Atlantic Hotel, Morehead City, N. C. June 17 -This has been the busiest day of the week with the assembly. The department of elementary educa- petitor. tion met in the corridor of the hotel. Superintendent J. G. Griffin, of Salon the program through the illness of to secure patronage in competition his wife, and Miss Mary O. Graham, with other schools. This should be of Charlotte, read a paper on child study and aid in discipline. One of teacher who believes evil rparts and twentieth century education has been er or another school. Against this the awakening to the fact that we evil we must all be on our guard. The must not only prepare children for proper appreciation of the dignity of the adult life and work but also to our profession and of the transcendent adapt them to the life of childhood importance of the work intrusted to itself. Education of children is to be us is the best remedy for the violamade effective by discipline. That discipline is preferable where teacher and pupil seem to be working side by side. An ounce of praise is worth a pound of censure. Timidity is the bushel measure that often hinders the one talent. It should be the quest of the teacher to find out what that talent is. One qualification a teacher must have and that is love; without it she should leave the profession.

Mrs. Ira Turlington, of Smithfield next read an admirable paper on the same subject as follows: The subject considered from two standpoints. Discipline of the children in the mass discipline as an individual. If the proper study of mankind is man then the proper study of womankind is children. In honest apprenticeship as a teacher would be excellent training for all future mothers and there are teachers who would be decidedly improved by a conscientious systematic course in motherhood.

Good teachers are already convinced of the need to know childhood in general and the children in their charge in particular. The general characteristics are first to be considered. The surroundings in the schoolroom must be suitable to children's needs. Children are more easily and more willingly controlled by a teacher who is quiet in her movements. Not jerky not angular, not startling. Happiness and joyousness are the sacred rights of childhood. Give the child as much of joy as you can. He will pay you back with usury. There are three distinct classes of children in our school—the town children, the country children, and a third class, the cotton mill children. They differ greatly, but all respond to love. The indi-vidual characteristics must also be considered. Sixty children w'll mean as many types. Frequently a knowledge of the home life of a child will furnish a key to the conduct which puzzles. A paper on "Science Course of Study in the Grammar School," by W. A G.raham, of Warrenton, was listened to with close attention and discussed at length.

In the department of superintendents a paper on "The Teachers' Institute," by J. A. Bivins, attracted a great deal of attention and met with the approval of all present. Prof. M. C. S. Noble, of the State Univerity, followed with another able paper on the same subject, advocating paying the expenses of teachers while attending the institute.

attack was solely for selfishness. The report of the committee on been entrusted to us. teachers' salaries was next read by Superintendent Tighe, of Asheville. This report was full of facts carefully complied, showing clearly that the salaries of our teachers were too lean to attract the strongest men and women to the profession.

Then came the report of the committee on professional ethics read by cotland Neck. This paper deserves comment. Antagonisms tween denominational and State col-lege rivalries have all practically disappeared through social contact at the teachers' assembly. A few instances, however, of a violation of professional ethics have been observed in the past few years in our State. Unprofessional advertising by certain schools was deplored. ILLUMINATING OIL INSPECTION

Companies Object to Some of the State Regulations,

The committee of the State Board of Agriculture having in charge the matter of illuminating oil inspection met yesterday to make some changes in the regulations, there being present with Commissioner of Agriculture Graham Messrs. A. T. McCalium, of Red Springs, and K. W. Barnes, of

As at first announced yesterday the flash light test was decreased from 105 degrees Fahrenheit by the Elliott allowed that on all oil in the State on a gallon should be paid, and that this should not be rejected under the act up to September first of the flash test by the Elliott closed cup is not lower than 90 degrees Fahrenheit. A change was made in the wording to be placed on containers of kerosene or other oils usually used for illuminating purposes, offered or sold for other uses so that in place of using the word "Dangerous" the label should say "Highly Inflammable," there being no tax required on such oils.

The companies represented by officers and attorneys strenuously opposed giving only till September first to get rid of the present stock in the State Our work is benevolent in and so the limit was extended to October first, with 120 degrees Fahrenheit We well know envy for the men who as a fire test. After much debate about these contested matters as to cups to be used on flash light tests it was agreed to let the matter go over till next Wednesday, and to try to secure the presence here of Dr. Day, of Washington, D. C., the government oil inspection expert, to speak on the cup to be used in the tests.

There were present yesterday before the committee Mr. H. L. Finlayson, president of the National O.1 Company, a North Carolina corporation organized in Goldsboro, with headquarters in Norfolk; Mr. W. H. Fehsenfeld, president of the Red C Oil Company, of Pittsburg, Pa., and Highlandtown, Md., who also spoke for the North Carolina Oil Company of High Point, these independent companies being represented by ex-Governor C. B. Aycock as attorney, who declared that the flash test as required would drive the companies out of business in the State and all that is needed is proper regulations the first of July the tax of half a cent for safety and to secure the best illumination, that the purpose of the act is to raise revenue. The Standard Oil Company was represented by Mr. Thomas Goodwille, of Baltimore, manager for the Southern Department; Mr. Roger W. Cuff, of Balt more, attorney, and Mr. James H. Pou, of Raleigh, attorney, these also declaring the test regulations unjust and that the limit of September first to get rid of the oil on hand in the State, with 90 degrees flash test by the Elliott closed cup was a confiscatory measure.
