HE IS PARTICULARLY TRUE IN REGARD TO HIS DEALINGS WITH THE INDIANS.

RECENT LEASES OF INDIAN LANDS.

The Secretary Replies to a Charge of Approving the Lease to Help an Alleged Kinsman, "Col. James Cobb, of Texas"-The Whole Story Simply a Romance and False in Every Particular-Where Congressmen Sometimes Get Their Speeches.

Special to the News and Observer. WASHINGTON, D. C., April 30.

"I have never known an honester man than Hoke Smith," said a pominent official in the Interior Department. "He is not only honesty incarnate, but is the freest man from even suspicion that has been here in my day. He is like Cæsar's wife, and at the risk of bluntness and giving offense, does not hesitate to give the cold-shoulder to claimants and others having an axe to grind. This is particularly true in relation to his dealings in regard to the Indians. No Secretary has taken a deeper interest in the welfare of the Indians, and been more alert to protect them against the white men who make a business of defrauding them whenever possible."

This remark was brought out by the publication of a great cock and bull story that appeared first in the Kansas City Journal, and later in the New York World, the substance of which was that Secretary Smith, in order to help a kinsman, "Col. James Cobb, of Texas," approved a lease for the lands of Kiowa, Wichita, Comanche, and Apache Indians at six cents an acre, when he had letters stating that other parties, if an opportunity should be given them, would have paid ten cents an acre. The story was that Col. Cobb was "the guest at Hoke Smith's house. The Secretary approved the contract submitted by the cattlemen and the latter thought they succeeded by reason of the fact that Col. Cobb was a cousin of the Secretary." Secretary Smith, in all interview, shows that there was no offer of more than the amount for which he approved the leases; that he acted upon the recommendation of the army officer in charge of the agency; that the Indian Bureau had advertised for bids; and that he had no reason to doubt that the recommendation was for the best interests of the Indians. He punctures the whole story, particularly that portion in which it is alleged that ex-Attorney General Garland was to receive a fee of ten thousand dollars for his services. Garland says he was promised by Cobb a $1,000 fee for making an argument in 1893 before Congress, but received only a draft for Hoke Smith is to the point :

"The story about Colonel Cobb is simoly a romance. I suppose the Colonel Cobb referred to was a Dr. Cobb who lives in Texas near the reservation, and who was in Washington city something over twelve months ago as the representative of the interests of the lessors of these grazing lands. At that time a bill was pending before Congress to open up this reservation to settlement, and a half an hour, worked total destruction pending the consideration by Congress of the bill I declined to authorize the extension of the leases. Dr. Cobb is no relative of mine, and so far as 1 know not a connection. "He was never a guest at my house, but, on the contrary, while he was at Washington during the winter of 1893-'94, I was led to believe that he probably obtained his connection with the cattle men upon the claim that he was related to me. After forming this opinion I de-clined to allow him admission to my office, and warned the chief of the Indian division against allowing him to appear in departmental matters. I have not seen Dr. Cobb, nor have I heard from or of him, until the publication in the World, for twelve months. Neither he nor any one else outside of the department had anything whatever to do with the recent extension of these leases."

STORY OF A RAID.

How Two Raleigh Deputies Went Through Rain and Swollen Streams After the Much Chased Moonshiner's Outfit.

A modest deputy collector in Raleigh, speaking of a recent raid made by Deputy Collector Jones and himself, withholds his name, but gives by his account some idea of the ups-and-dows through which these officers go in the captures which are usually reported in a line or two in the papers. Here is the account:

"In response to an earnest appeal from the good ladies of Northampton county, under direction of Collector F. M. Simmons. Deputy J. W. Jones, assisted by his "partner raider," left on Saturday train for Macon, on the railroad, where they procured a team, and from there, via Eaton's ferry, went to Roanoke mills, which point was reached about dark. A survey reached about dark. A survey of the premises having been made, and the shades of night, (accom-panied by a heavy cloud) rapidly ap-proaching, the party rapidly repaired to "an old Virginia mansion," and the strangers to the occupants, they were welcomed and kindly cared for.

"(The above "mansion" alone, when built, only 100 years since), cost $10,000, and although the building is in perfect order, with an $1,800 Egyptian marble mantle, in the parlor to increase its gen-eral value, this property, with 2000 acres of land, was sold in recent years for $2,000.

