The Ship Prgou, Capt. COLLET, arrived at Philadelphia, from London, in 27 days, brings London dates to the 18th of February. Captain Collet informs, that before he sailed, a rumour was in circulation of the death of the King—but he could not learn from whence it originated. Nothing new (if we except the above) had transpired since our last accounts. Bonaparte was still expected.

The following address has been presented to the governor of New-Orleans, in behalf of the free people of colour of New-Orleans, by whom it was signed.

To his Excellency, William C. C. Claiborne, Governor General and Intendant of Louisiana.

We the subscribers, free citizens of Louisiana, beg leave to approach your Excellency with sentiments of respect and esteem, and sincere attachment to the government of the United States.

We are natives of this province, and our dearest interests are connected with its welfare.—We therefore feel a lively joy that the sovereignty of the country is at length united with that of the American Republic. We are duly sensible that our personal and political freedom is thereby assured to us forever, and are also impressed with the fullest confidence in the justice and liberality of the government towards every class of citizens which they have here taken under their protection.

We were employed in the military service of the late governor, and we hope we may be permitted to say, that our conduct in that service has ever been distinguished by a ready attention to the duties required of us. Should we be in like manner honored by the American government, to which every principle of interest as well as affection attaches us, permit us to assure your excellency that we shall serve with fidelity and zeal.—We therefore respectfully offer our services to the government as a corps of volunteers, agreeably to any arrangement which may be thought expedient.

We request your excellency to accept our congratulations on the happy event which has placed you at the head of this government, and promises so much real prosperity to the country.

To which his Excellency immediately made a verbal Response, to the following effect.

He thanked them for their respectful address, and observed that their rights would be protected, and that their confidence in the government of the United States would increase as they became acquainted with its principles, and the wisdom and justice with which it was administered.

With respect to the tender of their military services, the governor remarked that he should not direct a general re-organization of the militia until he had received instructions upon the subject from the president of the United States. In the mean time, the free people of colour would consider themselves attached to the same corps in which the former government had placed them. He concluded by assuring them of his confidence in their military zeal, and the sincerity of their professions of attachment to the United States.

A GOOD THING.

In the disputes and contentions between the terrorists and moderates (the Lewisites and Burrites) a precious confession, now and then creeps out, which shews how charmingly the friends of the people have managed the affairs of the state for a few years past.—The following fact may be relied on. The whole pamphlet of Aristides fearfully furnishes a more important one.

A genuine republican and a real republican (both holding offices in the state) having a high dispute in Albany the other day, the Burrite, without ceremony, damnd the whole Clinton faction for a pack of aristocrats; and was proceeding with great violence, when the other interrupted him with, "Pray, sir, how do you obtain your living? To whom are you indebted for your bread? Who gave you the office which supports you?" The Burrite was thunderstruck, and the Clintonian, elated with his victory, continued, "Ambrose Spencer and De Witt Clinton had better men than yourself turned out of office to make room for you;—and now, you ingrateful!"—"Did they do?" interrupted the Burrite, raising his head and his voice; "Then all I have to say, is, that it was a damn'd scally proceeding."

ANOTHER.

Ambrose Spencer, in a late conversation with another judge of the Supreme Court, who is somewhat noted for the severity of his sarcasms, was complaining bitterly of having been deceived by a person who had promised to support Morgan Lewis for Governor, and who, on the contrary, had turned out to be a rank Burrite. "Indeed, Mr. Spencer," replied the judge, "you place too much reliance on every promise that you receive—you think that every man means what he says—in fact, Mr. Spencer, you are too honest for a politician."

Raleigh, Dec. 23, 1803.

POSTSCRIPT.

HOUSE of REPRESENTATIVES,

Wednesday, March 21.

Mr. Nicholson, from the committee of Ways and Means, presented a bill further to protect the seamen and commerce of the United States against the Barbary powers.

The bill provides that an additional duty of two and a half per centum be laid upon all imported goods at present charged with a duty ad valorem, and an additional duty of ten per cent. on all such duties payable on goods imported in foreign vessels.—The proceeds of these duties are to constitute a fund, to be called the Mediterranean fund. The duties to cease within three months after a peace with Tripoli, in case the United States are not engaged in a war with some other of the Barbary powers, in which case they are to cease within three months after a peace with such powers. The President is authorized to be caused to be purchased or built, 2 vessels of war to carry 16 guns each, and as many gun boats as he may think proper. One million of dollars, additional to the sum heretofore appropriated, is placed under the direction of the President for the naval service, which sum he is authorized to borrow at a rate of interest not exceeding six per cent.

Foreign News.—There is a report in town, this morning, says the New York Spectator, that his Britannic Majesty is dead—that the Prince of Wales is very ill—that Mr. Pitt is Prime Minister, and that Mr. Fox is Secretary of Foreign Affairs. This report appears to be materially incorrect. A London paper of the 18th Feb. received at the Office of the Philadelphia True American, mentions the sickness of the King, & the Prince of Wales; but states, that they are both convalescent.—It makes no mention of a change in the administration.

A Teacher wanted.

THE Inhabitants of Raleigh, in North-Carolina, having lately erected a House for an Academy in one of the Squares of the City, given to them by the Legislature for the Purpose, are desirous of engaging a fit Person to superintend the Institution. If they could meet with a Clergyman of liberal Education and Principles, who would take Charge of the Academy and give the Citizens a weekly Discourse, (such an one would be preferred, and for such a Character, it is believed, a handsome Salary would be provided.

Raleigh being the Seat of the State Government, and esteemed a healthy Situation, would doubtless prove an agreeable Residence for a Person of the above Description.

An Assistant Teacher to initiate young Scholars in Reading, Writing and Accounts, is also wanted.

Application to be made, by Letter (post paid) to J. Gales, Raleigh, Secretary to the Board of Trustees.

March 12, 1804.

Wake County, March 16.

For Sale,

THE Plantation whereon the subscriber now lives, in Johnston County, within 2 miles of Smithfield, and on the main road from Smithfield to Fayetteville; and on that leading from Wilmington to Raleigh. It consists of 1600 acres, a sufficient proportion of which is rich low grounds, and the remainder is upland of a good quality and well timbered; has on it a valuable Apple and Peach Orchard, and is well watered. There is on the premises a most valuable mill feat on a never failing creek, where timber abounds, and from which lumber might without trouble be rafted to Newbern. The Mansion house is 2 stories high, is new and nearly finished, and stands in a pleasant and commanding situation, in a good neighborhood; and from the long experience of his family, the subscriber can assert it to be one of the healthiest places in the state.

If any person is desirous to purchase a Farm of this description, he is invited to view it for himself, and it is believed that he will find few places that unite in them so many advantages. It will be sold on very reasonable terms, and the payments made easy to the purchaser.
