THE DAILY ERA.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 22, 1873.

Local and News Department.

Cotton Market. Up to 4 P. M., to-day there had been 23 bales of cotton brought to this city. Ordinary, 17 Good ordinary, 17 1/2 Low middling, 18 Price in New York 20 1/2. Gold at 13 1/2.

News from one of the Heirs of the Old Cape Fear Pilot.

Mr. Ann Robinson of Charleston, S. C., writes the following to our Secretary of State: "I write in reply to an advertisement which came out in the Charleston Courier. I am one of his granddaughters. He was my mother's father. He was a pilot on the Cape Fear and also a soldier and served through the whole revolution war. My mother died the 10th of February 1872. She left six daughters. As far as we know we are his nearest relatives. There is another one of his grandchildren living in North Carolina. There are old North Carolinians here in Charleston who are ready to prove that I am his grandchild." Now see what printers ink will do! We set this item afeeling for some of the heirs not three weeks ago and here it is. The Charleston Courier by copying it has "skereed" one up. Well, if we never get rich at it, its a pity.

Attention, Road Overseer.

We call the attention of the overseer to the horrible condition of the Rankin road leading past the Insane Asylum. Of an evening we are told that you can't walk the road at all for the mud, but have to go over on the asylum grounds. The hill past Joe King's known as the Asylum hill is impassable for wagons most any time of day, and also the road as far as Walnut creek. This creek too is impassable for foot passengers unless when very low, there being nothing save a round log to walk on, and that very knotty. Persons passing that way every day have to wade it half up to their knees. The ford where the wagons pass is also in very bad condition; you go up to the wagon hubs on this side of the creek as soon as you enter, and even when you are in it you are liable to be upset. It is alike im- portant to the trade of this city and to the advantage of the country people that our roads be carefully worked and all fords and crossings be kept in easy and passable order.

Suicide in Wake County.

A WOODCUTTER'S MANIA. Thomas Lawrence Cuts a Tree Down and Lies Down Under it to be Crushed to Death.

Our correspondent in Buckhorn Township, this county, writes us the following: On Tuesday the 16th instant Thomas R. Lawrence was in his new grounds cutting down rail timber, and late in the evening he cut down a red oak tree supposed to make 16 rails to the cut and went and laid down under it as it was about to fall, and it fell across his neck and shoulders and killed him instantly. He was badly mashed, his collar bone broken and the blood running out at his ears. Before he had cut it down he had cut and rolled all the logs out of the way and fixed him a smooth place to lie down at so that the tree might fall flat on the ground. Just a few minutes before, he called to his little son who was with him and sent him to lap up some small trees which he had cut down, by this arrangement placing the father and son a small distance apart from each other, and so that they could not conveniently see one another. After the tree had fallen the boy not hearing his father cutting, ran to see about it, and found him lying about five feet from the stump under near the butt end of the tree, dead. He had cut the tree half down before dinner and he and his son had gone to dinner and come back to cutting, and it was late in the evening before he threw himself under it. Mr. Lawrence leaves a wife and five children, and he was a loving and affectionate husband and provided well for his family. All who knew him were his friends and he was deacon of Olive's Chapel Baptist church beloved by the brethren generally. No cause is known why he committed the deed. He had talked with several of his neighbors and told them that he was not right in his mind and that he himself couldn't tell the cause why he was so troubled at times, and at some times worse than others. On Monday evening before he killed himself on Tuesday he was at work down in the field and failed to come to the house till nearly dark. His wife got uneasy about him and went to look for him, and as she went along she thought of a big hole of water in the creek, and she went there, and while looking about for him she saw him away up a stooping tree barefooted. She threw up her hands and screamed to him to come down, which he did, and ran to her and threw his arms around her and cried like a child, and begged her, "never to tell it, he would never do so any more."

Rockingham County—Reidsville, &c.

Wentworth, the county seat of Rockingham, is the same old place. Browdy Whitmore is going to leave here and goes to Reidsville to make his home. Although Browdy weighs some two hundred and stays close at home, he has never seen the day he couldn't run his old fist into his breeches pocket and "skcer" up some twenty-five to thirty thousand dollars. Wentworth can't well get along without Browdy. A grand tobacco ball comes off Monday night (last night) at the new warehouse just finished of Oaks and Allen. The ball tickets were gotten up in splendid style, printed in Richmond, and the Richmond band is to make the music.

Mr. P. Richardson has just finished a large and splendid brick store that stands close by the warehouse. Our popular representative, David Settle, has been sick, but is now ready for work, and ere this has reported for duty to the legislature in our city. By the way, Dave had a "wild goose chase" during the holidays. He and Dr. Rains and others went out on horseback for a big bird hunt, and on the river bank they spied a large flock of wild geese sunning themselves. Dave as in all things else took the lead, and told them to hearken to him and he'd show them how to get the geese. So he deployed them just under the high banks, while he rode his horse softly, gun in hand, and with the yell of a Comanche to frighten them up, and thus bag the whole flock. He got nearly on them, then spurred his gay little mare, yelled like a crazy man, and bang, bang, went his gun. What with the fluttering of the heavy geese in his little mare's face, and the noise and smell of brimstone about her ears, she straightened her tail and took off in one way, while the geese flew in the other. The gun went up like a sky rocket, and just as the mare went to leap an old ditch that the conscripts used to hide in, one of the stirrups gave way, and Dave and his mare set up a gymnasium gallery in the air. The geese in the meanwhile swimming quietly across the river. You may discover that he walks a little lame and that one of his ribs is a little loose, but otherwise, he was entirely recovered when he left our midst.

