Saratoga Correspondence of the Commercial Advertiser.] A ROMANCE OF SLAVERY TIMES.

The Remarkable Ancestry of a Saratoga Waiter-How Webster and Calhoun Helped Wm. Jackson to a Wife.

Year after year Robert Jackson has been the second waiter at the Grand frequent the mammoth hostelry have not known that through his veins courses the proudest Virginia blood.

Robert is a small, well-made quadroom, fashioned, perhaps, in about the same mould as Stephen A. Douglas, for his head closely resembles that of the Little Giant. His grandfather was Gen. Harry Lee, of Revolutionary lighthorse-cavalry fame, and his mother was a slave woman named Jenny, a of William Jackson, the head waiter's at 206 Waverley place. Robert has perof Frederick county, Maryland. The boy William showed extraordinary infound himself free by a clause in the will. William went immediately to Washington, where he had been many times with his master. There he met John McLean, Postmaster-General under Martin Van Buren, and a friend of his old master. Judge McLean appointed him a messenger in the Post Office Department at a salary of $600 per an-

WILLIAM FALLS IN LOVE.

While a messenger in the Post Office Department, William Jackson met a beautiful long-haired octoroom, the slave of old Judge John Stewart, of Baltimore. The slave girl's name was Rachel, and she came to attend Miss Stewart, one of the fashionable Baltimore 6 P. M. belles, at one of President Van Buren's receptions. William lost his heart with the dusky maid, and soon went to Baltimore to get Judge Stewart, who owned her, to consent to their marriage.

"No sir," said the Judge indignantly, "Rachel is a slave, and she must marry a slave. If she marries a free nigger she will be running away herself; and, besides, I don't know when I may want to sell her to the New Orleans traders."

"Then I can never marry her?" "Never, until somebody buys her from me," replied the Judge.

THE STERN RESOLVE.

Rachel was sent to the Frederick county farm, and thither William went in the night to hold a consultation with | mailing: her. First it was resolved to run away. But there was no chance of success. Think of that, mercenary beaux, for the love of a woman.

OLD JOHN MCLEAN TO THE FRONT. Two years rolled around, and nine hundred dollars gladdened the sight of William Jackson. Christmas came. "What shall I give you for Christmas this year, William?" asked the good old Postmaster-General of his trusty

"Anything, Mr. Secretary."

"But what would you like most?" Then William told the story of his and Rachel's troubles-how he was or other similar enterprises offering prizes afraid she would be sold, how he loved of any kind on any pretext whatever, deher dearly, and how he lacked still a posited in this office to be sent by mail, hundred dollars to buy her.

The old Postmaster-General took off his specs, wiped his eyes, then put them on again. Then he fumbled in his pockets. "Five-ten-twenty-thirty," he counted, and then he handed William a hundred dollars.

A CRUSHING BLOW.

Too happy to live, William started for Judge Stewart's. "Here, Master John," said he, with his eyes all aglow with joy, "here is the thousand dollars-now I want Rachel." "My God! William you don't tell-me so!" exclaimed the Judge. "Why, I sold Rachel yesterday for $1,200, to go to Mobile." "When is she going?" asked William, nervously.

"She's gone already-went yesterday.

She'd be in Lynchburg in three days, by the boat." Broken hearted and crushed in spirit William hurried back to Judge McLean in Washington. The Judge heard his story. Daniel Webster and John C. Calhoun were in the Judge's room, and they both took a deep interest. "Let's raise the money and send William after her," said the generous Web-

"He would be seized a dozen times as a fugitive," said the Judge, "and they'd sell him, too." "I'll send my private secretary," said

Mr. Webster, and so he did. There was no telegraph then, nor tributed by William Jackson's friends writing, or in person, to the Postmaster.

CONSUMPTION!

Its Cure and its Preventive! BY J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

MANY a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proven means of cure. Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of his wonderful efficacion medicines, they would not have fallen. medicines, they would not have fallen.

Dr. Schenck has in his own case proved that wher ever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by himedicines and his directions for their use, is quicken ed into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self-assuring.

philosophy requires no argument. It is self-assuring, self-convincing. The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Two-thirds of the cases of consamption originate in dyspepsia and functionally dis-ordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They re-spond to the morbific action of the liver Here then comes the culminating result, and the setting in with all its distressing symptoms, of

Consumption,

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophillum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they "Leave no Sting Behind." The work of cure is now beginning. The vitlated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A Supply of Good Blood.

The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills permeates and assimilates with the food Chylines tion is now progressing without its previous tor-tures. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatherings, it prepares them for expectoration, and lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten throne that it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or the womanhood that was Given Up as Lost.

The second thing is, the patients must stay in a warm room until they get well; it is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased, but it must be prevented or a cure cannot be effected Fresh air and riding out, especially in this section of the country in the fall and winter season, are all wrong. Physicians who recommend that course lose their patients, if their lungs are badly diseased, and yet, because they are in the house they must not sit down quiet; they must walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will bear, to get up a good circulation of blood. The patients must keep in good spirits—be determined to get well. This has a great deal to do with the appetite, and is the great point to

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consump tion; confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then, like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time. "As soon as that began to subside my cough, fever, pain and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have grown in flesh ever since." "I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was only ninety-seven pounds, my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health." Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visit to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr. J. H, Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth Street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be above the state of the Power of the Power charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not. The direction for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow these directions and kind Nature will do the rest, excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need no other accompaniments than the ample instructions that accompany them: First create appetite. Of returning health hunger is the most welcome symtom. When it comes, as it will come, let the despairing at once be of good cheer. Good blood at once follows, the cough loosens, the night sweat is abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of theusands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation; while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a curer of coughs and colds tion in any of its forms. Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1.50 a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pilla 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers
