

PEOPLE OF RALEIGH ARE URGED TO ACT

If They Want Extension, Attend Hearing, Plea of S. Brown Shepherd

CONVINCED CITIZENS FAVOR MOVEMENT

Says Bill Could Be Amended To Admit of An Early Vote

At 7:30 tonight at the Wake county courthouse the House committee on Counties, Cities, Towns and Townships will rehear the matter of the proposed extension of the limits of the city of Raleigh so as to take in Cameron Park.

Representative S. Brown Shepherd, who was responsible for the rehearing of the question, said his purpose was to correct the mistaken impression that the people of Raleigh were not behind the movement.

Very few Raleigh people were present at the first hearing and the Cameron Park people were largely represented by a few outsiders.

Mr. Shepherd expressed confidence that the committee when it found the real sentiments of the people would decide to stand by the Wake county representatives.

Mr. Shepherd said that he knew of no reason why, if the Cameron Park citizens should come in, they should not be permitted to vote in the coming election.

He thought also that if the committee felt that it would make the bill more logical to provide for extension to the north that could be arranged through owing to the nature of the territory the gain in population would be so small as hardly to justify extension north.

Representative Shepherd urges a full attendance of Raleigh people tonight at the courthouse hearing. He believes that the people of the city want extension but are merely so absorbed in other things that they have given the question little thought and less time.

NO TROUBLE AROUND MEREDITH COLLEGE

Night Watchman Says That Aside From Chicken Stealing, All's Well

J. B. Pulley, the night watchman at Meredith College, has been much disturbed by rumors to the effect that there was considerable disturbance in that sector.

Following is his communication to The News and Observer:

"I wish to say in regard to the rumors of the Meredith College night watchman having trouble with people that there is little or no cause for trouble here. I find the college is made up of the very nicest, quietest young ladies the state affords and I wish to explain in my own behalf that the arrests I have made here was only a matter of disorderly conduct on the street and around the premises by rough necks who loiter around everywhere looking for trouble.

"In regard to the shooting I hear so much about; the man I shot here was only depriving the chicken coop of its contents, and breaking up the night's rest of its inhabitants. I truly hope this will be sufficient to correct all misunderstanding."

The destroyer escort bary itself plunging about in the heavy seas. There was a lively epidemic of gripe and Spanish influenza on the ship.

The President's speech here tomorrow is expected to be merely in the nature of an acknowledgment of a welcome home, reserving a discussion of the peace conference and its work for the meetings with the congressional leaders.

Admiral Scates is quoted as saying: "I have no special changes in mind in view of the fact that I will do all I can to keep the academy up to its high standards and those of the naval service."

The telephone message between Secretary of the Navy Daniels and President Wilson has created intense interest among the Washington newspapers and public. The Washington Times this afternoon gives the exact message as conveyed by Secretary Daniels to the President by wireless yesterday. Here it is: "Mr. President, you will receive a great welcome when you arrive in Boston. The destroyers and the aircraft and the Denver will meet you. Mayor Peters and Admiral Wood have made all arrangements."

"See you Tuesday. Great welcome in Washington. Goodbye." Commander Percy W. Foote of North Wilkesboro, N. C., personal aide to the secretary, assisted in making the mechanical arrangements for the message.

The modern-day wonder inspired the Washington Star to editorialize as follows today: "Secretary Daniels telephoned communication with the President yesterday while the steamer bringing the Chief Executive was 800 miles at sea but a new taking of the gonders that have developed within a very short time. Wireless telephony is not especially novel now, for it has been practically used during the war in communication between the United States and its allies in the military service but a wireless phone that would be used to a ship 800 miles out at sea is nevertheless a marvel."

"Wireless telephony is of course subject to being overheard, though it has the same degree of protection that the code wireless has of individual vibrations, rates or pitches. By proper 'tuning' a certain degree of secrecy is possible. Yet much ground remains to be covered before conversations by wireless are rendered entirely private."
