Action furthering this condition took concrete form in the unanimous adoption by the conference of a resolution presented by the committee on trade relations between growers and spinners. This resolution declared that much of the present difficulty in handling cotton could be eliminated if the growers would adopt what is known as the warehouse system and establish selling agents in Europe and America. An essential part of this scheme is the adoption of a standard type of centract classification of cotton by grade and color, the unit to labor organizations at a meeting tobe 50,000 pounds instead of 100 bales, day adopted a resolution to order a net weight, and the handling of damp general strike, calling out all the cotton under uniform rules.
