GREAT CROWDS SEE YOSHIHITO BECOME JAPAN'S EMPEROR

all from the western standpoint, is what is making the coronation so wonderfully attractive. The foreign observer is carried back into the past, and he is having set before him a story of national existence, an explanation of an empire's genesis that is beautiful, dramatic and appealing, whether he is to class the tale as mythological, traditional or historically proven. He is able to study the origin, customs and development of the Japanese as never before in history, for this is the first time since the reign of Jimmu Tenno, 2,500 years ago, that the people of Japan or representatives of foreign powers have been permitted to participate in the ceremonies of coronation. Before this, only the court and feudal lords and samurai were there. This coronation, therefore, is the bridge between the old and the new Japan—it is the official exodus for the time being from the past to the modernism and comment of democracy of the present and future. The first great step in the modern political development of Japan was taken by Emperor Meiji in 1889 when he granted a constitution to his subjects.

Every possible arrangement has been made to impress upon the minds of the people the significance of the coronation. The part played by the school children of Japan is one of the most impressive features of the entire coronation program, which will consist of a series of special parades of the Emperor and Empress were distributed and commemorative exercises were held in every school throughout the Empire; speeches were made relating the im-importance of the coronation; at every school two trees were planted in commemoration of the occasion and a flag procession of children was held in every district. At the precise moment when the Emperor mounted the throne to assume his accession to the people's salute are fired by the army and navy—and in whatever part of the world soldiers and ships may be located. Throughout the country cannon boomed, whistles were blown, flags were flung to the breeze, aerial bombs fired, the national hymn sung and cries of "banzai" swelled upward. Religion occupied a prominent place. American missionaries were leaders in the movement to hold Christian services and in every Christian church throughout the Empire, native or foreign, prayers were said today for a long and happy reign of Emperor Yoshihito. The International Bible Society of America is presenting a beautiful Bible to the Emperor in commemoration of his enthronement. The cover is of white leather with an artistic design in gold. Inside the covers are entwined the flags of Japan and the United States to convey the idea that the friendship between the two nations is well-bound with the word of God. Services were held also in every Shinto and Buddhist temple. The Salvation Army observed the coronation by expending a $3,000 yen gift from the Emperor in establishing new colonization bureaus following the example of the army in the United States.

The army issued a manifesto saying: "We open two 'slum posts' in Tokyo with the money granted by their Majesties, and have also decided to start an ex-prisoners' home in Osaka. In what better way could we commemorate the great national event of the coronation? "The work of the slum post is to have some well-ripped army officers live right in the midst of the slum district, visit the people from house to house daily, attend the sick, feed according to Shinto ritual by court officials. Imperial messengers were also dispatched from Kioto on similar missions to the great shrines at Ise and to the principal Shinto shrines throughout the country, where similar ceremonies were performed this morning. The imperial messengers to the prefectural shrines (there is a state shrine in each province) were represented by prefectural governors. The day was signalled by informal meetings and reunions given by public or private corporations in honor of the occasion.

NEW YORK COTTON (By The Associated Press.) NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—After opening steady today at an advance of 1/8 cent, the cotton market declined 2 points, the cotton market eased off during the early trading under scattered selling which seemed to be inspired by weakness in New Orleans. Reports that a traveling expert estimated the crop at 12,800,000 bales, including linters, and the unsettling effect of increased submarine activity in Italian waters. January contracts sold off to 11.48, and March to 11.69 shortly after the call, or about 10 points net lower but at this level the market was steadied by covering and prices rallied 7 or 8 points from the lowest before the end of the first hour.

Covering seemed to become more active and general later in the morning, while there was also some fresh buying on reports of an improving spot demand, and the failure of the larger private crop figures to inspire a more aggressive selling movement. January contracts advanced to 11.77 and March to 11.98, or about 19 points above yesterday's closing figures and nearly 30 points above the low level of the morning.

Trading was less active during the early afternoon and prices eased off some 9 or 10 points from the best under realizing, but support was more in evidence of the shorts and the undertone was generally steady. The cotton market closed steady.

NEW YORK SPOT (By The Associated Press.) NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Spot cotton, steady; middling uplands, 11.75; sales, 1,000 bales.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON (By The Associated Press.) NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 10.—Cotton lost 8 to 12 points around the opening today following a crop estimate of 490,000 bales by a local crop expert, but the market met good support by traders who were impressed by prospects of a decided change in weather conditions over the belt. The map indicated that a severe storm was headed for the cotton region followed by colder weather. Half an hour after the opening price were at a net decline of 2 points.

Buying increased the expected change in weather conditions and toward noon the trading months were at a net rise of 15 1/4 to 17 points.

The upward movement was checked by profit-taking by scalping longs. At 1:30 prices were 11 to 13 points over yesterday's close.

The cotton market closed very steady at net advance of 14 to 16 points.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Predictions of snow and cold rain had a bullish effect today on wheat. Traders who professed to believe that the maximum of the spring crop movement had been reached were conspicuous buyers. Advancing prices at Liverpool tended to handicap the bears. After opening 1-8 @ 1-4 to 7-8 @ 1 higher with December at 103 1/4 to 103 and May at 103 1-2 to 104 1-4 the market here scored a material further upturn.

Corn, like wheat, felt the influence of unsettled weather. Poor husking returns counted also as a reason for higher prices. The opening which ranged from 1-4 @ 3-4 to 3-8 @ 4 advanced, was followed by moderate additional gains.

Premiums developed in oats as a result of the strength of other cereals. Business was light, however. Lower prices on hogs weakened provisions. Arrivals of hogs throughout the west were numerous.

A setback in wheat took place later, influenced by weakness in the stock market and by reports that some European purchases of Manitoba wheat had been cancelled. On the break, however, offerings here dried up and prices rebounded strongly. The close was unsettled, 1 1/8 to 1 1/4 cent net higher, with December at 103 1/4 and May at 104 1/2 @ 3/4.

Subsequently, absence of selling pressure led to a continued ascent to corn values. The close was firm, 1 1/4 to 1 1/8 above yesterday's finish.

NEW YORK STOCKS (By The Associated Press.) NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Selling of specialties was resumed at today's opening with Studebaker the feature on its decline of 5 1/8 to 145. Baldwin Locomotive, Westinghouse, Allis-Chalmers, Continental Can and National Enamelling comprised the other features of that group and cop-also manifested a heavy tendency. United States Steel sold 5-8 down to 83 3/4 at the outset, subsequently recovering a point. Bethlehem Steel dropped 25 to 19. Atchafalaya dropped 1 to 10 1/2, and other standard rails yielded to below yesterday's lowest quotations. Most of these declines were retrieved later.

Steel rose to 85 5/8, when October's tonnage statement disclosed an increase of almost 800,000 tons in unfilled orders. The entire list soon receded, however, on fresh liquidation of war shares, some of which broke from 5 to almost 10 points.
