I suffered from rheumatism and neuralgia. My hands and arms bothered me so bad at night I could not rest. I was nervous and did not have much of an appetite.

I had been suffering from the above for the last twelve months. My arms and hands felt like they were paralyzed and pained me awful and I could not use them.

Mr. You can just look at me for yourself and see what Hypo-Cod has done for me. My husband brought a bottle of it home one Monday morning.

Winston-Salem Gives Rousing Welcome To Col. Pratt's Engineers

the people of Winston-Salem and Forsyth county and formally delivered to the visitors the "key" to the city.

Governor Bickett was then introduced by Col. Blair in a short speech, as the man who could preside at a meeting of statesmen, or at the fine democracy of the dinner table, and a man who "has always impressed the people with his dignity, his eloquence and his brightness."

"Not one thing can be accomplished in modern warfare without the collective brain and energy of the engineers," said the Governor. "They build the bridges, without which our armies could not be moved, they dig the trenches without which our soldiers could not hold their lines, and they do all this gallantly in the face of overwhelming odds. It is one thing to be at least comparatively secluded in a trench, armed with a rifle or even more formidable weapons of offense and defense; it is another matter to face death in the open, constructing roads and bridges and advances for the men who followed, to do such heart-breaking work in the midst of a hail of steel. Such deeds call for the highest order of courage, and we realize that the engineers were abundantly endowed with such courage."

His excellency referred at length to the historic achievements of the whole 30th division, "North Carolina's own," who smashed the Hindenburg line at its most impregnable point.

Following brief welcomes by Senator Overman and Col. Graham, and acknowledgment by Col. Pratt for the 105th, the soldiers were dismissed for the day's entertainment features arranged for the soldiers.

WIGMORE DEFENDS MILITARY SYSTEM

judge advocate general's office to correct errors, "we would have had no need for this great revisory machinery at the top."

Colonel Wigmore took direct issue with statements made by Senator Chamberlain and Colonel Ansell. He quoted a speech made by Mr. Chamberlain on the floor of the Senate which declared that the army court-martial system represented neither a system of justice nor a system of law.

"If any man, after any rational inquiry whatever, holds to that view," Colonel Wigmore declared, "he is hopeless."

Similarly he challenged Colonel Ansell's frequently repeated charge that the military justice system is "archaic." On the contrary, Colonel Wigmore declared, there are elements in the army system so advanced and modern that men in civil practice can only dream of the day when they will be applied in civil courts.

Colonel Ansell entered today upon the detailed discussion of changes in law he desires made to accomplish his main purpose of divorcing the legal aspects of the army completely from the possibility of military domination. He recited figures to show that 94 per cent of the enlisted men brought to trial were convicted.

Some Interesting Comparisons. "Either this is almost inhumanly perfect machine," he said, "or a most inhumanly unjust one."

About 20 per cent of the officers tried are convicted, Colonel Ansell added, but continued:

"Of course, people in the army are not going around convicting enlisted men because they are officers. That is not true; but we do know that the officers get better trials."

The records of the clemency board of which he is the head, Colonel Ansell said, show that 64 per cent of the cases reviewed were not well tried, and that 20 per cent were "poorly tried."

William Ireland of Jacksonville, Fla., urged that a military appellate court be created, citing his own experience as a civil counsel for two men who had been dismissed from the service some years ago.

Representative Johnson of South Dakota made public tonight a telegram to the bar association committee asking that here be summoned as witnesses in the inquiry some of the men who are alleged to have suffered injustices because of the present system, and that they be permitted to testify without fear of punishment by the War Department. Unless this was done, he said, the investigation would become a farce.

WANT TO RUIN HIM, BURLERSON STATES

cept certain messages filed by the New York World News Bureau on the ground that they were libelous. These messages constituted an article discussing the Postmaster General.

Mr. Burler'son's Statement.

Following is the statement issued tonight:

"The organized propaganda directed against the Postmaster General is thoroughly understood by him. He was advised last year that it would be inaugurated before the convening of this Congress. It does not have for its real purpose any desire for improvement in the postal or wire service, but is intended to aid in accomplishing a reduction of the rates of postage on second-class mail (newspapers and magazines). A virulent attack founded upon falsehood was made on the Postmaster General by the advertising manager of the New York World, the principal newspaper engaged in this intrigue, at the time the increase of those postage rates was pending before the ways and means committee. The increased rates were bitterly opposed. All opposition was brushed aside and an increase of the rates was made by the Congress.

"The repeal of this law is what is now really desired by those attacking the Postmaster General. It is believed by some of those affected that this cannot be brought about unless Burler'son is gotten rid of." The principal lobbyist employed by this selfish combination, which is reputed to have raised many thousands of dollars to be used for accomplishing the repeal of this law, in circular letters, after telling of the number of Democratic representatives committed to the repeal of the law and how it was hoped Republican members could be used, urged certain publishers not to confine their attack to the same law (the increased postage rates), but to broaden their scope for criticism. Thus the sinister purpose is disclosed.

Notice Given Year Ago.

"In fact, as stated, notice was given the Postmaster General more than a year ago what could be expected if there was not acquiescence on his part on the suspension or repeal of this law. At that time a member of the committee representing those contending for the repeal urged the Postmaster General to acquiesce therein and in the course of conversation bluntly informed me 'we have made and unmade many congressmen. We ruined Postmaster General Hitchcock and destroyed Mr. Taft. We realize that without your aid we may not be able to secure relief now but we will see what can be done with the next Congress.' Later a well known publisher called on the Postmaster General and also urged that he recommend the suspension or repeal of this law, saying to him 'if you will aid or acquiesce in the repeal of this law, we will make you the most popular man in the Wilson cabinet, but if you do not I fear they will ruin you.'

Dr. Burler'son Denounced by Secretary of Postal declares that Postmaster General Has Established System of Espionage

New York, April 23.—Distribution of "Postal Telegraph," the public organ of the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company to employees of the company through regular channels, has been ordered suspended by Postmaster General Burler'son, according to a statement issued by William J. Deegan, secretary of the Mckay companies.

Mr. Deegan added that "distribution to the public of literature" which in any way reflects on the Burler'son's control" also had been ordered suspended and that an employe who expressed an opinion against the present control "must give a promise to keep his mouth shut or face instant dismissal."

In addition to the orders against distribution of any literature attacking the postoffice office regime Mr. Deegan declared that "a system of postoffice espionage has been instituted on our lines which would do credit to the Russian secret service."

"Employees," he declared, "are being lectured by Burler'son's representatives that they must not criticize any act of Burler'son or in any way express their opinion of Burler'son's control. Any one expressing such opinions is reported to the postoffice department by Burler'son's spies. By means these threats an organized reign of terror has been instiprinted and distributed for educational but solely for commercial purposes. Even under the zone law after the maximum rates have been reached there will still be an annual loss of more than $50,000,000 to be made up by the general public. This makes clear the exact interest the owners of certain newspapers and magazines have in the effort now on foot to discredit the Postmaster General.

"I do not object to criticism having behind it an honest purpose. On the contrary it is welcomed; but it is regretted that many conscientious publishers who desire to be fair are frequently unwittingly misled by those willing to resort to base means for the accomplishment of sinister purposes."
