THE CLOSING SCENES AT WAKE FOREST

Rev. J. M. Lynch's Powerful Baccalaureate Sermon

CROWDS ARE POURING IN

Alumni Address Last Night by Prof. J. T. Alderman, of Henderson.

PROF. SHALER MATTHEWS TODAY

To-night Dr. Clarence B. Ashley Dean of the Law School of the University of New York Will Deliver the Address Before the Law Department, (Staff Correspondence).

Wake Forest, N. C., May 26.—Wake Forest has been filling up fast today.

Every train has brought a goodly quota to swell the big crowd that is to see the boys take their sheep-skins this week.

The campus presents a very lively appearance, and the band, which by the way meets every train, adds much to the gaiety of things in general.

The college has had a most successful year in every respect, and every one connected with the institution is feeling exceedingly well over its achievements and its bright prospects.

President Charles E. Taylor said today, in talking about the year's work: "We are just closing up the sixty-eighth session of the college. The president in his report to the Board of Trustees has spoken of it as in all respects a good session."

The young men have, with unusually rare exceptions, studied well and behaved well. We find every year that the Freshmen who come to us are better prepared for their classes.

"We now have nearly a score of associational academies, and we are looking very hopefully to them as feeders in the future. There will be two Masters of Arts to graduate on Wednesday, and 21 Bachelors of Arts, Bachelors of Science, and Bachelors of Education. A large number of the men are going to be heard from some day."

"The new gymnasium has revealed its great value during the last session. The Department of Physical Culture, under the direction of Prof. Crittenden, has largely alleviated or prevented the ailments incident to sedentary life."

"Considerable additions have been made to the library during the year, and a new card catalogue will soon be completed. Arrangements will be made to keep the library open eight hours a day next session. The improvements made in the dormitory building and the appointment of Mrs. J. S. Vann as college matron have contributed greatly to cleanliness and order."

The commencement began last night with the baccalaureate sermon by Rev. J. M. Lynch, of Roanoke, Va. It was a brilliant, powerful effort, a message that made an impression that will last long in the minds of all his hearers."

Dr. Clarence D. Ashley, Dean of the University of New York Law School, who was to have addressed the Law Department tonight, was unavoidably detained on the road, and will not reach here until tomorrow. Accordingly it was decided to have the alumni address by Prof. J. T. Alderman, superintendent of the Henderson graded schools, tonight, and Dr. Ashley's address tomorrow (Tuesday) night."

Tomorrow morning at 10:30 Prof. Shaler Matthews, of the University of Chicago, will deliver the address before the literary Societies."

On Wednesday, at 11 a. m. will be the commencement proper, with orations by the class. On that day also there will be presentations of seven portraits, which will be hung in Memorial Hall. Among these is one of Rev. Dr. T. E. Skinner, chairman of the Board of Trustees, painted by Mr. Jacques Busbe."

The following is a corrected list of the young men who will be graduated: Bachelor of Arts—T. M. Beach, F. P. McSwain, J. H. Powell, M. B. Sawyer, D. M. Sorrell, M. F. Tyler, B. P. Walker, J. M. Arnette, T. M. Beach, B. H. Browning, A. P. Garrett, J. K. Henderson, T. K. Henderson, T. E. McBrayer, O. M. Mull, W. B. Rentrow, H. G. Scarborough, W. F. Stafford, R. F. Stafford, F. T. Vaughan, W. B. Woodruff, T. F. Barnes, A. J. Bothea, Jr., J. T. Buff, T. H. Harnick, A. W. Honeycutt, J. A. McMillan, F. T. Rowall, J. T. Sikes, Jr., G. T. Stephenson, W. F. Vaughan.

Bachelor of Law—E. J. Britz, F. D. Harnick, O. P. Dickinson, P. E. Thomas, E. F. Upchurch."

Wednesday night a concert and social gathering will presently terminate the session of 1901-'02."

THE BACCALAUREATE SERMON At eight o'clock last night, after a large crowd had gathered in the Memorial Hall, Rev. J. M. Lynch, of Roanoke, Va., who was to preach the baccalaureate sermon, was escorted to the rostrum by President Taylor, Dr. Skinner and Dr. Hufham. Then the chief marshals ushered the Senior Class to the seats which were reserved for them.