Roosting in a Pullman Car.

As the Pullman sleeping car on the North Carolina road reached Greensboro the other night a fine large hen was lifted off from under the trucks where she had gone to roost at Charlotte. The man who changed the trucks at Greensboro took the old lady in. We believe in such happenings. Now we've no doubt that man was a hard working poor and honest man with a numerous family and he wanted a chicken. And when the cars reached Greensboro, there it was, without money and without price. Such instances do happen.

Our City.

From what we hear on the streets representative Badger did himself much credit yesterday in his speech on removing Gov. Holden's disabilities. Men of both parties pronounce it an able and completely prepared effort.

On Monday evening next, the 27th inst., Hon. J. J. Hickman, R. W. G. C., of Kentucky, will deliver a Temperance Address, in Metropolitan Hall, at 7 1/2 o'clock. Let everybody hear the eloquent orator. Admission free.

The sunshine to-day is beautiful. How nice it is when you have no over- coat and are out of wood to warm your shins against it. Give us a goods box to sit on and a jackknife to whittle with such a day as this, and how we can talk about things and all that kind of thing.

The Finance Committee are busily engaged in perfecting a revenue act for the next fiscal year. The chairman of the joint committee brings to bear a good deal of experience in financial matters, and we have no doubt the bill will meet the wants of the treasury and be satisfactory to the people.

A beautiful little pointer puppy, so thoroughly blooded that its keen little tail quivers and wiggles like a tadpole when its nose scents a merry, warbling bird, has been brought all the way by member from the West for Dr. Black- nall of the Yarboro. Its bark is not bitter as peruvian, but is as sweet as chewing gum.

Victoria Pool, the white woman par- doned out of the penitentiary, was caught stealing meat in the store of G. T. Stronach, last night. Vick is not de- tained here as a witness, but the real truth is, "Viccy" is strapped and hasn't the funds to leave on. And besides being as poor as the ridgebone of a horse with epizooty, Viccy is said to suffer with the hysterical desquamans that fashionable ladies often happen to when their hubbles come home drunk.

One State.

WILMINGTON barbers don't work on Sundays.

WRITE a number of the colored editors of Rutherford have left for the Atlantic Railroad.

We learn that the Infirmary of Dr. H. Hunter in Goldsboro is crowded with cancer patients.

The horrid man of the Ruther- ford Record says he will be "glad to publish any death that may occur around and about."

THE lower limbs of Mr. Steele of Fayetteville are still paralyzed, but he promises to recover and be able to re- sume his business duties.

Mr. Wallace, grand nephew of ex-President James K. Polk, and aged 65, and for forty years a member of Su- gar Creek Presbyterian Church, has died in Mecklenburg county. Deceased remarkable for the sweetness of temper and other amiable virtues that adorned him.

HARDLY any State papers this morning and those that we got we have to put under a hydraulic ram and squeeze the news out. If we could, we would put a town pump on every coun- try paper in the State and make the editors work three hours a day at the handle.

TAKE a chisel to it: The Char- lotte Observer says: A carpenter in this city has found a swift and easy way to cure corns. He placed the sharp edge of a coal chisel on his toe just behind the corn and struck it a blow with a mallet. It hurt the toe a little, to be cut, but it cured the corn.

Personal Intelligence.

Mayor Stokely of Philadelphia is ill with pneumonia.

Gen. A. M. Scales of Greensboro, who the people like, is at the Yarboro.

Judge Colt, one of the Supreme Court Judges in Massachusetts, is in the small pox hospital at Roxbury sick with that disease.

Senator Logan has introduced a bill for erecting a monument at Salisbury, this State, to the Federal soldiers who died in prison there during the war.

Lytton Bulwer, the English statesman and novelist, is dead. Marrat; Lever, Thackeray, Charles Dickens, and now Bulwer. Who will take their place in England?

Auditor Crump of the North Carolina Division of the Richmond and Danville Railroad, one of the best business men in the South, and also S. E. Allen the gen- erally General Ticket Agent for that road, are at the Yarboro.

Ex-Gov. Holden walks these streets the most quiet and inoffensive looking man and shakes hands with more old county folks, who don't seem to be "skereed," of any man we ever saw, to wear a muzzle on his mouth and be locked up and unlocked at the will of the legislature. What's the matter?—Are they afraid if he but open his mouth the votes of the people will be swallow- ed up? Surely not. Then, Oh dear, what can the matter be?

Twigs.

