> -----Strange Delusion and Extraordinary Escape.

A young man named Samuel Faragher, Douglas, Isle of Man, had an extraordinary escape from being dashed to pieces the other day. It appears that Faragher had been in training as a runner, and by over-heating himself and neglecting the proper precautions, caught a severe cold, shortly afterwards exhibiting feverish symptoms, accompanied by great depres sion of spirits, so much so that his parents took him into their own room to sleep. This room was situated at the top of a three-story house. Some time early in the morning they were awakened by the crashing of glass followed by the sound of a heavy fall. On examination they found that the young man had forced himself through the window, and upon going outside he has discovered lying on the stone pavement in a state of insensibility, but, strange to say, beyond a severe shaking he was uninjured. It appears that the young fellow had become light-headed from the effects of the cold, and fancying himself the subject of a pursuit jumped through the window whilst under a hallucination. The #1S height from which he jumped must be at least thirty feet.
