The maintenance of the stellity of a contract entered into by a sovereign State of the Federal Union has been frequently before the Supreme Court of the United States, in varied forms of litigation, and in every instance the judgment of that august tribunal has concurred that the contract entered to is inviolate. The Louisiana State Lottery Company has a contract for twenty-five years from 1888, when it was incorporated, and the action of no legislature can prevent that renowned corporation from continuing its regular monthly distributions at New Orleans on the second Tuesday of every month.
