Love, we have dipped Life's humble bread Into the stars' flame-bubbling springs; We've knelt before the Moon's white face, While round us whirled Night's purple wings.

Love, we have trod the floors of Morn, And watched Dawn's roiling galleons die; The sunset's panoramic hills— Love, we have known these, you and I.

Upon the battlements of Time We stood and heard Life's thunders roar; A million ticking years that swelled To crashing notes of millions more.

Our hearts have germinated sweet To beauty through each golden hour; But now the bloom-time days are past The stalk is fading with the flower.

And we shall seek earth's simple things: A roof-tree small, a green-thatched fire— Come, Love, and lay your cherished dreams Beneath the touch of my desire.

We could not climb the Infinite, The jagged heights were steep and long; For us child-wistfulness and sleep— Old twilight memories and song.

Love, is it here that we shall build, Down homelike paths, grown gently wise? Perhaps our eyes, made glad of earth, Shall find the Key to Paradise. —J. CORSON MILLER.

Whose Word is Better Than Your Druggist's?

Physicians, Dentists and Nurses Rely on Him—Isn't That Sufficient Reason for Public Confidence?

There are many good reasons for the confidence the public repose in their druggist. First, he is educated to know by four years of College and Practical training. Second, ethical physicians everywhere rely implicitly on his skill—they trust him. This faith, of course, originates and is maintained by the professional service rendered by the druggist in filling prescriptions. Everyone admits this confidence when offering a prescription to a druggist.

Very few men can be honest in one department of their business, and dishonest in the other. Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde exist very little in real life. If you trust your druggist to fill your prescription, therefore, in all fairness, you must accept his word against the word of unknown and far distant manufacturers.

To recommend an article, the druggist must of course, know what it contains and how it is made, and this was one reason for the formation of a co-operative national association of druggists and physicians who prepare a complete line of household remedies and toilet goods. This association is the American Druggists' Syndicate, popularly called A. D. S., which boasts a membership of 28,000 druggists and physicians, the largest of its kind in the world. For 10 years these professional men met annually for conference in order to obtain the best formulas for their products that the combined skill and experience of its members could produce. All these articles are non-secret, strictly ethical. The ingredients in all A. D. S. preparations conform to the standard advocated by the government, and cannot be excelled in quality. As the association is strictly co-operative, its merchandise is also sold at the very lowest prices possible for the quality.

In Raleigh there are nine druggists who will tell you that A. D. S. Household Remedies, like Milk of Magnesia, Aspirin, Digestive Tablets, Peridol, Tooth Paste, etc., are the best that they can find in all markets. These nine druggists stand squarely behind every A. D. S. product with an unqualified guarantee and a hearty endorsement. Such a recommendation is the greatest that can obtain, based on the scientific knowledge of tens of thousands of experts and fulfilled by a man you know well and must trust implicitly—your druggist.

Whenever you need a household remedy or toilet article, ask an A. D. S. Druggist to recommend one to you. All A. D. S. Druggists identify themselves with prominent window or counter displays. Ask one about A. D. S. products. If you would trust him to fill your prescription, it's only fair to take his word about the merchandise he sells. —Adv.