The services began with music by the choir. Dr. Hufham read some verses from the fourth chapter of Ephesians. After prayer by Dr. Skinner and several hymns, Mr. Lynch was introduced in a few well-chosen words by Dr. Hufham. Then for the next forty-five minutes the audience listened attentively to a sermon couched in the purest English, re-with words of admonition for the future conduct of the Senior Class.

The theme of the sermon, was "The Goals of Christian Manhood." His text was Ephesians 4: 13: "Till we all come in the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ."

"The first goal is harmony. 'Till we all come into the unity of the faith.' I interpret this faith to be Jesus Christ, His person, His words, His works, His spirit. Nothing else has stood the test of time. Nothing else will draw men to a common center or bind and hold all men together. With this definition of faith, I declare on the authority of the text, it to be God's ultimate purpose to bring men into harmony one with another. For the perfecting of this union God employs many varied agencies." Among these he dwelt upon the influence of commerce and the extension of modern knowledge.

"The second goal of Christian manhood is knowledge. God wants no faith that is not linked with knowledge. The phrase, 'knowledge of the Son of God' is deeper than we can comprehend. To know Jesus is to know God; to know God is to know all; and to know all is to know as we are known. The one school in which we may learn Christ is the school of experience, and it has for its motto the words: 'Oh taste and see that the Lord is good.'"

"The third goal in Christian manhood is goodness. Again we find the organic relation. God wants no faith that is not linked with knowledge and no knowledge that is not linked with goodness. To attain the ideal of Christ, two things are necessary: (1) A perfect model, and (2) A vitalizing and transforming power. We have both in Christ. He is our pattern and He is the power."

"Among the goals of the graduating class, I wanted you to see the three shining goals of Christian manhood—harmony, knowledge, goodness. Bring your lives into the harmony of His peace, your minds into the light of His knowledge, your characters to the measure of His goodness, and you shall stand one day on prouder heights and in the midst of greater throngs, even in the number of all those who have come into the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God unto a perfect man, the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ."

PROF. ALDERMAN'S ADDRESS. Memorial Hall was filled to its utmost capacity tonight to hear Prof. J. T. Alderman, Superintendent of the Henderson graded schools, deliver the Alumni Address. It was a powerful plea for the brotherhood of man, marked by passages of great beauty and eloquence.

After a brief introduction Mr. Alderman referred to these alumni who have died during the year, among them being Chief Justice Faircloth and Mr. S. G. Flournoy, who within one month after his graduation was drowned, and Mr. P. W. Johnson, Gen. Thomas F. Toon, Rev. C. G. Jones, of Covington, Ky. He then spoke of the class of 1880, his own class, and called the roll.

He announced as his subject, "The Ancient Mysteries and Modern Fraternity." Beginning with the ancient Hebrew mysteries, the speaker traced the origin, development and purposes of them all through the Egyptian, Eleusinian, the Rosicrucian, and others. From these mysteries he traced the organization of fraternity through the succeeding ages as shown, the speaker saying: "The searching after truth finds delight in tracing the footprints of the ancient order, which is wonderful in its unparalleled history. Its secret influence for good, its perpetuity, in spite of the most bitter persecutions. From it originated the various orders of knighthood which influenced the civilization of Europe."

Mr. Alderman referred to the great cathedral builders of the middle ages, and asked the question, who were those master builders? Whence came they? "They were," he said, "an order of workmen, bound together by strong ties of brotherhood, containing in their midst master builders, whose minds had been stored with the learning of the ancient mysteries."

The speaker then passed from the discussion of the purely fraternal association to that of the absolute want of the fraternal spirit, and came down to the present time, of which he said: "Kingcraft has been overthrown, priest-craft is fast passing away, but mummification is erecting its temple, Phoenix-like, upon the ashes of the other two. Those touched with the greed for gold, and who are endowed with financial acumen, made their way to this temple, where the life-blood of the poor, the tender sensibilities of the oppressed and human hearts are bartered for gold. The mutual dependence of man has been forgotten. In many of the so-called civilized communities the picture of suffering and misery can hardly be overdrawn. The oppressors are no less savage than the painted warrior or the midnight assassin."

