WAKE CRIMINAL COURT.

The bill to abolish the Criminal Court of Wake county, was taken up. Mr. Richardson of Wake, offered an amendment giving the Superior Court as full jurisdiction as it had prior to the formation of the Criminal Court. Mr. Bernard said that he had listened to all the arguments for the bill, but had heard noue which convinced him of its propriety. The matter was pushed forward by persons influenced by either pique or jealousy. The county absolutely needs the court, and it is less expensive by some $1,300 per annum than the old form. Mr. Norment opposed the bill. Mr. Etheridge stid the Democrats of Wake, the Magistrates of the county, aid not wish the court abolished. It was a republican attempt to foist a negro solicitor up in the people of Wake. Mr. R chardson said the county was in debt, that the salaries of the officers were a burden. The people of the county asked the abolition of the court. Mr. Ellison also favored this view. Mr. Colweli said it was strange that the Magistrates had not requested the abolition of the court, but had rather endorsed it, thus evidently thinking it a benefit. He read a statement

20. State vs. Leak from Richmond. On a trial for forgery it is sufficient at the trial to show any person who could be defrauded and against whom Mr. Turner offered an amendment the intent to defraud is directed, in that no pers n who has peculated be proof of the general averment of the intent to defraud. It is not necessary or proper that the verdict should specify the person intended to be defrauded. The words "order for the delivery of goods" in our statute only includes orders drawn by persons having a disposing power over the goods upon a person under obligation to obey. It is not however so restricted in an indictment concluding at common law.

Where an action is not instituted to correct or reform the deed itself on the ground of accident, fraud, mistake or undue advantage parol evidence is inadmissible to convert an absolute deed into a trust or mortgage. Where a parol agreement to chauge an absolute deed into a mortgage or trust is denied by the answer it is unnecessary for the defendant to set up the statute of frauds in his pleadings.

Chatham and the Deep River Navigation Company.

Correspondence of the News.

PITTSBORO, Feb. 10. There appeared in your columns of the 1st inst., an article signed "Retrenchment," written from Chitham, whose tenor (though "adroitly" written) seems to me is inconsistent with the best interests of the county and State. The author appears to think that the Legislature has a bill before it to purchase from one Heck, Lobdeli & Co., the whole of Deep and Caps Fear Rivers, at what ever price they may ask, and saddle the debt upon the State. In that he does the friends of the bill an injustice, and reflects upon the intelligence of the Legislature. If I understand aright, the object of the Chatham resolutions is for the Legislature to open negotiations with the American Irou & Steel Company, and see if it is not practicable for the State to regain possession of its franchises in the C. F. & D. R. Navigation Company. I believe a satisfactory arrangement can be made; at least I do not think Heck & Co., can "bulkloze" the Legislature, composed of practical, intelligent men from all parts of the State, into their terms. I am willing . to trust the Legislature. "Retrenchment" begins his article by an attempt to belittle the meeting that passed the resolutions. He states that Mr. Manning opposed the resolutions, when it is well known he warmly advocated them; that Speaker Moring, not having the fear of "Retrenchment" before his eyes, did, with malice aforethought, 'come down on the floor'' and advocate the measure. Chatham will ever honor her sons who are ready to protect and advance her interests. The latter half of his article, except the Austerlitzs soldiers, is simply a disquisition upon the "trading qualities" of J. M. Heck, and is not germane to the subject. Whether Lobdell & Co., or Osgood & Co., or anybody else got experience instead of profit by trading with A. or B. is immaterial to the general public. But this move in the interest of internal improvement is of great interest to the whole State, and Chatham county in particular, Here is a county in whose bounds nature has implanted an inexhaustible supply of coal and iron, and perhaps copper, gold and other minerals. Here is a large river running diagonally through the State, whose tributaries penetrate the best portion thereof. It runs through this mineral section, and could the State regain her stolen fran chise, I am informed our Sanators believe a good appropriation could be obtained from the general government. What an impetus a half million dollars expended in this rection would give to returning prosperity! It is not a vain hope, for has not the Government aiready given $200,000.00 to open the mouth of this very river at Wilmington, and a large sum to open a portion of the French Broad in the West?
