

MRS. McCORCLE ATE 10 BISCUITS DURING 1 MEAL

Says her appetite is splendid since taking Tanlac. Enjoys restful sleep now and is free from nervousness. Gained 10 pounds.

"Now my appetite is splendid. I ate ten biscuits for dinner today. I can eat anything I want now and as much as I want and it doesn't hurt me. I am not nervous at all and sleep fine at night. I am so much stronger, too. I have been benefited in every way and have gained at least ten pounds from two bottles."

These reasons were given by Mrs. A. J. McCorkle for offering an indorsement to Tanlac, the wonderful reconstructive tonic about which all in this city are talking.

"Before taking Tanlac," Mrs. McCorkle continued, "I suffered from nervous indigestion spells. Certain foods that I ate soured my stomach and even coffee would make me sick. I would often suffer vomiting spells after eating. I was weak and worried over my condition. I was easily excited and slept but very little. Then, when I did sleep I was tormented by awful dreams. My husband was taking Tanlac, so I started on it, for which I am sure glad," ended Mrs. McCorkle, who resides at 803 West Second street, Charlotte.

Tanlac is sold in Raleigh at the Tucker Building Pharmacy; Winterville, A. W. Angelo; Ayden, Smith & Bro.; Cary, Waldo Drug Co.; Apex, A. V. Hancock; Wilson, Turkin & Moore; Goldsboro, Robinson Pharmacy; Kinston, Hood Bros. Each town has its Tanlac dealer.—Adv.

EXPECT MOVING ORDERS HOURLY

Preparations Made at El Paso To Care For North Carolina Soldiers

(Special to The News and Observer.) Camp Glenn, Sept. 4.—The second battalion of the second regiment, under the command of Major Faircloth, were guests of the people of Beaufort today. The Beaufort people chartered boats for the boys, gave them a big picnic dinner and entertained them very highly.

Moving orders have not yet been received but they are expected hourly. Word comes unofficially that preparations are being made to care for North Carolina's soldiers at El Paso. Camp grounds there are in readiness for thirty additional regiments. There are already forty thousand guardsmen and regulars in El Paso district.

First Lieutenant Louis B. Knight, Company A, second regiment, has been commissioned captain to succeed Captain J. L. Shaw, resigned. This company, which is from Tarboro, has had trouble in keeping a captain. Captain Paul Jones, who brought the company to Camp Glenn, failed on physical examination and Captain Shaw, who succeeded him, resigned.

Capt. T. F. Bulla, of Company K, third regiment, Asheboro, has tendered his resignation. Captain Bulla is superintendent of schools of Randolph and much pressure has been brought to bear on him by the folks at home, who do not want him to give up his school work.

Labor Day Observed With Great Pageant

men; Ernest Martin, machinists; R. L. Horton, clerks; J. W. Trent, trainmen; W. C. Austin, plumbers and steamfitters; C. W. Bennett, barbers.

The float of the Raleigh Typographical Union came next. This was drawn by two horses driven by little Miss Louise Wicker, daughter of E. J. Wicker, red, white and blue streamers being used as reins. The float represented the old method of typesetting. Under a canopy of red, white and blue there was an old type case at which stood Mr. J. J. Lewis setting type. On the float with him were Mr. James Birdsong, W. E. Ferrell, C. D. Christopher, four of the oldest members of the printing profession. The stool which sat by the type case was used 60 years ago by Mr. John King. It was the three-legged regulation kind. The members of the union, in white shirts, black trousers and Palm Beach caps, followed.

Represented Preparedness.

The machinists' float, next in line, represented "Preparedness." This was prettily decorated in bunting and United States flags. The centerpiece was a lathe by which stood Mr. Guy Bunch, in blue overalls, representing a chief machinist. There were also shells made by the Raleigh Iron Works. On the rear of float stood Miss Louise Whiting Pace, daughter of Mr. E. R. Pace, representing Columbia, and above her floated a large United States flag. On the float were seated the following other young ladies: Misses Vallie Allen, Norma Hall, Elsie Biddle, Cleo Bell, Minnie Jones and May Warwick. The girls wore red, white and blue sashes and carried Japanese parasols. Mr. Lonnie Clifton was driver. The members of the union, in blue coats and duck pants, followed and were led by Mr. W. R. Jones, who carried a large American flag.