"There is nothing inherently wrong in the combination of capital. It is only when the corporation, conscious of its power, becomes absorbed with an inordinate greed for gain and spoil that it becomes a curse." The speaker then drew a graphic picture of the suffering and misery incident to child labor in modern industrial enterprises.

From the conception of organized fraternalism Mr. Alderman passed on to a broader and a holier field, the "Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of man," and said in this connection that the great Parliament of Religions held in Chicago a few years ago showed the tendency of manhood toward more universal fraternity. "As the human race becomes more enlightened by the highest type of universal education, penetration and spiritual uplift is not wanting."

Egotism as Displayed in Everyday Life, Carrie Louise Spenser, Surry county. A certain amount of self-esteem may be said to be essential to worldly success. Essential or non-essential egotism is an American characteristic. Manifesting itself in a variety of ways and concerned with a multitude of objects it is confined to no one class, age, sex or profession. Our State pride is a form of this universal self-worship. Proud of our natural resources, of our first attempts at colonization, of things done and things attempted, we are proudest of all perhaps of our military record. Ministers, writers, public speakers, young and old, rich and poor, male and female, we are all egotistical. Egotism is the motive power that moves humanity. The Revelation of God in Nature, Julia Pasmore, Wake county. The seen world is full of mysteries. Yet proclaimed in unmistakable language, the hand that made us is divine. All men read this truth, all interpret it, all give it expression in life. The beauty of nature is the poet's inspiration, its sublimity, the object of savage worship, and its symmetry the revelation of a God all in all. From the delicate fringes of the meadow daisy to the rugged peak of towering mountain—all nature, animate and inanimate is but a revelation of the divinity, power, wisdom and love of God. Our Debt to the Birds, Nella Watson, Vance county. The birds are a valuable part of our State's resources. Their contribution to the beauty and happiness of life is not to be measured in dollars and cents. As scavengers, as destroyers of rodents and injurious insects they are to be reckoned among the benefactors of mankind. The fact that through the ravages of insects our country sustains an annual loss of $200,000,000 is proof practical of the necessity for protecting the birds. Without this protection they are in a fair way to be exterminated. An educated sentiment is needed that will intelligently shield the birds from all destructive agencies.

Miss Lewis Dove, Class of '97, Tells Sweetly and Eloquently of the Objects of the Building. Class Day Exercises.

(Special to The News and Observer.) Greensboro, N. C., May 26.—The decennial commencement of the State Normal and Industrial College began here Sunday with the annual sermon to the graduating class, which was preached by Rev. Dr. William Adams Brown, of Union Theological Seminary, New York City.

The auditorium of the college was crowded, some being unable to get seats, though undergraduates serving as marshals were successful in getting an unusually large number of people comfortably seated in the hall. Rev. Dr. L. N. Crawford led in prayer, after the doxology had been rendered by the College Glee Club, supported by a chorus of male voices selected from the several church choirs of the city. Before and after the sermon there were exquisitely rendered sacred selections by the college club, directed by Prof. Clarence R. Brown.

Dr. McIver introduced Dr. Brown as a man who was distinguished as a teacher as well as distinguished as a preacher. The speaker announced his text as Romans, 8:19: "For the earnest expectation of the creation waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God." The theme was "The World's Need of Christ-like Men."

"The sermon was one of great simplicity and great ability. It was the simplicity of greatness and the greatness of simplicity."

ESSAYS LAST NIGHT. The auditorium tonight was tried to its utmost capacity. A thousand or more of parents and friends of the young ladies and friends of the young ladies were present. The interest was great and the enjoyment of the exercises was intense.

Among the thirty-five excellent essays handed in by the members of the graduating class, the following were selected by the faculty to be read at this evening's exercises.

"The Mission of Old Malls, Bettie Tripp, Pitt county. The old malls is the harmonizing element in our social, religious and philanthropic life. In the home, the school and the church, among the suffering, the bereaved and the destitute—her life is one of consecrated service wherever gentle forbearance, tireless patience and willing service are needed, her blessed influence is felt. Clara Barton, Mary Lyon, Dorothy Dix and Frances Willard are types of the life beautiful. As long as children are to be taught, the sick cared for, the poor and the distressed visited and relieved; in short, while the better and higher life is possible, so long will the old mall be needed and her influence felt."

