

FARMERS' WANTS ARE MADE KNOWN

Turner's School Men Want Tobacco and Cotton Markets and Packing Plant

TURNER SAYS THEY'LL BE GLAD TO HELP CITY

PLEASE SEND ACCEPTANCES. The board of directors is requesting that all who expect to attend the "Know-Your-Neighbor" dinner...

What the farmers of Wake county want and need most of their business neighbors, the progressive men of Raleigh, was carefully pointed out and emphasized by the farmers themselves at Turner's school house last evening...

Some Had Tried. And alone voice or two admitted that they had tried it but were sorry that they had done so.

Why can't Raleigh provide us a market for our tobacco? We naturally should come to Raleigh to dispose of our tobacco—but is it worth while? You know whether it is or not.

What chance have we to sell our pork in Raleigh? We know by experience. Not so long ago a car load of hogs was sold from this section in Smithfield...

You business men of Raleigh, in your plans for the organization of the Chamber of Commerce want to meet us as neighbors. Why we want to be neighborly with you and we want to trade in Raleigh.

Secretary M. R. Beaman, of the Chamber, briefly explained the purpose of the visit in connection with the Chamber's campaign to develop a better business and social relationship between the business men of the city and the farms.

proposed rebuilding plans of the Chamber of Commerce, he pointed out, provide for the establishment of a department which will devote itself to the instruction of agriculture in order that production may be increased.

Following Mr. Beaman, C. C. Kirkpatrick enlarged upon the plans and demonstrated by the use of charts just how that production can be increased; how the fields and the forests of North Carolina generally and Wake county particularly can develop the productive wealth of the county and the State and by this means build the cities of the Tar Heel State.

Some of the representative farmers who attended were: T. H. Turner, J. E. Britt, Z. D. Britt, James Middleton, Hubert Britt, Carlye Britt, S. B. Sauls, L. P. Rahn, G. W. Williams, J. M. Stephens, S. E. Sauls, Hubert Sauls, E. C. Jones, Leon Middleton, R. H. McAdams, E. A. Johnson, W. E. McCullers, H. H. Carroll, Vernon Brandy, Eugene Britt, Miss Mary Sauls, Mrs. Ralph Britt and Mrs. Thomas Sauls.

Just before adjournment announcement was made of the Saturday afternoon meeting at Garner which will be followed by a baseball game. The visits scheduled for tonight include Zebulon and Wendell.

Cary Has Meeting Too. In an enthusiastic meeting presided over by Mayor E. P. Bashaw, Cary citizens numbering about 350 strongly endorsed the "Know-Your-Neighbor" campaign now being put on by the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce.

In outlining the object of the meeting Mr. Kilgore told of the benefits of community effort and the value of organization. The Raleigh Chamber of Commerce, he stated, has now caught the vision of a bigger better city and a bigger better county and has lost the old selfish idea that a man or institution must not render service.

Benefits in Cary. Mr. Kilgore was followed by Prof. M. B. Dry, principal of the Cary Farm Life school, who spoke of the benefits accruing to Cary because of the close proximity to Raleigh. He called attention to the good done Cary by the Development Club and strongly endorsed the present movement by the Raleigh body.

Short talks were then made by Mr. Roy Thomas, State College; Rev. V. A. Royal, of Cary; Mr. F. H. Jeter, of Raleigh; Mr. C. C. Jordan, of Cary; Mr. J. S. Howard, of Cary; and Mr. B. L. Crocker, of the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce.

Before adjournment the following endorsement offered by Prof. Dry was unanimously adopted: "That we favor the program of the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce as outlined tonight that we go on record as supporting any action taken in this campaign."

It is hard for those of us who are well and happy to realize that in the pretty city of Raleigh there are many people who are shut in from the sunlight and only enjoy the flowers which are plucked and brought in to them. A few weeks ago a friend of mine said to me: "If people knew how much happiness an hour of their time a week could bring to six of the women in the prison, or the epileptic colony, at Dix Hill, or among the quieter women of the insane hospital, I don't believe we could furnish them with appointments, there would be so many applicants."

Here Wednesday night of this week Miss Sue Kyle Southwick, of the St. Mary faculty, and an accomplished musician, has been asked to play and Mr. A. E. Bowen, Purser of the State College, will show his skill as a magician. Mr. Bowen is no amateur at slight of hand tricks, and a good hour's amusement is promised for those attending.