Then came the Pressmen's float, which was the most handsomely decorated of any in line. Both the body and the canopy were built on the color scheme of white and yellow. Something like 2,500 large paper chrysanthemums were used in decorating. The float represented the progress that had been made in the printing press from the time of Benjamin Franklin to the present time. In the front of the float there was an old press of the Franklin type being operated by young Everett Sanford in a costume of that period. In the rear was a modern jobber operated by young Lake Huddleston. Between them stood Kit Summers, in the character of old Father Time. On his breast was a card with the date 1916, while on his back there was a card with date 1732. Miss Lila Perry represented the modern girl, while Miss Dolly Brooks represented the girl of Colonial times. The members of the union who followed the float were dressed in khaki pants, Palm Beach shirts and white caps. They also were white and yellow badges, continuing their coat of arms.

Seaboard Men Had Dining Car.

The Seaboard Air Line carmen's float was a dining car mounted on an auto truck. The passengers on the car who occupied seats at tables were Mrs. D. V. Fitzgerald, Miss Louise Hicks, Miss Elizabeth Struggs, Mrs. L. E. Nichols, Miss Edie Galt and Miss Lucy Glenn Gill. A colored porter was also aboard. The members of the union followed and were dressed in blue overalls and blue caps.

The barbers came next and were arrayed in white shirts and Palm Beach pants.

Next came the boiler makers in shirt sleeves, black pants and white caps.

The sheet metal workers followed and wore blue shirts and duck pants.

The members of the clerks union occupied an auto.

Then came the carpenters float. Resting on an auto was a most attractive bungalow nicely painted. On the back porch were seated little Miss Idell Gleson and little Douglass Pike. In front of the porch was a lawn of real turf and this and the porch was adorned with potted plants. Mr. H. H. Beck, secretary of the union, in charge of the float, rode with the driver, Mr. J. R. Pike.

Had a Perfect Box Car.

Next came the float of the Norfolk Southern carmen. This was an exact reproduction in wood and iron of a Norfolk Southern box car. It was painted red and had all the lettering that a regular car carries. This was drawn by two horses and driven by Mr. A. Gringer. A little boy by the name of Collier, dressed in overalls, sat on the rear top of the car and acted as brakeman.

Fifty-two members of the union followed on foot. They wore blue overalls and blue caps.

A steamer carried by three boys led

To Discard Freckles, Tan, Pimples, Wrinkles

The use of creams containing animal substance sometimes causes hair to grow. You run no risk of acquiring superfluous hair when you use ordinary mercurized wax. There is nothing better for a discolored skin, as they actually absorb the offensive cuticle. The latter is naturally replaced by a clear, smooth, healthy complexion, full of life and expression. It's the sensible way to discard a freckled, tanned, over-red, blotchy or pimply skin. Get an ounce of mercurized wax at any drug-gist and scrub the face with the cold cream, using in the morning with soap and water. It takes a week or so to complete the transformation.

The ideal wrinkle remover is made by dissolving an ounce of powdered azoicite in a half pint weak base. Bathing the face in the solution brings almost instantaneous results. (Adv.)

WILL HEAD A. AND M. SUMMER SCHOOL

PROF. W. A. WITHERS

Prof. W. A. Withers, vice-president of the A. and M. College, has been chosen as director of the Summer School of the A. and M. College, which becomes a regular feature of the technical college's activities effective next summer. The summer session will commence June 12 and continue through July 27.

The work of the school will relate to the Primary, Grammar School, High School and Farm Life School Departments. The curriculum of the school will be arranged to meet the varied needs of the teachers of the different sections of the State, and to provide some courses which may be offered for college credit.

There has been a pressing need for this school and its establishment will be warmly welcomed by the people of the State. It will add greatly to the pleasure of the people of Raleigh.

Lettable commodity by exempting labor organizations from processes of the courts which treated their members like fractional parts of mobs and not like accessible and responsible individuals; by releasing our seamen from involuntary servitude; by making adequate provision for compensation for industrial accidents; by providing suitable machinery for mediation and conciliation in industrial disputes; and by putting in the Federal Department of Labor at the disposal of the workman when in search of work.

"We have effected the emancipation of the children of the country by releasing them from hurtful labor."

"You will be more than entertained today by the men who are going to address you. The first will be a man who is a force in the labor world, one whose long career in vigorous work in behalf of the printers of the world has proven of the utmost value. In his own State of Tennessee he has been honored by election to the Legislature, the work which he did in that body proving his ability and resourcefulness, his capacity for leadership and constructive effort. In his home in Memphis he is a man held in high esteem, the father of the park system of that city, a man who will entertain as well as instruct you as to the vast benefits which come from organized labor. I have learned to know him as a man of character and reputation, and I have the honor to present to you H. P. Hanson, Southeastern Representative of the International Typographical Union."

