When Tombstone was at the height of its fame years ago, Arizona was a great silver-producing State. Copper was discovered and silver mining slumped. Last year, according to the United States Geological Survey, Arizona produced $192,000,000 worth of copper.

With the a rmistice, conditions changed overnight. Copper was no longer needed for war purposes. It is estimated that one billion pounds of copper, more than a third of which was mined in Arizona, is now awaiting sale.

With the copper market stagnant, demands for the white metal are pouring in from all quarters of the globe, and many mines are replacing their copper handling equipment with plans to turn out silver.

Changes in life sometimes are so serious as to almost be classed as tragedies. Old friends, time tried and time tested are life's best assets.
