Unprecedented Demonstration in Celebration of Washington's Birthday

Alexandria, Va., Feb. 22 .- With the biggest demonstration of its history, Alexandria today celebrated the one hundredth and seventy-six anniversary of the birthday of her foremost citizen, George Washington, Every two years the celebration of Washington's birthday here takes the form of a public parade, in which the representative branches of the army and navy of the United States, citizen soldiery of the District of Columbia PHILLIPS & PENNY and of the various States, civic, patriotic and secret orders, all do their part in making the day a gala occa-

The demonstration this afternoon was one of the largest and most impressive of the many that have taken place here, and it was witnessed by many thousands of the citizens of Washington and by residents of the surrounding' country in Virginia and Maryland, and by many from the States farther away. The events of the day were ushered in with blowing of whistles, and ringing of the bells at 7:00 a. m. At noon whistles and bells again pealed a welcome to the visitors and announced that the celebration in henor of the father of his country was about to begin. This morning a committee went to Mount Vernon and placed a handsome wreath on the tomb of Washington, a custom of the George Washington birthday association. In connection with the celebration services of a patriotic character were held in Christ Protestant Episcopal church, under the auspices of Mount Vernon council, Daughters of the American' Revolution. Among those present were many prominent mem bers of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Wyatt Monument Ceremonies to Be Attended by Edgecombe Guards
—Clerk of Court Has a Difficult Problem.

.Tarboro, N. C., Peb. 22.-The clerk of the court has a difficult problem to solve. Some years ago Bill Arrington, colored, died, carrying an insurance policy of $5,000. The late H. D. Teel was granted letters of administration, but death prevented him from settling the estate. Arrington's daughter renounced her right to administer and requested that Henry A. Gilliam be appointed administrator de bonis non. which was done. A short time after Mr. Gilliam's appointment a will was found. This will gave everything to Capt. E. E. Kaight, who had been very kind to him, even lending him money to deal in horses. A caveat was filed to the will. Counsel representing Capt. Knight now ask that an administrator he appointed with the will annexed, which is resisted by the administrator danthe representatives of the daughter. Thus the matter stands.

The Edgecombe Guards have decided to attend the unveiling of the monument to Private Wyatt, the first Confederate soldier to fall in the Civil War, which will be celebrated in Raleirb on June 10. The members of the Edgecombe Guards will fight a sham battle, representing the fight Bethel, in which Private Wyatt met his death. Arrangements to this ef-Tect have been made to give the sham battle in the park at Raleigh.

"I met Broderick on Monday, the 9th of December, in Halifax. He asked me if I was a deputy sheriff, that vor of Southern Republicans refusing he wanted me to go with him to to say who they are for for Presi- Pender's. I did so. I have read statement of J. H. Harvey and it is make the best trade with them? That a true statement of the facts as they astomshing position was taken by that occurred. Nothing else occurred. Broderick told Pender that there seemed to be a little mistake. Harvey did rot hear this remark."

I append herewith statements of E. W. Dickens and Emmet Branch:

Statement of E. W. Dickens. "On December 7th, I went from Weldon to Pender's with him that they do execute the law. They do took dinner with him. When I got not believe in compromising with there, the woman was in the kitchen our bounty must be liberal. We should ed to go he would pay her way back the same complaint against Collector to Richmond. She said she did not want to go until Tuesday or Wednesday. He told her that he had ten dollars of her money and that if she wanted it she could get it. She was at libe ty when I got there and there was no evidence of any confinement when Pender and I drove up. Statement of Ernest Branch. "I stayed at Pender's Saturday night, the 7th of December. Miss Sjostedt was there about the house. She was at liberty to go wherever she wanted. She made no complaint, appeared 'n good spirits. All of us ate break ast together Sunday morning. She said she had been there nearly two weeks and that she and Mr. Pender had never quarreled. She said that the only trouble was that she did not know how to milk."

Miss Stostedt was never restrained of her liberty at any time, and I never offered to her any insults or indignity. No doors were broken open by Broderick or any other person, and nobody drew a pistol on me. or covered me with a revolver, and the woman did not faint, as some newspapers stated. The Asbury Park officer stated when the party left that there must have been some mistake. One statement in a newspaper was to the effect that she found a dead negress in the kitchen. This statement like all the others, was false, and without foundation, I make this statement to correct the widespread falsehoods that have been given pulicity by the press of the country and to do justice to myself.

I append herewith the statement of W. E. Collier: Statement of W. E. Collier. "I went to T. E. Pender's on Tuesday after Thanksgiving. December shingles. I knocked at his door. I heard some one walking about in the kitchen. I started to the kitchen and before I could get there, a woman came to the door.
