POINTING TO WHAT HAS BEEN ACHIEVED

Through a Golden Glamor He Views the Administration of Our Island Possessions and Find it in All Respects

(By the Associated Press.) Hartford, Aug. 22 .- President Roosevelt delivered an address here tonight on the questions of the day. He spoke as fol-

"From the days of Monroe, Clay and the younger Adams, we, as a people, the West Indies and the Isthmus connecting the two America's feeling that cessful negotiation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty at last cleared the way for the construction of the isthmian canal. There is hardly a ripple of failure on the stream of our success, and so, as is apt to be our way, we do not think of it all. however, peace has come. First and foremost in Porto Rico we have consistenly striven to get the very best insular service it is necessary to disregard any question of mere party expediency and to look at the matter solely own nation and of the welfare of the island itself. This has been the standpoint adhered to in selecting the men who represent our government in Porto Rico-governor, treasurer, attorney general, judges, superintendent of education

"In Cuba the problem was larger, more complicated and more difficult. Here again we kept our promise absolutely. For over three years we administered it on a plane higher than it had ever reached before during the four centuries since the Spaniard first landed upon its shores. We brought moral and physical cleanliness into the government. We stamped out yellow fever-in itself an inestimable the people of our own southern cities. We established a school system. We made life and property secure, so that industry could again begin to thrive. Then, when we hal laid deep and broad the foundations upon which civil liberty and national independence must rest, we turned the island oved to the hands of those whom the people had chosen as the founders of the new republic. Cuba must always be related to us in international politics. She must in international affairs be to a degree a part of our political system. We expect her to accept a political attitude toward us which we think wisest both for her and us. In retur we must be prepared to put her in an economic position as regards our tariff system which will give her some measure of the prosperity which we enjoy. I believe that it only a matter of time-and I trust, only a matter of a very short time-before we enter into reciprocal trade relations with "The Isthmian Canal represents what is probably to be the greatest engineering feat-the greatest feat of its kindof the twentieth century. eBfore we start upon the construction of the canal, certain questions of retail and of our relations with the people owning the soil have to be settled. When this has been done, the first question will come upon choosing the commission which is to supervise the building of the canal. Here, again, we have to deal with an on terprise so vast and so far reaching in its effects that but one thought is permissible-how to get the very best men in the nation, the men of the highest engineering and business and administrative skill, who will consent to undertake the work. If possible, I should like to see those men represent different sections and different political parties. But these questions are secondary. The primary aim must be to get men who, though able to control much greater salaries, than the nation is able to pay, nevertheless, possess the patriotism and the healthy ambition which will make them willing to put their talents at the government's ser-

the Philippines. The easy thing to dothe thing which appealed not only to lazy and selfish men, but to very many good men, whose thought did not drive them down to the root of things-was to leave the islands. Had we done this a vened and then some stronger power would have stepped in and seized the islands and have taken up the task which we in such a case would have flinched from performing. A less easy but infinitely more absurd course, would have been to leave the islands ourselves and at the same time to assert that we would not permit any one else to interfere with htem. This particular course would it has learned that M. Sarafoff, exhave combined all the possible disadvantages of every other course which was advocated. It would have placed us in a humiliating position, because when teh actual test came it would have been quite out of the question for us after some striking deed of savagery had occurred in the islands, to stand by and prevent the re-entry of civilization into them; while the mere fact of our having threatened thus to guarantee the local tyrants and wrong-doers against outside interferences by ourselves or others, would have put a premium upon every species of tyranny and anarchy within passed. the islands.

"Finally there was the course which we adopted-not an easy course-one fraught with danger and difficulty. We made up our minds to stay in the islands to put down violence, to establish peace and order-and then to introduce a just and wise civil rule accompanied by a measure of self government which should and that in view of such request they increase as rapidly as the islanders showed themselves fit for it. Well, it was certainly a formidable task, but have always looked with interest upon think of the marvelously successful way in which it has been accomplished.

It would be hard to find in modern times a better example of successful constructive statesmanship. Finally, in the Philippines as in Cuba, the instances of wrong doing by either our civil or military representatives have been astonishingly few, and punishment has been meted with even handed justice to all offenders.

"The awakening of the Orient means very much to all the nations of Christiandom, commercially no less than politically, and it would be short-sighted statesmanship on our part to refuse to take the necessary steps for securing a proper share of our people of this commercial future. The possession of the Philippines has helped us, as the securing of the open door in China has helped us. Already the government has taken the necessary steps to provide for the laying of a Pacific cable under conditions, which safe-guarded absolutely the interests of the American public. Our commerce with the East is growing rapidly. Events have abundantly justified, alike from the moral and material standpoint, all that we have done in the Far East as a sequel to our war with Spain.'

