

PRESENCE AND FUTURE PROSPERITY

Address of M. E. Ingalls of Cincinnati Before the American Bankers Association

At Atlantic City, N. J. September 27. Mr. M. E. Ingalls, president of the Merchants National Bank, Cincinnati, Ohio, spoke at our banquet on the "Future Prosperity." His remarks, in part, follow:

"We can tell of the prosperity of today, but who of us can read the signs of the future? I feel honored by this assignment, for it is the thought that is in everybody's mind today, whether he be rich or poor, politician or business man, that the liquidation, which has been going on in New York for a year, reduced the volume of business and is going to produce such a panic and depression that we shall see again the dull times of '73 to '78 and '93 to '98, when the mills will be closed and the streets filled with idle men."

"Some people affect to disregard the liquidation in Wall Street and say it is only paper loss of speculators, and that there has been no actual loss, and that the general business of the country and the future are not affected, and that we may go on without reference to what happens in that realm of finance known to the public as Wall Street. As well might they say the mariner on one of these large ocean steamers need pay no attention to his barometer, but keep on sailing his ship regardless of what it may show. We know that he might soon be wrecked and that the prudent mariner, when he sees the barometer falling, always trims his sails and puts his hip in condition to meet the coming storm. The variation of that instrument shows a coming. While the fall in the price of securities in Wall Street may not mean anything to sell, and as some men say it is only paper loss, the fact is whether a man is obliged to sell or not it affects his financial ability to carry on business and help others, and there is no doubt but that the mariner of business and trade of our country is as delicately adjusted to the conditions of that financial center as the barometer to the atmosphere, and the ups and downs of Wall Street show to the prudent business man whether he should put his business in order and limit his commitments, or go on regardless of the signs of the times. The chances are that if he follows the latter course he will soon be in trouble and find himself and friends crowded to the wall by disasters which, if he had taken heed, he might have avoided."

"Not an Alarmist. "I had the honor one year ago to deliver an address to the Bankers of this city, and I remember very well in such good times as we were having then, that there were signs of coming trouble, they evidently thought I was unnecessarily alarmed. We had then the largest program of our merchants had more orders on our books than ever before, our railroads were earning more gross money than they had ever done, labor was well employed, and the highest wages, yet it seemed to me that the clouds in the financial sky betokened trouble. Our expenses were too great and seemed no nation could very long prosper that was extravagant in its daily life as were the people of this country—not the expenses of a few multi-millionaires, but the ordinary people. I remember the illustration the fact that there had been in the last one or two years four hundred million dollars spent for automobiles, and I must add that that expense has gone on and increases and it is only one of the astonishing extravagances of our people. At that time I said there was a political danger which would result in legislation against business interests and it meant trouble. We were too anxious to eradicate in a day or a year the evils which were going on for years. I ventured then to make a prediction that if the Sherman Law was continued and left on our statute books, and enforced, it would produce a general distress in the business of our country. That, gentlemen, was only twelve months ago, and yet I might say today, I think, without boasting, that they were words of prophecy and they had now been demonstrated. What is the condition in the country today, and what has brought it about? First of all, the extravagance of the people; next the reckless expenditures and operations, especially the railroads, some of which undertook to rebuild and enlarge their lines without any regard as to how the money was to be provided."

