The most important point in the cultivation of this crop is the preparation of the land by deep and thorough plowing. Corn roots run deep enough to avail themselves of the benefits of all the soil the plow can break. The earing season of corn is very often a period of fre-quent drouths, and deep and thorough preparation of land is the best remedy for drouths. If the subsoil plow is used to increase the depth of the preparation, the roots of plants will run far down in search of food and moisture.

The time of plowing should be determined by the condition of the land, and no land should be plowed, especially in the spring-time, when too wet. All lands with an abundance of vegetable matter growing upon them, should be plowed in the fall or early winter, so as to allow the vegetable matter to fully decay,

Bottom lands and party, by congressional districts as all loose soils, already containing adopted for the campaign of 1872. those who designed to deprive the citi-adopted for the campaign of 1872. much vegetable matter, need not be plowed until near the time for duty of calling the district convenplanting-this will enable the corn tions for this Spring, and they are to come up and get ahead of the here reproduced for the benefit and grass and weeds.

The distance apart corn should be concerned. planted varies with the fertility and set physical properties of the soil. A rich soil can of course sustain a reater number of stalks than a poor one; but of two soils equally fertile, one of stiff clay and the other of dark loam, the latter will bear closer planting than the former, because it absorbs more freely the light and heat of the sun. Young farmers are more apt to err in having their corn too thick than too thin upon the land. This crop demands more than simply an abundance of food, it requires a full supply of light and heat, with a free circulation of air.

The corn plant requires manures containing potash 27 per cent., phosphoric acid 47 per cent., and some manure containing ammonia to make the plant start off and third congressional district, as congrow rapidly. Cotton seed contain stituted by the republican convenall these ingredients and is one of 110n which met at Clinton, Sampthe very best manures for corn. If son county, May 22, 1872, is as folbefore applying our cotton seed to lows, with W. P. Canaday, chairthe corn as a manure we would wet | man :-them and roll them in ashes, it would supply the potash, while in the fermentation and decay the seed would yield up the phosphoric acid and ammonia, giving all the ingredients necessary for the rapid growth and quick maturity of the crop. Prepare the land thoroughly, manure liberally, cultivate well, and don't be satisfied with less than 30 bushels to the acre.

Ashes, plaster, cotton seed, and woods mold composted in the following manner, will make an excellent fertilizer for corn :

A farmer who was pestered with crows, hit upon the plan of soaking some corn in whisky and placed it in the field so that the crows would get drunk, and then he designed to kill them. After gressional District : soaking some corn all night, he put a bountiful supply in the field early next morning, and in about two hours he went out to see how things were progressing, and mark what followed. One old crow, a little larger than the rest, had gathered up and taken possession of all the soaked corn, and had built himself a bar out of some clods of earth. and was retailing the whisky-soaked corn to the other crows, charging them three grains of sprouted com for one soaked grain. He dn't the heart to kill the creatures that acted so much like huan beings.
