evidently as wet from the spray as though he had been standing under the way, had been let down to him alwater. By this time people were assembling, and different plans for the rescue were discussed on all sides; already, indeed one effort had been made. A small boat had been firmly lashed to a strong cable, and dropped down to him from the bridge, which crossed the rapids, between the mainland and Goat Island, about sixty yards above the log.

This boat had proceeded a few yards in safety, was upset, spun round like a piece of cork at the end of a thread by the force of the water, which finally snapped the cable in two, and the boat disappeared over the fall.

But now a dispatch had been sent to she was, large, built entirely of sheet iron, with air-tight chambers; a boat that could not sink. She was girt round with strong ropes, and two new two-inch cables brought with her. All this arrangement naturally took up much time, and the poor wretch's impatience seemed extreme, so that it was thought advisable to let him know what was going on. This was done by means of a sheet, upon which was written in large letters in Dutch (his native language,) "The life-boat is coming." He stood up, looked intently for a minute, and then nodded his head. When the boat was at last launched, the excitement was intense. Two, cables, each held by many men, were let down from either end of the bridge, so that they might have command in directing the course of the boat down the river. She seemed literally to dance upon the surface of the water like a cork.

I shuddered the danger of transit for any boat be- boat; a boat could never return against tween the bridge and the log. Again she descended with The poor fellow himself was getting safety, but at length approaching the impatient-visibly so. He untied his log she became unmanageable, swing- lashings, stood upright upon the raft, ing either way with immense force, eagerly watching to seize the boat, and spinning completely over, and finally jump into her. She had but one more dashing against the log with such vio- fall to pass and that fall was situated lence that I fully expected the whole just above where he stood; she paused thing, man and all, to have been dis- at the brink of it, swung down it like lodged and hurried down the rapid. lightning, and, as he leaned forward to But, no, it stood firm-the boat had reached its destination. Yet alas! how useless was its position. It lay completely on its side above the log, and with its hollow inside directed toward the bridge, played upon by the whole force of the current, which fixed its keel firmly against the log. It seemed imside of the river by the united force of sight of him at intervals, yet again and fifty or sixty men, she was dislodged, and swung down the rapid upside brief half minute. But the end come at last; once more I saw his arms wildan eddy, entangling one of her cables on the rocks, and there lying beneath stant, the crowd turned from the spot a heavy fall of water, until, in the in dead silence. The man was lost. course of the day, one cable being broken by the efforts of the men to dislodge her, and the other by the sheer force of the current she went over the falls-the second sacrifice to the poor fellow, who still clung to the log, swayed between hope and fear. The loss of the boat seemed a great blow to him, and he appeared, as far as we could judge at a distance, at times to give away to the utmost despair. / A third boat was now brought-wooden, very long, and flatbottomed. Its passage was most fortu-nate, and as she floated down even along-side of the log without accident, hope beamed in every countenance, and we all felt the man might be saved. Hope also had revived in him. He stood for some time upon the log makbefore; three or four similar cans, by ready, attached to strong pieces of new plaint. line, but the cords had, in every instance, been snapped, and the food lost.

The raft was finished, launched, and safely let down to the log. The poor fellow committed himself to its care, S he lashed his legs firmly, and then signalled to draw him up; thus for the second time the ropes had begun to be George Gordon and John drawn up the raft advanced under the first pull, but its head, owing to the great light cask, dropped beneath it, and as the raft still advanced, the water broke over it to such a depth that the man was obliged to raise himself hitched in her return. It was then depart of the rapid, where the stream did witness, John N. Bunting, Clerk of said not seem quite so impassible. This also failed from the same cause, therefore it was proposed to endeavor to let the raft float down and swing round upon the island. This was commenced but with the old result, the cable was caught in the rocks, and the raft remained stationary. However, she was floating easily, and Bryant, is not a resident of this State, it is, tures. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more fatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in. Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever 'yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man, Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to basten and complete the cure. It innetions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once npon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the impaired and dis eased portions of the lungs. In the form of gather-ings, it prepares them for expectoration, and lo i in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten throne that it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or the womanhood that was that was ### Given Up as Lost.

The second thing is, the patients must stay in a warm room until they get well; it is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased, but it must be prevented or a cure cannot be effected. Fresh air and riding ont, especially in this section of the country in the fall and winter season, are all wrong. Physicians who recommend that course lose their patients, if their lungs are badly diseased, and yet, because they are in the house they must not all down quiet; they must walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will bear, to get up a good circulation of blood. The patients must keep in good spirits-be determined to get well. This has a great deal to do with the appetite, and is the great point to gain. No despan of cure after such evidence of its possi-bility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consump-tion; confined to my bed, and at one time my physi-cians thought that I could not live a week; then, like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of and obtained the presentions which I are on and obtained the preparatious which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemied to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time.

"As soon as that began to subside my cough, fever, pain and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have grown in flesh ever since."

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was only ninety-seven pounds, my present, weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visit to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth Street, Philadelphis; every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the erset, condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.

The direction for taking the medicines are mapted to the intelligence oven of a child. Follow these di-rections and kind Nature will do the reat, excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need to other accompanyments than the ample instructions that accompany them: First create appetite. Of returning health hunger is the most welcome symtom. When it comes, as it will come, let the despairing st once be of good cheer. Good block at once follows, the cough loosens, the night sweat is abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in terry of thousands of families, ; As a laxative on gurgative, ; the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation; while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a curre of coughs and colds-rusy be regarded as a prophylacteric against consum-tion in any of its forms.
