OUR PLACE OF DAILY PRAYER

The Lord [illegible] account of those who [illegible] themselves those who are [illegible] and prodigals who have [illegible] under honored [illegible] and [illegible] gone far away [illegible] arms of mercy after them like a [illegible] flash upon them [illegible] light or strike [illegible] tender chord that will [illegible] back again that their [illegible] ing on earth and to [illegible] Lord's light make our [illegible] the beauty of the Lord [illegible] upon us making our [illegible] His presence and strong with [illegible] grace. Amen

UNCLE WALT

The dog is mankind's firmest friend; as much has known to fame to love, to follow and de-

THE DOG fend his master is his aim. When business in that line is slack he strews the lawn with bones, when carried off he brings them back with rags dead hens and stones. Affection dwells in Carlos eyes, love deeper than the sea, and in his heart that love will rise to dog's eternity. But when there's no one to adore he whiles away the hours by mussing up the lawn some more and scratching up the flowers. Into the Alpine snows he leaps to save some pilgrim there and through the drifted, shining heaps he drags him by the hair. But when there are no Alpine snows or [illegible] into the chicken yard he goes and whips poor chanticleer. He heard about a thousand jobs [illegible] ble deeds and when at night he howls and wails until my bosom bleeds I try to think he's not a fake his virtues I recall but all in vain and so I take the shotgun from the nail.