Mr. Britton's reference to what President Wilson had done for the laboring men was greeted with great applause.

Address by Mr. Hanson.

Mr. Hanson then addressed the gathering.

He said:

"The idea of setting aside one day in the year which should be recognized as a particular honor to the producers of the country had its inception in the minds of the leading spirits in the American Federation of Labor, and met with practically universal approval from the moment it was suggested, so that today the importance and dignity of labor is being proclaimed in practically every city, village and hamlet of this

Great North American Republic.

The Congress of the United States has declared it a national holiday, while the various State Legislatures have taken like action, and annually the executive heads of municipalities issue proclamations calling upon the people to suspend business and join with the labor hosts in celebrating their great holiday. And we are gathered here for the dual purpose of doing honor to the day and those who are responsible for its fitting celebration, and to proclaim to the world that organized labor stands not alone for the advancement of the interests of the men and women directly connected therewith, but upon the broader and higher ground of accomplishing all things possible for the welfare and upbuilding of all humanity.

No Narrow Position.

"We realize that were we to take the narrow, selfish position that we were concerned with our own well-being only, we would neither receive nor deserve the support and good wishes of the public at large, nor retain that self-respect and enthusiasm so essential to the accomplishment of great things in this world. Realizing this to the fullest extent, we can truthfully say that we have expended infinitely more time and energy in securing remedial legislation and relief for those helpless members of society unaffiliated with us than we have for ourselves, while we have struggled unceasingly and at times suffered untold privations to secure recognition and justice, the right of collective bargaining, a fair share of the product of our toil and an opportunity for development, we have at all times reached forth a helping hand to the more helpless and down-trodden, that we might lift them from the slough of dependency and give them an opportunity to enjoy at least a few of the comforts of life and a little of God's sunshine."

To Realize High Aims.

"Many people, even some of our own members, entertain the wholly erroneous idea that the beginning and end of the trade union idea rest upon the securing of better wages and shorter hours of labor. This is a fallacy. True, it is the groundwork of the organization, but it is merely the foundation upon which we have built, are building and purpose continuing to build, that we may realize our higher aims, purposes, hopes and aspirations, not only for ourselves, but for civilization. We have fought for and secured a shorter workday that we might have leisure for mental, moral and physical development; opportunity to participate in the civic, fraternal, religious, philanthropic, economic and business affairs of our respective communities; that we might become better and more useful citizens. We have secured a better wage that we might have the means to perform these duties as citizens; that we might be able to live better, have more comfortable homes for shelter, nourishing food, decent raiment for our families, funds to invest in literature, rea-onable social activities, rational amusements and a little surplus for the human waifs who are unable to help themselves; besides, we demand that we be placed in a position to provide our children with at least a common school education, that they may take their proper place in the world and as our successors be in position to accomplish more for the improvement of our country and its people than have those of us who have been denied these opportunities.

BARED BY FLOOD

The above picture shows what is left of a thirty-foot well in Burke county, after the flood waters of a small mountain stream had risen about thirty feet. The course of the river is in the background. The well stood in a bend of the river in the center of a 10-acre farm. On the same farm stood a dwelling, barn and outhouses which were all swept away by the flood which visited Western North Carolina about the middle of July.

As may be seen in the picture the well was equipped with an ordinary bucket pump. After the flood the base of the well box was standing fifteen feet above where the ground had originally been. The well had been lined with stone and mortar and the action of the flood upon the somewhat sandy soil produced the above freak of destroying all of the owner's property with the exception of his well which it turned up into the air.

ARE MEDICINES LIQUORS?

A certain class of prejudiced and jealous doctors call patent medicines alcoholic beverages. They will tell you that such and such a medicine contains as much alcohol as a glass of beer or a certain quantity of whiskey; but they do not mention that the beer or whiskey is swallowed at one draught, while only a small quantity of the medicine is taken at one dose. At the same time they will use alcohol quite as freely and many in four or five times as great proportions in their own prescriptions.

Such standard remedies as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound use barely enough alcohol to preserve the root and herb extracts, too little to have injurious effects; and the medicine can be had, if desired, in a non-alcoholic form.—Adv.
