Drunkenness.

On last Sunday afternoon the Rev Dr. Atkinson, of the Presbyterian Church, preached at the Chapel of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, from the proverb, "Wine is a mocker and strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise."

The venerable gent eman seemed to address himself especially to enforcing the necessity of a change in the social custom, which regards the offer of strong drink as good evidence of hospi tality. We think if the Devil is ever to be successfully routed in this his strongest fortress, that the point of assault should be the one pointed out

But this will require a reforming zeal, which it is hardly tair to expect from a generation trained to believe that generosity and quick wit largely counterbalance the faults of the drunkard and that it is not inconsistent with true gentility to occasionally "take too much tea." Of course the decree of eternal exemption from the joys of the future Christian kingdom is not lessened in its force by any opinion men may have of its justice. Nothing can be probabilities as to what will or will cheap human sympathy. Oue may reasonably feel sure that it is not translatable in the other world.

The frequency with which this and kindred expressions occur, is evidence that we do not regard drunkenness in the same light in which Revelation

As inducing us to adopt the Bible view. Mr. Atkinson would disassociate the habit from all the charms with which social courtesy invests if, he would have the acknowledged critics of poetry denounce the muse of Tom Moore, Burns, Byron and Poe as faithless to its heaven'y ordered mission when stooping to aymn the praises of what is "carthin, sensual, devilish." Hand in hand with this movement he would have the law-makers force by taxation the ungodly gams into the public treasury. We have seidom heard a more sensible, direct and ins cisive statement of a case than Dr. Alk non gave to his audience, which though small was attentive. There were present several members of the Legislature.

One good feature, perhaps the best one of this proposed statute, is the authority granted to imprison the complainant, who fails to pay the costs in cases, where the defendant is acquitted. This will prevent the bringing into an example of body snatching. court of the grudges of a neighborhood and actions based on spite and petty malice. Our most serious objection however to this measure is its undoubted tendency to increase the crime of bastardy by removing in a large degree the publicity and attendant shame, which a trial in the Superior Courts of the State now necessarily carries with the same service cost $180. We read in history that the King of Persia allowed Themistocles the revenues of a certain city for his provisions, that of another city to pay for his clothing and so on. The taxes of what county should be set apart to pay for servants to wait upon our officials? There are ne rly half the counties neither one of which pays enough to the State for this purp se (exclusive of the public school tax.) Neither do such counties as Burke, or Harnett, or Casteret, or Franklin pay quite enough to run the servants. It will take a pretty good county.

Change the Law.

THOMASVILLE, N. C. Farmers throughout the State are becoming more interested with reference to the rearing of stock particularly sheep, to the taking care of the insectivorous birds. They are, consequently, put to much trouble in "post" ing their land" to prevent their farms being overrun by hunters and sheepkilling dogs. Why not change the law making it a penal offense to hunt on any man's land without the permission of the owner. This would put the burden or trouble upon the hunting party and not upon the farmer. In those sections of the State, or upon those farms, where the proprietors are willing to have their lands hunted upon, their permission could easily be obtained, and the law would certainly cut off many marauding para ties that now, despite the farmers overrun all the limits of right and justice to propriety. In this higher state of civil zation let the law be made to tayor the higher int rests of society. J. L. W.

A Plea for Wilmington from the West.

Correspondence of 'he News. MT. AIRY, N. U., Jan. 23, 1879.

Reasoning from analogy and the success of other States it would seem that the Rail Roads ought to converge to a common centre, and that centre should be the best Seaport. Look at the rail road maps: South Carolina has her Charlesto: ; Louisiana her New Orleans: Maryland her Baltimore; Pennsylvania her Philadelphia; New York her New York; Massachusetts her Boston; Alabama her Mobile; Georgia her Savannah; Virginia her Norfolk and Richmond and so on through many more. North Carolina has her Wilmington, but does her railroads radiate to the mountains from the main commercial centre? therford B. Hayer, President, to appoint one Hagner, from Maryland, the judge to fill the place left vacant by Judge Olin. We are thus thankful for, not what we received, but for what we escaped. It is believed that the appointment rested between Mr. Hagner and our Riddle. We don't know Judge Hagner; but we are told that he has a good digestion and a clear head, while he is sufficiently copper-bottomed to insure lo g sitt ug and patient hearing. But with Mr. Riddle we should have passed from paralysis to dyspepsia, from bad to worse. Mr. Riddle is a good man, who writes bad novels. He can advocate women's rights with better phrase and more learning than any man we know of. But dyspepsia on the bench makes the gods howl with anguish.

His Excellency said, in excuse for overlooking our bar and going into the wilderness after Hagner, that our courts were not local, but United States courts. Of course they are, and so is everything else in this District. We have nothing Our wives and children, our maid-servants and men-servants, our louses and households; our cows, and torses and asses and goats and pigs are not ours. That is, they are not, if anybody wants them.

This District of Columbia is only a pational door-mat for Administrations to wipe their feet on; and, Lord help us! but they are very dirty feet gen-erolly! Our courts are United States courts; our commissioners are United States commissioners. Have we anything that is not the property of the United States? We would well wish to see His Excell nev take a man from Maryland and make him judge of a court in New England, or one from New England and ocate him in Ohio.

May Satan seize us, but we wish we could change places with the Cheyennes and have the right to begin shoot-