A little girl of eight or ten summers, being asked what dust was, replied that it was mud with the juice squeezed out.

—Josh says: I don't know az I want to bet any money, and give odds, on the man who iz alwuz anxious to pra out loud every chance he kan git.

—If there is anybody under the can- ister of heaven that I have in utter ex- creescence," says Mrs. Partington, "it is the slander going about like a boy con- strictor, circulating his calomel upon honest folks."

—A Georgia judge married a runaway couple from Alabama the other day, and at the conclusion of the ceremony the groom whispered: "Judge, be as light as you can; I haven't much money, and am far from home."

—The following official epistle is ad- dressed to Mr. Creswell's Department by a Postmaster in Bear Valley, Wis: "Dear Sir, I am lame By Reason of Pa- ralisis & Cant be carid out Does in Cold weather No Justice of the Peace Less than 3 miles My Returns are Be- lieved to be Correct—I would resign the Office but I cant git no one to take the Horse Concern of my hands."

Fists.

The moon has been cutting a strange caper in Illinois. The Rockford Register of the 14th says: At two o'clock this morning, one of the most wonder- ful sights was presented in the sky that we have ever witnessed. The moon was surrounded by a large ring, which was crossed at exact right angles by two bars of light, having all the colors of the rainbow. In other parts of the heavens were seen dimly shaped rings of vari- ous sizes. The moon did not shine very brightly at the time.

A young lady from Alexan- dria (Va.) is spending the winter in Richmond. She writes from that city to the paper in that town that some day she and about a dozen other Rich- mond girls are going to make a raid on the legislature now in session in Rich- mond. She says they are determined to turn the few unmarried members of that body to some use among them. It seems they don't fly around enough as beaux. And the same may be said of those good looking young chaps here in our legislature. We have yet to see the first one with his arm crook and a pity patty little gloved hand resting in it. But listen to this young charmer, what she says of the Speaker: "In the House, first of all, there is Mr. Speaker; of course, as he is already a beau, we won't besiege him, but no small share of my glances will fall to his lot, as you well know, for notwithstanding your dissent I still think there never was given to man such beautiful hair, lovely eyes, handsome figure, and graceful manners as he possesses. I believe I've been in love with him ever since that day we first met him on Staunton's old street. There are about six unmarried men in the House, but I can tell about them better, after I have seen them. I'm tired now, but promise to write you all about our capitol joust next week."

Hil'em again, Mr. Beecher. Unstrip your backs ye vain men and let the lash smart you. Read: Men flatter each other to be flattered, praise to be praised; and so then comes in falseness in entertainments, falseness in social life, falseness in friendship. Men make sumptuous reports. You are invited as a guest. Is it because you are wanted? Is it to make you happy that the table is spread royally? that the gorgeous hand opens its portals alive with gayety and every appliance that can tickle fancy? And all that this beneficence may be conferred on you? Oh, fool you are thus only to appreciate the motive of all this praise him.—And as your hospitality is a sham and a delusion, and as our Saviour says, when thou makest a feast don't go and invite those that can give just as big dinners as you and invite you in turn, you tickle me and I will tickle you, you dine me and I will dine you, but go in- to the highways for your guests. And so with friendships; very many men there are that when they were on the crest of the wave had troops of friends, but when they went down into the trough of the sea where were they all gone? So with the men that write under the itch of vanity. I fancy no man ever makes a mark even with a slate pencil that something of himself does not go into that mark. And so when a man is vain whatever he does carries the marks of that vanity, and there never can be the strength that goes with sincerity in the writings of such a man; power and strength do not belong to a literature that has been corrupted by love of praise and vanity.

COMMUNISTS SHOT. PARIS, Jan. 22.—Feuoreilly, Decamp, and Beut, Communists, were shot early this morning on Sartory plain. Feuoreilly died without uttering a word. Decamp's last words were: "I die as- sassinated! Down with false witnesses, lawyers, and Thiers." Beut died cheering the Republic, the Commune, and the army." Only one volley was fired, as all died instantaneously. There were but few spectators on the ground to witness the execution.

THE ERA.

The close of the National Campaign of 1872, with the re-election of President Grant, is a

in North Carolina, the South, and the whole country, it is worth while to take note of, for it marks the beginning of an era of perfect throughout the whole country, and between every section of the country. Believing that "peace had her vic- tories no less renowned than war," and that the conduct of the Southern people can be as illustrious in peace as the bravery of her soldiers was in war, grand and heroic illustrations in the late war; and that in the person of ULYSSES S. GRANT, the soldier with whom our LEE crossed swords, we have a living and illustrious example of the renown of the soldier in war, and the victories of the civilian in peace, from a Southern stand point has endeavored to aid the "victories" of "Peace" by aiding the re-election of the great and illustrious citizen-soldier-President.

Peace and Reconciliation

THE ERA.

THE ERA

is accomplished in the re-establishment of the Republican party in power for another four years from March next, and now it enters upon the work of following up that mission in gathering and preserving the fruits of the great National victory—a
