A Pretty Marriage Celebrated at Littleton Last Wednesday

Littleton, N. C., June 26.—One of the prettiest marriages ever solemnized in this town was that which took place Wednesday morning in the M. E. church. The groom was Mr. J. B. Aiken and the bride Miss Nellie Brockhouse Jenkins, both of this place.

The beautiful new church had been tastefully decorated for the occasion with palms, ferns, and geraniums. The color scheme of green and white was conspicuously carried out. As the bride party began to assemble, Mrs. T. J. Grant rendered the ever-beautiful selection, "Hearts and Flowers."

Then Miss Rebekah Johnston sang in an immitable way "O Heart of Mine." After Miss Johnston sang the members of the Wynoke Club, of which Miss Jenkins was a member, came in in the following order: Miss Perkins, Mrs. Pippin, Miss Leach, Miss Slaton, Miss Yancy, Miss Moore, and Miss Moore. All of these were dressed in white batiste and carried eye-daisies.

On Tuesday evening the bridal party was entertained at the home of the bride. No general reception was given on account of serious illness in the bride's family. Miss Moore, of the bride's family, Miss Moore, Sallie Johnston and Hebin Johnston entertained with vocal and instrumental music. The guests were then invited into the dining room where elegant delicacies were served.

Mr. Aiken is a native of Granville county. After attending Trinity College, he became principal of Central Littleton, N. C. In this capacity, he has made many friends from a personal and business standpoint. Miss Jenkins is a young lady whose character and disposition are such as to make her hold in the highest esteem by all who know her.

Clinton, N. C., June 26.—On Wednesday afternoon, June 26, at 5:30 o'clock, at the L. C. Graves Memorial Presbyterian church, Miss Isabelle Lohengrin was united in marriage to Mr. Sidney Alderman with the violin heralded the approach of the bridal party.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. An arch of Southern smilax was artistically arranged and festooned with green hung gracefully from ceiling to arch, forming a widow in the choir loft, behind which stood Miss Mary Medearis, of Winston-Salem, N. C., who sang beautifully and with much feeling, "Because God Made These Mine" and "I Love You Truly." Miss Eliza Howard Pearson presided at the organ and rendered the accompaniments with much skill.

When the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march began the ushers, Mr. Christopher Peirce and Mr. F. B. Johnson, and Messrs. Will Herring and Harry Stewart proceeded down the center aisle to the altar. The groom, accompanied by Mr. Isaac W. Lade, of the groom's father, who gave her away. The ceremony was performed by Dr. W. S. Long, of Graham, grandfather of the bride, and Rev. H. H. Robbins, of Statesville, uncle of the groom.

The bridesmaids wore gowns of white batiste and val lace and carried bouquets of pink carnations. The maid of honor was gowned in pale blue batiste and carried an arm bouquet of white carnations. The bride wore a tailored suit of ashes-of-roses cloth with hat and gloves to match. The couple left on train No. 38 to spend a month at Northern resorts, and will be at home after July 2ist.

The guests were graciously met at the door by Misses Myrtle Bryan and Lula Wrenn, who gave them a cordial welcome, then tastefully turned them over to the worthy ushers, Messrs. Paul and George Bryan, who showed them to comfortable seats. About 9:45 the exercises were opened with the old but well beloved song, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." Mr. Edward Clyde Beaman on Wednesday evening, June thirtieth, ninety-eight, at eight o'clock, at St. Barnabas Episcopal Church, Snow Hill, North Carolina.

The untimely death of Hon. Reuben D. Holt, brings sadness to the hearts of all his friends, but he also to all his enemies, if he had any, which is doubtful. He was true and faithful to his friends and to his duty, and to those who know him intimately, he was a good fellow. There is not the least doubt that he carried that fidelity into every relation of life. Having made up his mind to die he believed to be right, he did not move an inch. In this fidelity to duty as he saw it, he stood "four square to all winds that blow" strong, towering, unswerving. You could not help respecting him, but you could not help loving him, for he was built on honest lines and added honor to the great and good name his father left him. He did not remove the ancient landmarks. He honored his father and was as devoted as a lover to his aged mother. No matter how hard the forensic storm had raged during the day, when the quiet home came he read from the Bible his mother had given him and knelt by his bedside in humble devotion to his maker.