"The Child in Literature, Virginia Scott, Newby, equinus county. Almost totally ignored in the past, forgotten even by Shakespeare, Milton and Byron, the child is today the most popular theme in literature. To the artist and to Froebel is owing much of this increased interest in child life. With Dickens, the champion of defenseless innocents, a new era dawned. George Elliot, Eugene Field, Mark Twain and Whitcomb Riley caught the inspiration and by their writings have increased our love and sympathy for the little child—the pure child, in this century of children, is the hope of future generations, and its influence shall lead the coming race into light and liberty."

"God Made the Country, God Made the Town, Minnie Lavinia Fields, Guilford county. Christ's law, democracy, statesmanship, self-preservation, all demand that we labor for the uplifting of our country. The disastrous exodus from the country is to be attributed to the greater attraction of town life. Chief among these are the greater rewards for labor and the opportunities for social and intellectual improvement. We should see that the youth are given right ideals of the dignity of manual labor, that with trained minds and skilled hands they may demand and receive the rewards of intelligence, and finally, that adequate opportunity for this higher mental culture and spiritual uplift is not wanting."

TODAY'S SCHEDULE. Charlotte at Raleigh. Greensboro at Durham. Wilmington at New Bern.

THE HORNETS BISS G9 6. 6. This is my masters, to some who read these chronicles, will be a fearful refrain of woe.

To others it will send a paean of rejoicing, with the full stop pulled out and the colloquial whistle wide open. It altogether depends upon the point of view.

To those who pinned their faith upon the one time Red Birds the sky is overcast and the day is dark and dreary. But those who sit in the grandstand with the Buzzing Hornets everything is spring time Gentle Annie, and the song birds are corolling melodies sweet to hear.

Raleigh's undoing in the contest of Ball and bat yesterday afternoon came because of two things, which we itemize after this fashion:

First: A great big Hornet, "Long John" iBishop was at the slab. Second: The Pennant winners concluded that to "get was human" and solemnly agreed to be human.

Oh, yes, the score. Well, it was seven to two, and all that Raleigh is taking care of is the two.

Umpire McNamara had fallen a victim to convivial habits yesterday and was not in the proper shape to do the umpiring, so President Busbee appointed Mr. J. Sherwood Upchurch, of Raleigh, as the umpire for the day. Mr. Upchurch "made good" and everything ran smoothly, until in the sixth of the game when he called a foul ball that Pastors cracked ever in the race track. The bleachers disagreed with the umpire, but many who went out and viewed the situation afterward said the decision was all right.

The ball looked fair, and Cooper, of the Hornets, who was after it in left field, ran smack into the fence and smashed of the panels in his rush. He went at it like a locomotive, but was not hurt.

Ashebnack, the "Old German," as he calls himself, was in the game and was the life of the day. He has collected a fine set of ball players, and in yesterday's game they showed up as stars. They won the game on their merits, as thirteen hits against seven shov, not to speak of the error column.

There was a great crowd out to see the contest, and the uproar and confusion on the grand stand, the applause in the jangle of bells, the ringing of jangle-jangle bells, was more like ball days of last year than any this season.

Bishop is a wonder at the slab. He was wild, terribly wild at times, but he kept his head, and when things seemed against him, pulled out of the hole.

Leonard pitched a good game also, but the errors behind him in the early part of the game must have been discouraging. But yet at no time did Raleigh seem to have a chance to win.

For two innings it was Blank, Blank for both teams, but when Charlotte came up in the third the trouble began. Cooper, Weaver, Armstrong each took hits, the last to center, where a wild throw home allowed Cooper to score. Then O'Steer batted to Farrell at first, who threw to second, where there was no one to catch the ball. It went out into left field, and by the time the Gumb ball playing was over Weaver and Armstrong had scored. Ashebnack batted to Leonard and a wild throw gave him first, but Wynne got a fly from Breuthers and doubled on the Jolly German at first.

