The Committee will recommend the caucus to repeal those sections of the statutes which, under prescribed regulations, permit the appointment of supervisors to witness fair elections in cities of over twenty thousand inhabitants, but the supervisors are not to hold magis erial powers All laws for the punishment of electoral frauds are to be retained. Men of the Davenport stripe will not be empowered to arrest of law, for political purposes. The only restriction to be placed upon the method of appointing supervisors of election is that they shall be residents of the polling precinct in which they are designated to serve. There was a decided divisio 1 between the Committee of the House and the Committee of the Senate on the question of general legislation at the present session. The House Committee, with three exceptions, was of the opinion that the country needs relief. and that general legis ative business should be transacted until the appropriation bills are passed. The Senate conferees, excepting Mr. Thurman, thought that the country wanted to be relieved of Congress, and that no legislation outside of the appropriation bills should be entered upon, unless some exceptional mensure like the Yellow Fever bill imperatively demanded action. A sub-committeeman was appointed on the points in dispute, also to decide whether afflrmative legislation concerning the election laws, as proposed in Mr. Springer's bill shall be had

The debate in committee indicated that the House will proceed with general legislation and that the Senate will not. Bills passed by the House will be allowed to rest in the Senate committees until the regular session next December. The clause prohibiting the use of troops at the polls will be retained in the Army bill.

The sections of the Election laws, the section authorizing the appointment of two supervisors of different politics to serve in a testimonial capacity at each poll as witnesses of the count of votes is retained. The Committee is authorized to draw up provisions for the total repeal of the jurors' test oath and the presence of troops at the polls for incorporation in the Legislative, Judicial, and Executive, and the Army Appropriation bills, and other provisions to secure

FREE AND FAIR ELECTIONS.

Mr. Springer's propostion to provide, in addition to the repeal of the law concerning the presence of troops at e polls, for the enactment of the existing English statute of George 11, on that suject, was very favorably received and the joint sub-Committee will probably recommend its adoption. It prohibits any soldier stationed within two miles of a voting place from leaving | New York Star.

Brown hair is fashionable in London

Plain skirts are now more popular for street suits.

Most all the new designs in silver are in repousse work.

Necklaces are worn without lockets and close to the throat.

Gentleman's scarf pins are in the shape of a four-leaf clover.

Handsome evening silks may be bought for sixty-five cents a yard.

Moire or watered silk is decidedly taking rank once more among the handsome frabrics devoted to dressy toilets. It has made its re-appearance not only in its original state, but in the shape of a striped pekin-that is, in moire, alternating with satin or velvet ones.

In cambricks, a striking novelty appears, in that of reversible patterns, the colors being so stamped in that stuff can be made up with either the right or the wrong side as the outside; and in these cambrics the colors, though not the figures of patterns, differ on the right and the wrong side.