He has gone from among us and our hearts are sad today. We needed him as a pillar of support. True, brave, hearted, with fullness of grace, but all in all a man whose like we do not meet every day.

Reverently and lovingly I would lay this charge upon his grave as upon the bier of one whose true friendship I counted myself more than happy to be thought somewhat worthy of.

Oak Ridge Institute, June 22, 1909. Thankful No Funeral.

The Goldsboro Argus has the following: "Judge Robinson is able to go out today, although he circumscribes with circumspection. We are all gratified that he came out of that runny-river and with whole bones. With his irrepressible and dignified with remarkable real seriousness to a party of friends in his office who had dropped in to congratulate him on his recovery." "I certainly am truly thankful that the funeral is not to be this afternoon."

MR. PAGE EXPLAINS HIS POSITION AND MR. GLADMON REPLIES

Mr. Page Regards His Vote as Democratic and Anti-Protective—Dr. Gladmon Says No Democratic Representatives Can Consistently Discuss Rates on an Article That the Party Decries Shall Not Be Taxed at All

For revenue only. Not for revenue, but "for revenue only." Nearly every article on the protected list brings in some revenue. I do not think a lumber tariff is one "for revenue only," but even so it does not explain why you refuse it free entry, in accordance with the demands of your party platform. If you of your own volition, desert their party, a lumber tariff I do not think it would have caused more than a passing comment. But when both Senators and six out of seven Representatives, acting in unison, desert their party, a lumber tariff is a momentous crisis, it strongly suggests to the ordinary mind, a combination of interests, a drama thoroughly rehearsed, and the part each was to take in the defense carefully outlined. And the capstone of it all was to be silence.

Mr. Page's Letter. The following correspondence between Congressman Page and Dr. Edwin Gladmon, of Southern Pines, N. C., is published in the News and Observer.

My dear Sir: I am not in the habit of replying to or taking any notice of newspaper attacks made upon me as an official, but your extreme agitation over my membership upon the Congressional Campaign Committee, in your article printed in The News-Observer of the 13th inst. moves me to say a few things to you in the best of spirit for the reason that I believe you are laboring under a misapprehension.

The News-Observer, in which you published your letter has, it seems to me, whether intentionally or not, created in the minds of some people, and you among them, an entirely incorrect idea as to my position upon the tariff. I do not think that I was honored by having you read the few brief remarks that I made upon the subject when the bill was in the House, but in that I expressed my exact views upon the subject and I stated unequivocally that I was opposed to the principle of protection. I am mailing you a copy of that speech, including the hope that you will take the honor to read it. Mr. Page's speech was published in The News and Observer. If the people have an incorrect idea of Mr. Page's speech, the paper is not responsible. It has printed the speech as it was given. If it does not explain it, it is not our fault.—Editor.

I have never believed, either from the platform or the teachings of great Democrats, that the party to which I belong was a free trade party. I do not believe under existing conditions that free trade is possible. I have said in every political speech I have ever made, and I am utterly opposed to having protection for any article but taxed at an average of forty-five per cent. while the things they have to sell are put upon the free list. I have never voted for a tariff on anything that was objectionable. If I never shall, my vote for a dollar tariff on lumber is a five per cent. ad valorem tax that in my judgment will not affect the price of lumber in the United States.

Another matter about which you seem agitated is my membership upon the Congressional Campaign Committee. I was recently honored by my Democratic colleagues from North Carolina by an election to this Committee, and the vote was unanimous. Mr. Kitchin votes as heartily for me as did any of them. The Committee is composed of one Democrat of each State, elected by his Democratic colleagues. I do not know, should I follow your advice and send in my resignation, to whom should I go. And by the way, I have no idea of doing any such thing.

There is one sentence in your article that might make the Commission that I had some personal interest in the lumber business. I want to disabuse your mind by saying that since 1900 I have not had a penny's personal interest in the lumber business. The Congressional Record will show that I voted against the Payne bill, and it will show when the bill comes to its final passage a record against the Payne-Aldrich bill, for the reason that it is protective, discriminatory and unjust.

