TELLS A GOOD STORY

SECRETARY MORTON ILLUS-TRATES HOW MEAN HUSBANDS ARE TO THEIR WIVES.

MILLIKEN HAS BEEN ARRESTED.

A Few Years Imprisonment at Hard Labor Would Take Some of the Egotism and Frills Out the Ternessee Sport--Senator Blackburn's Daughter to Wed the Secretary of the Mexican Legation -- New Postmasters for North Carolina.

Special to the News and Observer.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 29. Secretary Morton is a greatly abused man, chiefly because he talks gold bug finance more than agriculture and is opposed to seed distribution. But he is a very original and a very well informed man, and talks with a breezy, Western freshness that is always interesting. There is no man in the country who knows more about farming, theoretically, practically and every other way, and I really believe that if he had not estranged the farmers by denouncing their organizations, and ridiculed vigorously and incessantly their faith in bi-metallism, he would have gained their ear, and that his administration of the Agricultural Department would have been the most markedly successful in the history of the markedly successful in the history of the department.

He enjoys a good joke and enjoys telling one better than hearing somebody else tell one. That is to say, like many other big men, he loves to talk, but there is one thing about Secretary Morton, he always says something that has point. Talking recently about farm life in the West, he said to Mr. Frank E. Carpenter, the noted correspondent:

"I am surprised how mean men are

"I am surprised how mean men are sometimes to their wives." Woman is naturally a self-sacrificing creature, and she submits to many a thing a man would not think of tolerating. Speaking of little meannesses, let me give you an incident that I saw myself during the days of the war. I have need to be in a days of the war. I happened to be in a store in my town one day when an old fellow whom I will call Jones come in with his wife to buy some goods. This man Jones came from one of the most celebrated families in the United States. He settled in Nebraska when it was still a territory, and by economy and thrift he had now gotten a farm of something like 1,000 acres. He was known to have money in the bank, and was considered wealthy. Well, shortly after he entered the store Mrs. Jones took up a piece of calico and admired it very much. As she looked at it, she said to her husband:

"Pa, I ought to have a new dress, and I like this very much. Don't you think we could afford to buy it?"

we could afford to buy it?"

"Oh, I suppose so," replied the old man, and he thereupon asked the clerk the price. He was told it was 50 cents a yard. Old Mr. Jones raised his eyes at this, and asked his wife how much it would take. She replied she didn't think she could get along on less than twelve yards, and he answered:

"Why me twelve yeards of that goods."

"Why, ma, twelve yards of that goods at 50 cents a yard would cost $6. Now, don't you think that that is pretty

Yes," she replied, "I do, but I need the dress."

"Well, said the old man, times are hard, and I do wish you could get along without it just now. Couldn't you?"

"Yes, I suppose I could," replied the old lady with a sigh, and the calico was dropped.

A moment later old Mr. Jones asked the same clerk if he had any tobacco, and whether he had any of that good old Virginia leaf, which they used to keep in stock. The clerk said: "Yes, we have, but it's awful high. It's $2 a pound, and I think it will go higher before it gets less. We have just one caddy left." "You think it will go higher," replied

"Yes, said the clerk, it's sure to go

"Well, you might put me up five pounds," said the old man, and a moment later I saw him carrying it out of the store. He had not $6 to spend for his wife's calico dress, but he thought nothing of putting $10 into plug to-bacco. This is a sample of the kind of treatment some wives are receiving every day. I don't suppose old Mr. Jones realized his selfishness. He probably loved his wife, but he had been brought up the wrong way."

The following postmasters have been appointed: Dico, Stokes county, L. S. Lackey vice C. L. Sheppard, removed; Glendale, Alamance county, J. C. Tate vice V. C. Tate, resigned; Manchester, Cumberland county, Mrs. K. M. Clark vice M. D. Clerk, dead; Pernell, Wake county, Miss Emma Hines vice M. C. Davis, removed.

The arrest of Benjamin Milliken at LaGrange, Tenn., effectively disposes of the report that he had sailed for Europe. He gave a $5,000 bond for his appearance at the next term of court where he will be tried for burglary and attempted assault. The story stated that Judge Phillips did not care to prosecute had no foundation. While shrinking from the publicity on his daughter's account, justly indignant and will demand the full punishment that the law pre-scribes. Milliken was what is known as a "sporting" man, a dashing club man, was well connected and regarded him-self as a lady-killer. A few years in confinement at hard labor would take out some of his egotism and frills.

Senator Blackburn's daughter is engaged to be married to Senor Edmundo Plaza, the Secretary of the Mexican Le-The Senor is rich, handsome, and in the line of a Spanish-Mexican title, which his pretty bride can claim if she so desires. He follows devotedly in the footsteps of the Blackburns at Cape May, carries their poodle dogs, and is the typical sighing swain.