"Spending Money Recklessly. "Years hence, when the history of the financing of railroads in the years of 1906 and 1907 shall be written up, it will be under the heading of what did and did happen at this time—the millions and millions of expenditures which were ordered without any visible means of providing for them. All the money that was raised by the liquidation which I have alluded to was one of the causes that aided in bringing the collapse, and the first thing the government managing the great enterprise knew they had no money to pay for their expenditures. Their bonds were not selling, their stock rights were not taken, except at a great sacrifice. Then they found that the money from their dreams and found large sums due and no money in the treasury. A scheme was devised which was possibly the best and only one that could be taken by which the term notes were sold to the public, mostly at one and two years, and paying from five to twelve per cent. interest. This large interest, of course, tempted the people who might have purchased bonds, and the result has been so far in 1907 we have had no market. The government hysteria has been fanned into a flame by people who thereby found a better excuse than any other for their mistakes, and the result was that when Wall Street began to liquidate there was no one to buy, and no matter how good and valuable some of the securities were they were thrown over at a great sacrifice. Added to this was the fact that there was some doubt as to the amount of crops we were going to harvest and the surplus we would have to sell to foreign countries, and the fact that the world itself was short of ready money, and the different financial centers of Europe were endeavoring to strengthen themselves, and this militated against our success in obtaining needed funds. Further, we were already beginning to discuss the Presidential election which occurs next fall, and this is apt to depress men from embarking in new enterprises. All of these things would make one feel that present business was surely doubtful, and that there was some alarm over the future. On the other hand, I believe that we were in a headache that we have had and the pains that we have been through have helped our system and that we are so strong in our economic condition that we shall avoid further liquidation and further depression of business, and that we shall have four or five more years of good business where labor will be well employed, and our factories and industries busy. Let us consider the conditions of business at the present time. The railroad earnings look well, the factories and other industries are well employed. There

R. W. Priest, the "Red Feather" representative, coming down from Raleigh Wednesday night, got up from his seat, soon after the train left Princeton, took his grip and went into the next car, and in the next moment he was left the car in which he had been riding when a pistol ball crashed through the window of the seat in which he had been sitting, and had he been still sitting there he would have undoubtedly been killed. Some murderous misadventure had fired at the train from the outside. The gentleman sitting just behind where Mr. Priest had sat rushed into the other car, while with excitement, and brought him back to show him how narrowly he had escaped death.

NO WATER WORKS AGREEMENT. Five Steamers in Wilmington to Carry Out Cotton Cargoes—Hazing Event—Damon and Pythias Play.

(Special to News and Observer.) Wilmington, N. C., Sept. 27.—There are now five steamers in port for cotton cargoes and two others are expected to arrive any day. Two have already cleared, one yesterday and another will be ready today. The receipts of the staple here continue very much in excess of last year and there is no difficulty in finding the market for it as they come yesterday the receipts were 4,536 bales against only 2,880 bales same day last year.

CHEAP POWER FOR HICKORY. Three Thousand Horse Power Will Be Developed on Catawba River.

(Hickory Democrat.) Col. M. E. Thornton and Mr. Frank Hart have returned from New York where they have been completing the necessary preliminaries before work is commenced on the dam, which will be located on Catawba river about three and one-half miles from Hickory. The gold bonds are now being engraved and a large portion of these will be taken by the Carnegie Trust Company of New York city. Three thousand horse power will be developed now, as that is considered sufficient to supply the needs of Hickory for some time to come. This electric power will tend to the industrial enterprises of our city. The electric power will be put on the market at about 25¢ per horse-power per annum, which is far cheaper than power can be developed by steam.

Election of Aldermen by the City-at-Large.

To the Editor: It would be much easier for aldermen elected by the whole city instead of by wards to appreciate and reflect public sentiment, especially in the public utilities. The interest of the city in all matters of public concern are, or should be, one. A united city—anything which promotes unity of endeavor, unity of sentiment and unity of interest—will build up as nothing else can. Division of the whole city into wards could look up beyond our borders and make ourselves felt both by our rivals and the powers that be. With aldermen elected by the whole city it would be impossible for them to misapprehend public sentiment about an auditorium or any other improvement.

TWO WEDDINGS AT ONCE. Procession From the Country at the Home of a Statesville Minister.

Statesville, N. C., Sept. 27.—Wednesday afternoon about 5 o'clock there was somewhat of a stirring time around the home of Rev. R. S. Howie. A few minutes before five o'clock a happy wedding party consisting of nine couples from Chambersburg township, drove to town in buggies and were straight to the home of Mr. Howie, where in the presence of the party, and a number of others who were called in to witness the affair, four of the party became happy husbands and wives. It had been notified that the couples were coming and he had everything ready to do the work when they arrived.