I want to repeat what I said in the beginning that this is written in all good humor, and only with the desire to place before you my true position. You are opposed to that I am willing to stand, and I do not propose to be read out of the Democratic party by you. With best wishes, I am, Yours very truly, ROBERT N. PAGE.

Dr. Gladmon's Reply. Hon. Robert N. Page, Washington, D. C. My dear Sir: I have yours of the 14th inst. and have carefully considered the reasons you give for a vote for a tariff on lumber. I am sorry you deemed it necessary to disclaim any personal interest in the lumber business. No one who knows you either personally or by reputation believes that personal interests have swayed your judgment in the matter.

You think I have been misled by The News and Observer. I think you have been misled by the Senator Senator to whom Democrats have for years looked upon for guidance on party policies.

The corner stone of your defense, or if you prefer of your explanation, is that a tariff on lumber is a tariff for revenue only. Not for revenue, but "for revenue only." Nearly every article on the protected list brings in some revenue. I do not think a lumber tariff is one "for revenue only," but even so it does not explain why you refuse it free entry, in accordance with the demands of your party platform.

You refer me to Congressman Kitchin's speech. I refer you to the same in the News-Observer, in which you clearly demonstrates the fallibility of your position, and proves that a tariff on lumber is a protective tariff. Tariffs may be comprehensively classified under three heads: "a tariff for revenue only," where the main object sought is revenue and means that the rate must be so levied, as to afford the greatest possible revenue with the least possible protection. From this general proposition the National Platform explicitly excepts what are termed the necessities of life, and articles controlled by a trust. Second, "a tariff for protection only," which is the reverse of the first, and the revenue derived therefrom incidental. Third, "a prohibitory tariff" where the rates are so high as to make imports practically impossible.

Mr. Kitchin says, "No Democrat in the House can vote for the Dingell bill rate upon the ground that it is a tariff for revenue only," and then proceeds to show that for every dollar that goes into the Treasury eighty cents goes into the pockets of the lumbermen, $1,000,000 to the Treasury and $20,000,000 to the lumbermen. I submit that you cannot square these facts with the definition of a tariff for revenue only.

You say that a dollar tariff on lumber would not affect the price to any consumer in North Carolina. If the consumer pays as much then the producer receives as much. If the producer receives as much then the consumer pays as much. If the consumer pays as much then the producer receives as much. If the producer receives as much then the consumer pays as much.

But, Mr. Page, while Democrats may differ as to the proper rates on taxable articles, how can they consistently discuss rates on an article that the party declares should not be taxed at all? If you are not bound by this plank of the platform are you bound by any? And if so why? Roger Q. Mills is recently quoted as saying, "The Democratic party as now represented at Washington, makes a humiliating spectacle." Believing that Mr. Mills might be right, I do not care to say what you term my "extreme agitation." An old surgical proverb is "A tender surgeon makes a foul wound."

Governor Glenn said at Winston Salem last Monday, "If they vote for protection for lumber or timber, how can they criticize Louisiana Senators on sugar, or the Senators from Pennsylvania and West Virginia on steel?" That was the problem in my mind when I wrote the communication to which you object. You say if you resigned you do not know to whom you would send your resignation. As you say your Democratic colleagues from North-Carolina elected you, I think the answer to that conundrum is easy. I hardly think you are in earnest in declaring that I cannot read you out of the Democratic party. No one but yourself can do that. I have cheerfully voted for you every time you have been a candidate for Congress, and may do so again, but it will not be on the policy you now advocate for the people of your district will not follow your lead in this matter.

I have not consulted with Mr. Daniels either directly or indirectly for several years, and take in no wise responsibility for anything I have written, but I will present your letter to him and hope he will give your side of the question the same publicity he has my criticism. As this is not a controversy between you and myself as much as it is a conflict of opinion among your own constituents I am sure you will allow me to present my views in the paper with your letter.

With highest personal regards, I am, Yours very truly, EDWIN GLADMON.