"The raiders felt some computctions in desecrating the Holy Sabbath to resume their pursuit the following morning, but just before day-light a gentle whisper said "press forward." So in the pour-ing rain at 5 o'clock they could have been seen plodding through mud and water for the banks of old Roanoke, where they found a boat, which had been located the evening before. With the aid of this boat (being allround raiders) they soon landed themselves on Roanoke Island. Again resuming their tramp through mud and water, sometimes knee deep, they were soon affronted in this wilderness by a real "House" 20 by 25 feet, weather-boarded and neatly covered, but unlike the mansion (from its newish appearance) had only been but about sixty days. Con-tradictory to the "ladies" report the gettlemen in the community said this "house" had been built "for a summer farm house to protect tools, etc., from the weather." Not finding even a crack $250, which was protested, and he had to pay the protest fee. In regard to Col. Cobb, the statement of Secretary prise discovered suspicious property which warranted their entrance. The house was found to contain a complete distiller's outfit consisting of one 80 gallon copper still, 2,000 gallons of beer, one gun, set of carpenter's tools, etc. After a thorough destruction of still, cap and worms with an ax, the party to preserve their respect for the Sabbath, brought a halt to their laborious work by attaching a torch, which within to the wicked place. Returning to the mansion the party soon were seen in the vehicle returning home as they thought, little imagining the difficulties of the day. But up and down Roancke from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m. did they try in vain at the different ferries to be landed on the other side, which appeals were dishonored by the ferrymen who were afraid to risk a flat on the swollen waters. As a final resort the team was left on the north side and the party came over in a skiff and tramped most of the way back to Macon, where they took the train and were soon landed safely in Raleigh.

GORINTO AND ITS COMMERCE.

The Port Whose Custom House England Has Seized.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 30.—Corin-to is the chief port of Nicaragua and the western terminus of the railway and inland water system of transportation. Built on a low, marshy island, in the first indentation of the coast south of the spacious Gulf of Fonseca, it is utterly defenceless save for the presence of a ridiculous little fort with two antiquated guns, which the soldiers of the Republic would be incapable of holding against a well-equipped landing party, even should they try to do so. The principal street faces the water. Of the two prominent buildings seen from steamers at anchor, one is the custom house and barracks and the other is a hotel, each having two stories with covered verandas. Clumps of cocoanut trees and bananas provide a picturesque setting for the sanddunes and rambling line of sheds and cabins in which business is transacted and the Indian population is sheltered. As the steamers anchor in deep water close to the wharf, a favorable impression is produced by the seaside street; but the traveller on landing finds little behind it and makes haste to return to the ship after a disorderly meal in a noisy and dirty hotel. Further out there is a lighthouse on a small island. Steamers from Hamburg anchor regularly off Corinto and carry coffee to Europe. American commerce is small compared with that which is transacted on the Caribbean coast.

Gold Bugs Show Their Weakness.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., April 30 .- Secretary Heinrichsen, in speaking of the action of the honest money league of Illinois in refusing to participate in the State Convention, said : "The gold bug crowd are simply afraid to go into the fight for they knew it would exhibit their weakness. The whole outfit could not carry a ward in Chicago, or a county in the State. Their manifesto will be a positive help to the silver movement for it will convince the people that the alleged honest money people are pure gold bugs.

A New Danger.

A great danger threatens the people of the South. An evil that is steadily growing, and unless checked will cause great misery and suffering. Liver medicines, called by all sorts of names, are being sold to the druggists to be handed to the people when they call for Simmon's Liver Regulator. Beware! There never has been more than one Simmon's Liver Regulator on the market. Take nothing else. The person who tries to persuade you that anything else is just the same is not to be relied upon, nor is the dealer to be trusted who tries to sell you another article in its stead. You know what Simmon's Liver Regulator is, because it has done you good. No; don't be deceived into trying anything else. Wait until the old friend, Simmon's Liver Regulator has failed you, then will be time enough to try something else. Remember, Simmon's Liver Regulator is what you want. It is put up only by J. H. Zeilin & Co., and a Red Z is on every package.

A few days ago the Washington Post contained the following advertisement: "A political campaigner desires a stock of anecdotes appropriate for campaign speeches, and will give a handsome and valuable set of books to the person submitting the best one. Address W. L., this office."

Commenting on this advertisement, Mr. O'Brian Moore, Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Republic, says :

"I have been told of a Republican Congressman from a Western State, who, by the way, is re-elected to the next House, who left Washington last summer to make his campaign, taking in his valise three speeches carefully typewritten, for one of which he paid $500, an-other $300, and for the third $250. Department clerks were the authors of two and a newspaper man furnished the third. The statesman who delivered these purchased speeches on the stump is an applicant for a chairmanship of an important committee of the next House, and is for Allison for President.

The fact that a man writes M. C. after his name is no guarantee here that he is a great and wise man.

The Civil Service Commission.

Now that Mr. Roosevelt is going to reresign, the Republicans are clamoring for the appointment of a Republican to succeed him. They say that Mr. Roosevelt represented the Republicans on the Commission; Mr. Proctor is the Democrats; and Mr. Lyman "stands conspicously for civil service reform." As a matter of fact Lyman stands, first of all, for Lyman and the Lyman family, and is as good as a Republican as Mr. Roosevelt, and I think better. If the President would now take advantage of Mr. Roosevelt's President puts him off and appoints an store.
