Two Bad Errors in One Inning Give Rocky Mount the Winning Run—Lathrop Pitches a Mastery Game—Wilson, Rocky Mounts New Pitcher, Keeps Red Birds' Hits Scattered—Gastmeyer's Playing the Decided Feature—Goldsboro's Defeat of Wilson Keeps the First Position Tied by Raleigh and Wilson—Fayetteville, With Only Three Hits Off Brooks, Manages to Play a 11-Inning Tie With Wilmington, Who Got Nine Bingles Off Mayer.

In one of the prettiest games of the season Rocky Mount downed Raleigh on the home grounds. At the time appointed for the game a heavy down-pour of rain caused most of the fans to think there would be no game, but in a half hour's time the weather was such that the game was played.

It was a pitcher's battle in which Lathrop got the better of Wilson in the number of hits yielded, but Lathrop allowed his in tight places when his mound runs. Luck favored Rocky Mount a great deal, as one of Raleigh's fielders, who hasn't made an error in the field this season, dropped a misjudged fly which cost a run, and the other Rocky Mount run was scored on a single that hit a rock in Clements' territory, taking a bad bound, which fooled him and got away.

For the first three innings not a man crossed the plate. Each side was under the fast water. The Red Birds broke the spell in the fourth when Biglow walked, was sacrificed to second by Hobbs and scored on Mullaney's beautiful hit to left which hit the flag pole. This Mullaney shows up prominently in every game, his hits are most well timed on inasmuch as they come when needed. This run proved to be the only Park score of the game.

In the seventh Rocky Mount tied the score. Gastmeyer, first up, singled to left after which Stein lanned. Lathrop was willing to let a runner get on base by playing off first, so far threw the ball away and the runner went to second. Gillespie arose to the occasion and swatted a nice one to left, and as Clements went to get to throw to the plate the ball was on a rock which was a very irregular bound and the runner scored with ease.

In the next frame Rocky Mount put the run across that won the game. Forke, first up, was an easy out. Sherry hit a little pop fly in front of the plate which McCann caught. His hit was a fly, but he was not out until Hawkins misjudged it, making it become a hard chance which he missed, and the winning run crossed the plate. This is the very first time Hawkins has made an error in the field. While it was very costly, the Raleigh fans are a glad occasion every day that Wilmington gets the Red Birds an opportunity to secure this heavy hitting and most promising young player. Schumaker, the next batter, hit to right field, and a remarkable occurrence happened owing to Hawkins' quick work—he was thrown out at first base.

The decided feature of the game was the playing of Gastmeyer at second base. He is undoubtedly one of the fastest second sackers seen in the vicinity, and it is certainly a mystery that some scouts have taken this player for bigger company, where he belongs. Yesterday he ran fast and with one hand in each instance robbed McCormick and Hobbs of a hit.

In conclusion, fans are missing a rare treat if they do not see these games with Rocky Mount. These Railroaders have about as strong a team as seen on the local diamond this season, and some one has got to bustle to keep them from winning the second series.

Hobbs and Gastmeyer were the stick stars, as each got two apiece. The official score was not to be had, so the block score is missing.

PLAN TO PENETRATE HEART OF YANCEY

People Stirred Over New Railroad Project TO VOTE ON BOND ISSUE

The proposition of the railway is unique—Railway Facilities Have Worked Wonders in Yancey County, a Veritable Territory Flowing With Milk and Honey—Rich in Resources.

citizen, who is greatly interested in the progress of the county. Next of a Railroad. There can be no question of the need of better railroad facilities in this section. Burnsville stands within nine miles of two stations, Booneville and Green Mountain, both being in Mitchell. Only about three miles of railway exists in Yancey.

Until 1859, when the South & Western started over from Johnson City, Tennessee, the scream of the locomotive had never penetrated the solitude of the county, and the farmers who were venturesome enough to start for market had to go either to Asheville or to Marion, some forty miles from this point. Yanceyans have always been a sturdy set, but in those days the greater part of their enormous fruit crop rotted under the trees or was sold to the stiller for three or four cents a bushel. Market was a thing which the sixteen forty miles from this point. Market was a thing which the sixteen forty miles from this point.

From the formation of the county in 1822 to the '90s, in fact, almost to 1890, Yancey and the adjoining sections in Kentucky, Mitchell and Union, in Tennessee, were a lawless and lawless region. Beyond doubt, if the county had not been so isolated, that the public seldom knew, and certainly never read, of the doings in these dignified, "Bloody Breasts" or "Bloody Brains" would not have outranked it except in the brutality of crime. The number of killings here would have equaled those on that dark and bloody ground. Within the '90s, however, and more have been accomplished only by might and main. If a railroad should be built on the line proposed, everything would be easy. I can only hint at the inevitable developments for the mail man is about ready to start, and with him must go this story. It reaches the editor before it has become an ancient history. If a railroad should run through the county, timber, timber, timber, the finest that grow in this section of the Pacific slope, and various minerals of every kind, cattle and sheep of a thousand hills, and everything else that goes with a growing and industrial people would at once flow from Yancey, and every township would be fortified by hundreds of summer tourists.

The other boundary lies in Crabtree township and was the property of E. Frank Watson, a prominent attorney here, and Mr. J. L. Hyatt, Republican nominee to represent this senatorial district. The present owners, Scott and Lambert, have offered to advance $50,000 and to take it in freight. Both offers are regarded as magnanimous, because either company could build tram roads and get its lumber to market both more quickly and more cheaply than it will be possible to do in the event the railroad is built.

The cost of the proposed road is estimated at $250,000. The $50,000 necessary after the bonds and these advancements have materialized, will be advanced, it is said, by an unknown

Some Radical Rows Warmed Over From Two Years Ago "NEWS IS DEMOCRATIC"

The District Attorney, Who Wants to Hold on for Life to His Job That Has Been Promised to Adams, Says the News at Greensboro is Trying to Help to a Democratic Victory.

Ex-Chairman Holton had enough to speak of without saying anything about the News in his address. It was expected that he would make a fierce attack upon it, several Republicans having told him before the convention that he was to warm it. The attorney's address was very laudatory, the Democrats receiving full benefit of the load fired. "And I believe and feel confident that the convention in Greensboro will rise against such petty politics as the Greensboro Daily News, with its Democratic editor, is now practicing, and that Mr. Phillips, its Democratic editor, will be defeated in his agitation to destroy the Republican organization and claim Democratic promotion political office by his attacks upon Congressman Morehead. If Mr. Phillips had the right sort of ideas, he would refuse to hold a Democratic office while editing a Republican paper, and he should either resign his Democratic office or quit the party paper."

The remains were buried Saturday afternoon at Hill's place, between this city and Lenoir's creek church, and the funeral services were conducted by the Rev. J. D. Bundy, D. D., pastor of the First Methodist church of Elizabeth City.

A large force of carpenters is busy erecting an addition to the Christ Episcopal church, corner Church and Market streets. The work is being done for the purpose of installing a new organ, which has been recently purchased by the vestry of Christ church. The addition will be forty feet in length, and is on the southeast corner of the church building. The magnificent arches will be used in the church proper so that the handsome new organ will be visible from any position in the auditorium.

As soon as this addition is completed, the choir stalls will be erected within the chancel railing and the whole interior view will be different. The choir stalls have been located in the rear of the church, which is constructed on olden plans and now the vestry only will be located in the front of the church auditorium.

The new organ purchased by the vestry of Christ church will be a modern, pneumatic pipe organ and will be operated by water pressure. The organ is the work of Messrs. W. E. and R. C. H. Lawrence, of Erie, Pa. It will be at least four months before the organ is installed.