There is No Reason Why Judge Boykin Should be Criticised. LAURINBURG, N. C., July 29.

To the Editor of the News and Observer In your to-day's issue in an editorial you state that there has been much severe criticism on the ruling made by Judge Boykin in the Shemwell-Payne trial in his refusal to allow the motion of the State for a change of venire. I am far away from the scene of that fa-mous trial and belong to that large nummous trial and belong to that large number of people who think the verdict of the jury a miscarriage of justice. I kept myself thoroughly informed with the case from the beginning so far as I was able to do through the newspaper reports, and in it I was unable to see one single thing out of which the slightest represely ought to be brought against. reproach ought to be brought against the pure and upright Judge who presided at the trial. I was unable to see where in any matter he showed the slightest bias on either side. We will presume that the court knew nothing of the cause until he took his seat on the bench except that information which comes ordinarily to every man who reads the papers. If the Judge should hear anything before he enters upon the trial of a cause every intelligent man knows that it is his duty to completely dismiss it from his mind. So when this cause came up for a hearing a motion is made for a change in the place of trial. The State filed its affidavits. The defendant replied and by his own oath and that of others denied the statements contained in the affidavits for the State. Then the Judge must assume the responsibility the Judge must assume the responsibility of deciding. He recurs to the statute and finds that it reads as follows. "Removed to some adjacent county for trial if he shall be satisfied that a fair trial cannot be had after hearing all the testimoney which may be offered on either side by affidaivts."

So then the law is that the Judge must remove when the evidence satisfies him that a fair trial cannot be had.

He can't go outside and call a council of his friends to ascertain the true condition of affairs; he can't invoke the aid of astrolgers to divine what the jury will ultimately determine about a matter; he can't have the valuable assistance of wise men with their post hoc arguments and who abound everywhere, but looking only to the evidence adduced by each

So agreeing with those who condemn the verdict of the jury, I respectfully dissent from a censure of the Judge. Edward T. Boykin is an ornament to the judiciary of North Carolina, and one of the best conjunction of the least conjunction of the le the best equipped lawyers who ever sat on the bench. To his attainments as a lawyer he carries with him an affable suave temperament and in the discharge of his judicial duties he is always patient, learned, and fearless. I do not know how much longer he may serve his State in this capacity, but when he goes out of office his judicial ermine will be taken by his successor pure and unspotted.
Then let us not hold Judge Boykin responsible for a miscarriage of justice when he could not foresee the probable out-come of his ruling. Let us not wound his feelings.

THE SOUTHERN TRADE:

With this season we begin our THIRTY-SIXTH YEAR of successful business. We have entered the race for popular approval and patronage with renewed energy, and we propose to maintain the high standard of excel-lence which our vehicles now hold.

We are making our work better, finer and more stylish than ever, and while we have made these improvements we have not increased prices, but on some of our styles we are prepared to quote lower prices than we have ever offered before. We have the largest and best equipped plant in the South.

Our various departments are now thoroughly equipped with the best labor-saving machinery, which enables us to turn out work more economically, and to fill our orders in the shortest possible time. We employ skilled and experienced workmen, and use the best material in all our work

From our long experience in the CARRIAGE BUSI-NESS, we think that we understand the wants of the Southern trade. Our increased facilities, favorable location and low freight rates to all Southern points, give us advantages that cannot be found elsewhere. We believe that we can make it to your interest to place your orders with us, and we respectfully solicit a share of your patronage. We can furnish you with a line of Southern made work that cannot be surpassed—for style, finish and durability—by any factory North or West.

We say this advisedly and we know that we are sustained by many of the best people from Virginia to Texas who have for years been first our patrons then our friends—for the character of our work is such that every patron becomes a friend and every friend secures us other patrons. In this way our business has been built.
When you wish to have don't let, anybody sell you any

When you wish to buy don't let anybody sell you any but a Tyson and Jones' vehicle. There may be others good, but there is only one "BEST," and remember ours is that one.

TIT AGAIN.

Past success points the way to future prosperity. In years gone by we have taken the bit in our teeth and hurled the staunchest qualities unhesitatingly against the sharp rocks of reduction. For years to come we shall follow the custom that has made the entire community rise up in the fullness of their appreciation and call us LEADERS. Leaders because we are bold and fearless, leaders because our policies are of enterprise, because we jump the beaten track of handsome monotony and with petroagae by descripting it. and win patronage by deserving it.

We begin our great annual mid-summer season sale of every dollars worth of suits for men, youth and boys'; also black Alapaca Coats and Vests, Single Coats, Fancy Coats and Vests that were bought for this season and are yet unsold and
