now expect to make, although there are not many who expect to exceed, or even equal, their last year's crop.—The April frost and snow; the defective stands; the grassiness anti backwardness of the crops from these causes, (being three, weeks later then usual.) would, of themselves render so avrages proway have been, the two long cold spells of before this. We expect to be in Salisbury weather, the heavy floods of rain, which we soon. have lately had, have entirely dispelled them, and the fact stands revealed to the most of them, that crips must be short, and I should think exceedingly short

The pine lands will yield little or nothing, and I have no doubt, that in three weeks the remnant of the Cotton growing on them will be destroyed by rust and premature exteliation. The red lands will perhaps, do something better .- Ch. Mercury, 23d inst.

No Abolitionism, Sectarianism, Bigotry,

We shall fearlessly support the cardinal principles of Civil and Religious Liberty, as founded by the Illustrious Statesmen of the Revolution; oppose all those unjust arrange ments in society (that now prevail so extensively) as dangerous to the true liberties, of the People and hostile to the dearest interests of the Commonwealth; and thus guard against any encroachment upon the Individual Rights of each State as guaranteed by the Constitution.

In view of the encroachments that are attempted to be made by misguided and unprincipled persons in the North against the Institutions of our Southern Brethern, it becomes the duty of every Newspaper Editor, clearly to define his positions on this important point. For our part we will maintain the rights and interests of the South with the same independence and devotion that we would those of the North, if they were assailed. We know no geographical distinctions, and will not be a party to any scheme that may tend to weaken this Union or jeopardize the safety of any of its members.