Still, not believing that your course is wise or just I cannot agree to it. Being a State matter Forsyth county alone should not decide between us, for it would be just as fair for one of our candidates for clerk, to propose to leave his election to Winston-Salem township because he thought he was stronger there, instead of to all the townships in the county. Even if politic to leave such a question to one county it certainly ought not to be to a con vention constituted like ours will be, for you know it is not to be held under the plans of our party organization, with primaries in each township to select delegates, but is a mass meeting where every Democrat is a delegate, and where only a few out of the many votes in the county will likely be present. Again we both have warm friends, who are very zealous in our behalf, and to inject a motion into the convention that might ingender bitterness would injure the county ticket, a result which neither of us can desire. therefore renew my forthe advice of General Gobin, the officers mer proposition, to let our members go and men of the first battalion of the to Raleigh pledged to vote for the stronger candidate, caring not so much for either of us, as for getting the Senator This from Forsyth. The news that I felt from the State at large makes me hopeful of my success. If elected to the high position of Senator, I will serve all the people of every class faithfully and honestly, trying to do all I can for the upbuilding of my State. If defeated, I will not sulk, but as in the past will work zealously for Democratic supremacy in our State and nation, but I cannot agree that a mass-meeting in one county shall decide the question of my success or defeat in the State. Hoping that after you calmly think over the matter that you will agree to my proposition of letting our members select the candidate that will prove the stronger before the General Assembly, I am,

The Fog Lifts, But Seaward a Haze Still Drifts.

THE LOOKOUT LINE IS NOW EXTENDED

The Wireless Telegraph Station on Nantucket is Included in it and Incoming Ships will be Questioned as to Pillsbury's Whereabouls.

(By the Associated Press.) Rockport, Mass., Aug. 22.-The contrast in the conditions prevailing off shore this morning and those of yesterday were most marked, and those participating in or watching the war manoeuvers of the navy early today found things favorable to the squadron under Commander John E. Pillsbury, which is trying to make a landing on the New England coast between Portland, Maine, and Provincetown, Mass., while Rear Admiral Higginson and his vessels defend the seaboard. This morning a log so thick that the water of the harbor could not be seen from naval headquarters, shrouded Cape Ann and the adacent oceans Yesterday, for miles in the bright, clear atmosphere objects at sea og set in. It was a dense cloud and at first impenetrable to the eye beyond a distance of ten or a dozen feet. Just before nine o'clock there were indications that the sun was burning through the mist on shore.

Aside from the fact that the Kearsarge at least, was still at anchor off this place, little was actually known here as to the positions of the various ships of Admiral Higginson's squadron. Scouts had been reported off Portland. The cruiser Brooklyn skirted the end of Cape Cod early in the forenoon and went across to Plymouth. Thus both ends of the line of defense were found to be well guarded. and as the naval experts here felt reasonably sure that the Alabama and Massachusetts were with the Kearsarge off Straitsmouth Point, the center was thought to be safe. The station keepers here have been advised that the lookout line has been extended to Sankaty Head. on Nantucket, where the wireless telegraph station is located. From there all incoming ships will be querried as to whether or not they have seen any of Commander Pillsbury's ships and the results of these investigations will be signalled to the scout boats or the land

By 11 o'clock the fog had lifted and the pattleships were seen in their usual positions. Observation in the distance, however, was impossible, owing to a haze which hung low over the water. All the signal and lookout stations reported during the forenoon, showing that the message system was intact. All the scout boats were heard from before 11 o'clock, either at the station here or on board the Kearsarge.

It is learned that the rules of the nanouevers in which the vessels are engaged permit the destruction of the ships of the opposing squadron, and it appears that the fear that Pillsbury may dash in and "disable" one of his vessels is one reason why the defending fleet is kept so compact by Admiral Higginson.

You did not ask me to confer with you looking to an amicable adjustment of our differences, but simply announced your intention. Absence at court has prevented my sooner replying to your card. For more than a year, it has been known in the State that I would be a candidate for United States Senator and by public interview in the press last fall, and by a personal letter written to and received by you last February, (though not answered), I made known to you my purpose of entering the race.

"When I first announced myself, I had not the slightest intimation that you were a candidate, but from our past relations expected your cordial support. If you had declared yourself, prior to my doing so, the present unfortunate complication would not exist, for appreciating the friendship of our people, and their interests, to which you allude in your card, I would not have offered myself for the Senate. Our people know the situation and cannot intelligently blame me for this unpleasant condition
