"Stand Up" and "Deliver"

An automobile tire must "stand up" and "deliver" mileage enough to justify its first cost, or its first cost at any price is a joke.

"First cost" saving is an "ostrich way" of figuring tire economy—the only true way is to figure on the ultimate cost of your tire service.

Automobile owners learn this in time—the quicker they learn it, the quicker will they learn to buy "Nobby Treads," the Business Basis Tires.

That a tremendous majority of automobile owners have learned how to buy automobile tires is proved by the fact that today "Nobby Tread" Tires are the largest selling high-grade anti-skid tires in the world.

And Remember This—Investigations prove with "Nobby Tread" Tires punctures are 90% less than with the average tire.

Based upon their remarkable mileage records

"Nobby Tread" Tires

R. B. GLENN FOR THE AMENDMENTS

Former Governor Gives Reasons Why He Thinks all Should Be Adopted

To the Editor:—Since my return home from Ottawa, Canada, I have had many inquiries both from my home people and others in the State as to my position in regard to the ten Constitutional amendments submitted to the people of North Carolina by the last General Assembly, and have been requested to give my views to the public.

While I do not think that I can add anything to what has been said by others, especially the newspapers, favoring the passage of these amendments, still being satisfied that the amendments should be adopted, regardless of who may criticize or oppose them, it is my intention not only to vote for the amendments, but both privately and on the stump urge the people to pass them.

These amendments were carefully prepared by some of the wisest and most conscientious men in the State. Afterwards were thoroughly considered and digested by the General Assembly, and I have yet to hear one good, valid reason why they should not be ratified by the people.

Briefly let us consider each amendment separately.

Article 1. Every patriotic citizen who believes that our forefathers were not rebels, but were fighting for a principle should readily vote for this change in the wording of the Constitution.

Article 2. As I now recall, North Carolina is the only State that pays only $4.00 per diem to the members of the General Assembly, and any intelligent person knows that this is not sufficient to pay a member's campaign expenses, and what it costs him to remain in Raleigh during the session of the Legislature. Let us so change the Constitution that a just, and at the same time a reasonable amount may be given to the men who make our laws, thus insuring stronger men in our Assembly halls.

Article 3. Too much time is wasted by the General Assembly in considering local matters that could be better determined before the clerk of the Superior Court or the commissioners of the county, when all parties interested could have a hearing, instead of being hastily passed by the Legislature for private and special purposes.

Article 4. No one will deny that the inauguration of the Governor ought to be fixed for a certain day, and not be left for each administration to settle.

Article 5. While Governor of North Carolina, I learned the necessity of such an amendment, as often the judge who was to hold the court of certain counties was sick and unable to attend, and no other judge was available, and so the court had to be adjourned, leaving prisoners in jail, and the suits of litigants unsettled. In order, therefore, that this should be remedied, the State should provide some way for an emergency judge to be appointed by the Governor, as is the law in many States, or elected by the bar of the county, as in Tennessee.

Article 6. This is simply as I understand it, to strike obsolete sections from the Constitution, which today have no force or effect.

Article 7. This is doubtless—the most important section submitted to the people. If passed, it will not increase taxation, but on the contrary will lower it. Property can then be valued at its true value, making the valuation much higher than at present, this giving us our proper value before the world, while the rate will be lessened. Also the burden will be lifted off of land and other visible property, and placed upon hidden property that is now hidden away, or fraudulently concealed, paying no tax to the State. Ohio and other States have tried this, and it has worked well, and in my judgment would add much to the progress and wealth of North Carolina.

Article 8 and 9. These two articles I will consider together. They will prevent corporations or cities and towns from hurrying ill-considered charters—often with hidden purposes concealed therein, through the Legislature, and compel them to go before the proper tribunal where all interested parties could be given a hearing, and right and justice be fully done.

Article 10. I suppose it requires no argument to urge the extension of the school term from four to six months in the year, so that every child, no matter how poor, may be able to get sufficient education to fit them for the duties of life.

A State's prosperity is correctly judged by the estimate it puts upon the education of its children, and a wealthy State like North Carolina can no longer justify itself in giving its youth less than a six-month term of school.

In order that the tax-payers may see that my views on these amendments are not as formed, or without due consideration, I would refer them to the message sent by me to the General Assembly when I was Governor, urging that body to do something in its power to adopt some means of taxation which would prevent fraud in giving in property, and

BAILEY SPEAKS TO TARBORO FOLKS

Accomplishments of Democracy in Past Year and Half are Eloquenty Shown

Tarboro, Oct. 16.—Hon. J. W. Bailey made one of the best Democratic speeches ever made in this county at the court house here last night. Notwithstanding the rain, a large number of our citizens were out to hear him. Mr. Bailey is easily one of the best speakers in the State and his visit here was looked forward to with pleasure. The issues were ably discussed and he convinced the audience that the Democratic opposition was the "river of doubt."

The first part of Mr. Bailey's speech was devoted to National questions. "We have been in less than two years and are now before the people for the first time. It is amazing that so far the opposition has not found itself able to stand up before the people and challenge our claim to their approval. They are silent on the subject of the new currency law; they are silent on the Simmons-Underwood tariff law; they are silent on the death on the Wilson-Bryan diplomacy."

"The truth is," said Mr. Bailey "our opponents are sufficiently occupied fighting one another. The Republicans and Progressives are trying to prove which of them is worst—and all we have to do is to agree with both. Roosevelt's discovery of the River of Doubt in South America may be a myth; but there is no question that he is up the River of Doubt in politics. The Republicans are saying to themselves as they behold his performances these days—this

"Winding in and winding out—Keeps a fellow still in Doubt—Whether the snake that made the track is coming in or going out?"

"But there is no doubt at Washington, Wilson knows what he is doing, and there is no doubt in the minds of the people. Wilson's great, strong, sure way has won the faith of our millions, and although half the world is at war, we are well-served that our ship of state will go serenely on with his great hand upon her helm."

In conclusion Mr. Bailey took up the Democratic record in North Carolina. "The Democratic party," said he, "took hold of this State after the war and rebuilt it. It is their work, since Aycock came in we have had fourteen years of unbroken Democratic administration, and the further we have gone the greater our majorities have been. See how the State is going—look at our free school work, our public health work, our agricultural work, our growth in wealth and manufacturing. We have made more progress these fourteen years than any other State in the republic and I venture to say, more than any other people under the sun."

The speaker also extolled Governor Aycock's work in putting an end to freight-rate discriminations against North Carolina, and urged his hearers to give the Governor power to reform our tax system and further advance the commonwealth every way by ratifying the proposed Constitutional Amendments.

FATHER DIES IN KANSAS

Rev. A. D. Wilcox Returns From Burial—New Laundry at Louisburg.

Louisburg, Oct. 16.—Rev. A. D. Wilcox, pastor of the First Methodist church of this city, has just returned from Ottawa, Kansas, where he attended the burial of his father, who died a week ago at his home in Oklahoma City.

The Louisburg Coal and Ice Company are installing in their commodious plant near the depot a steam laundry, which will be in operation by the first of November, and which will fill a long felt need in this section. Mr. P. O. Harwell, of Rocky Mount, will be in charge of the new enterprise.

The Franklin Superior Court for the trial of criminal cases will convene here Monday morning, with Judge H. W. Whedbee presiding and Solicitor H. E. Norris representing the State. Hon. Josiah William Bailey, of Raleigh, will discuss the political issues of the day Monday at 2 p. m. in the court house, the court adjourning to hear him.