Wealth in Our Crops. It has also been pointed out that a question hitherto as to what the output of our crops would be; now it is pretty well settled that while they are not equal to the bumper crop of last year, they are still above the average, and with the enormous amounts carried over there is a greater surplus than ever before, and makes the farming community rich. Think of it, Corn at their door bringing 50 cents per bushel, and a fair crop from this year and a large amount from last year to sell. The rate of the mortgages are being paid off, new investments are being made, and altogether the agricultural community, which is the real foundation of our country and prosperity, is in such fine condition that it would be almost impossible to have a long-continued depression in business in this country. Furthermore, you must remember that the country is getting a day of gold going into the currency of the world, of which we get our share, and this is helping the sick man by giving him stimulating and healthy food that he needs.

"Now what is the duty of the Bankers today? To furnish readily, and with courage, the currency necessary to move these crops, to transport them to foreign countries, and thus enable our merchants to pay their debts and turn the exchange in favor of this country, charging therefor a reasonable rate so that money may at last have its chance. It is no chance when rates were going at 3 per cent, and 4 per cent, but with the standard rate of 6 per cent all over the country the banks ought to make a fair return to their stockholders, and at the same time a rate is not oppressive to business. Six per cent is a fair rate for the country. No man can do bad business, but good business. Money ought to be furnished for the encouragement of plants in the shape of current loans, all extensions should wait until the capital of the country, seeking permanent investments, could be used. The banks of this country should set their face against loans for speculation or for promotion of enterprises. Let the new developments wait a little, let the business people learn that the extravagance and wild speculation of last year or two must stop and economy must be the rule. It was once told in my younger days by an old banker who had been very successful in the West, that there was but one way for an individual or corporation to get rich, and that was by doing without things they wanted. Let the people of this country apply this rule, and they will see how little time it takes to change business conditions from their despondent and condition to those of energy and life."

Finely Executed Statue by Valentine to Be Erected in Trinity Park.

Durham, N. C., Sept. 27.—The contract for the foundation and base of the monument to Mr. Washington Duke at Trinity Park, has been awarded to N. Underwood, of Durham, and work has started. This monument is to be placed in the middle of the present driveway leading from the front gate to the Duke building, and midway between the gate and the building. A survey and plans have been made for changing the grounds in front of the Duke building, so that the monument will be in the center of a wide grass plot extending from the Annie Roney fountain to the front entrance to the grounds. The driveway and walks will be changed, and the improvements will add much to the beauty of the park. This monument is the gift of a large number having contributed to its erection. It is the work of Valentine, of Richmond, the artist who made the reclining statue of Robert E. Lee, and other famous pieces of art and one of the most noted sculptors this country has produced.

Those who have seen the statue of Mr. Duke say that it is a remarkably fine piece of art, and the friends who have contributed to this fund are exceedingly well pleased with the work.

WAREHOUSE PLANS. Business Men of Three Municipalities Interested.

(Special to News and Observer.) Durham, N. C., Sept. 27.—The men of the place and many from 3 to 6 miles in the country gathered at the ball last night to hear E. C. Moore, of the Cotton Association. Mr. Moore explained the plan in showing how easy a warehouse could be built, that those present voted to make a move at once.

On Saturday 28th at 1 p. m., a committee from Rich Square will meet a committee from this community at Woodland, a charter will be drawn up and will be sent to Secretary of State Grimes.

Mr. Moore enlists the interest of the influential men. The committee he selected in this county are among the best men here.

HAS BRIGHT FUTURE. First Brick Laid in the Carolina Methodist College Walls by Miss Katie Lee McKinnon.

(Maxton Scottish Chief.) Last Tuesday morning, together with Major McKinnon, Secretary, Rev. S. E. Mercer, Financial Agent, and a party of young ladies we drove out to the college grounds to witness the laying of the first brick in the walls of the main building now in course of construction. We were surprised at the vast excavations which have been made and the excellent clay foundations secured. The ground plan at once places this work to the front of anything yet undertaken in this part of the State. A large number of masons were present and ready to flourish the trowel and make the mortar fly. Under the guidance of the superintendent, J. C. Parish, Miss Katie Lee McKinnon, lovely daughter of Secretary A. McKinnon, soon laid the first brick in the foundation which under the guidance of the All Seeing Eye is destined to bless our community, and the regions beyond in our own day and hand these blessings augmented down to coming generations. Though with great hopes, and wide prophetic this college is being established, already closed, and we believe that its promoters are building better than they know or hope or dream.