Charlotte scored again when Armstrong and Osteen led with hits. The ball was thrown to Wynne, but he let it go and Armstrong scored. Ashebnack flew to center and Osteen scored on the throw. Breuthers singled, but as hit by the batted ball he Hen Hempleman batted between first and second, Lehman went out to first.

Raleigh got in a run in the fifth. Leonard had pitched when Pastor singled

PATTERSON SHOWS HE IS CONSISTENT

His Position on the Philippine Question

HE REPLIES TO FORAKER

Gallinger Offers a Resolution to Investigate Lynchings INQUIRY FOR JUDICIARY COMMITTEE

The Resolution After Some Remarks by Mr. Bailey Goes Over. Gallinger Actually Admits They Have Lynchings in His Section.

The Gospel Tent

(By the Associated Press.) Washington, May 26.—During the greater part of the Senate's session today Mr. Patterson, of Colorado, one of the minority members of the Philippine Committee, occupied the floor in a discussion of the Philippine question.

He devoted much of the time in justifying the course of his newspaper, the Denver News, from whose editorials Mr. Foraker, of Ohio, quoted several days ago. Mr. Patterson quoted from the utterances of the paper to show that it consistently had advocated the independence of the Philippines since December, 1898, the editorial written by Mr. Foraker having been quoted prior to that time. He discussed the whole Philippine question, and had not concluded his remarks when he yielded the floor for the day. Several lively colloquies occurred during the speech.

After some further discussion of the Philippine question between Mr. Foraker and Mr. Hoar, dealing particularly with President McKinley's proclamation to the Filipino, the bill was laid aside for the day and sixty-two private pension bills were passed.

Mr. Gallinger (N. H.) offered a resolution providing that the Judiciary Committee of the Senate should make an investigation into the subject of lynchings in the United States with a view of ascertaining whether there is any remedy for them. Mr. Gallinger said he introduced the resolution in full view of the fact that he might be charged with precipitating a sectional controversy, but nothing further was from his thoughts. He said lynchings were not confined to the North, and white men as well as black, had been the victims. Throughout the country intense interest was manifested in the subject. He thought it imperative that the Judiciary Committee should take some action upon the subject. During the past ten years 2,638 lynchings had been committed in the United States. If the strong arm of the law could reach out to prevent such occurrences he deemed it desirable that it do so.

He had read the Associated Press account of the burning of a negro in Texas a few days ago. He said history did not furnish any instances of such a heinous crime and Fox's book of martyrs was tame in comparison.

The whole wretched business, he said, was a disgrace to American manhood, and in the light of which the alleged atrocities in the Philippines paled into insignificance.

The Spanish inquisition did not furnish a case exceeding that in inhumanity. He apprehended that it would be said that the Federal Government was powerless and that the States had exclusive jurisdiction. If so, the American people desired to know it. Public sentiment should be aroused to prevent such inhuman atrocities.

They should come to an end and the majesty of the law should be vindicated. Mr. Bailey (Texas) said he had no idea of being drawn into any sectional controversy by the Senator from New Hampshire, and he would be willing to have the people judge the men who perpetrated such outrages. He desired, however, to discuss the question whether the Government had the right to go into the several States and take charge of peace and good order. He asked, therefore, that the resolution go over.

"There can be no objection," said Mr. Bailey, "to a report from the Judiciary Committee on the subject, because I am sure there can be but one conclusion reached by that committee. But if, in the course of its investigation, it should undertake to parade before the country all the lynchings and burnings that have occurred in any section over a nameless offense and all the murders of women and children, and all the abductions which have occurred in other sections of the country, the only result, it seems to me, would be to make us think less of ourselves as a people and as a nation, and I have little disposition to indulge in that pastime myself."

The resolution went over. Subsequently Mr. Culberson (Texas) had read the story of the burning of a negro near Leavenworth, Kansas, last January, saying he wanted the fact shown that these crimes occurred in other States than Texas. He hoped the New Hampshire Senator when reiterating examples of these atrocities in the future would not confine himself to one State.

Mr. Hoar, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said his committee had had the subject under consideration and the bill considered had been reported by him adversely. The matter had been considered a question of constitutional law and duty.
