

VALUE OF LIME IN AGRICULTURE

Pulverized Limestone Should Be Stored and Easily Accessible to Farmers

By W. M. GOODMAN.

In a bulletin issued by the Michigan Agricultural College on lime and its uses and functions in soils, the statement is made that "Lime was used more than three thousand years ago in parts of Europe to improve soils."

Lime was used on farms of the South more than fifty years ago, and with excellent results, but only in recent years has its value in soil and crop improvement work become generally known.

Some Illustrations. We find in Georgia, the Carolinas and other Southern States, the fields of alfalfa, clover and the grasses where a few years ago there were galled and gullied hillsides, or sandy soils impoverished by clean cultivation, and upon inquiry, learn that in every case change was brought about through the use of agricultural limestone which made legume raising possible.

The use of agricultural limestone for the improvement of soils and crops would be more general if arrangements were made for storing this material in bins or warehouses at convenient points.

The farmer who can buy and handle pulverized limestone, as shipped by car loads, cannot always get the material when needed, on account of car shortage, or other difficulties which delay shipments, while others are deterred from supplying the lime needs of their soils because of their inability to use large quantities at one time.

Examples Set by Other States. The building of limestone bins at railway stations has solved the problem in some sections of Illinois, Ohio and Virginia. The plan followed in these states enables the farmer, coming to town with a wagon or truck load of produce, to haul a load of limestone back to his farm, instead of returning with an empty vehicle, and thus supply his needs at little expense in time and labor.

Important to Peanut Growers. Just now the need for having limestone available for use on Southern farms is rendered more urgent for the reason that lime is necessary in growing peanuts, the most valuable crop now produced in boll weevil sections of the cotton belt.

Two tires in the holder in front of the damaged car were stolen while the automobile lay in the road Saturday night.

The superintendent explained that Simpkins was quite frank on applying for admission and informed the institution's authorities that he was an escapee from a Western hospital and had been at large for nearly two years. He voluntarily asked for treatment and was free to go at any time, as he had shown no evidence of violence. Saturday Dr. Brown received a letter from Simpkins, dated at Richmond, Va. In it he discussed religious matters in a disjointed manner. Simpkins has a wife and three children in England. He is 42 years old.

Whitney Says Charters Will Be Revoked Today. Chicago, Ill., April 18.—While the General Managers' Association announced tonight indications were that the insurgent strike of railroad employes in the Chicago terminal district virtually had lost its effectiveness, A. F. Whitney, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, said brotherhood officers would meet tomorrow to consider revoking charters of locals whose members refused to return to work last night. Mr. Whitney said he had received reports that groups of strikers on several railroads returned to work today.

"The strike absolutely is broken," he said. "There is no question about that. Our plans are now directed toward protecting our contracts with the railroads."

Strike leaders maintained tonight that their ranks were unbroken. A meeting of heads of the outlaw union from all parts of the country has been called for tomorrow in Chicago by John Grunau. Plans for continuing the strike would be considered, Grunau said.

DR. CLAYTON CALLS FOR CONFERENCE

Nine North Carolinians Invited To Attend National Citizens' Meeting

The News and Observer Bureau, 603 District National Bank Bldg., (By Special Leased Wire.)

Washington, D. C., April 18.—Nine North Carolinians have been invited to the National Citizens' Conference on Education called by the Commissioner of Education, P. P. Claxton, in Washington on May 19, 20 and 21. They are: Dr. Luther Little, Charlotte; Dr. L. E. M. Freeman, Meredith College; J. G. Broomour, Meredith College; Miss Catherine Allen, Meredith College; and Miss Mary Shannon Smith, 521 East Jones street; Dr. T. W. Kelley, Raleigh; Archibald Johnson, Thomasville; Dr. J. B. Weatherston, Winston-Salem; and J. C. Hutto, of The Charlotte News.

The national conference of representative citizens has been called by the United States Commissioner of Education "to consider the pressing problem of education from the standpoint of statesmanship and the public welfare Secretary of the Interior John Barton Payne has sent a special invitation to the Governor of every State to head the delegation from his State at the conference.

In his invitation to the State superintendent, Commissioner Claxton points to the "emergency in education in the United States arising out of the present and prospective shortage of teachers, the necessity for large increases in funds for the support of schools of all kinds and grades, and the need for readjusting programs of education to the requirements of the new era." He says: "The emergency in education in the United States arising out of the present and prospective shortage of teachers, the necessity for large increases in funds for the support of schools of all kinds and grades, and the need for readjusting programs of education to the requirements of the new era, is, believe, so great as to justify the calling of a national conference of representative citizens to consider the pressing problems of education from the standpoint of statesmanship and the public welfare."

"It is very desirable that each State be represented by its chief executive, its chief school officer and a large number of its more prominent and influential citizens—men and women of affairs, business men, farmers, representatives of labor, physicians, lawyers, editors and other publicists, club women and educators."

The Secretary of the Interior, with whose approval I am calling this conference, is inviting the Governor of your State to attend the conference himself and to appoint as delegates a dozen or more men and women of the character described.

"Will you not urge the Governor to accept this invitation, assist him in selecting a good large list of delegates, and be sure to come yourself? Will you not also send me at once the names of any persons in your State who should be invited in addition to the delegates appointed by the Governor?"

GRANTHAM RETIRES AND JAS. P. COOK ANNOUNCES

Otherwise Week End Along Political Potomac Was Uneventful

But for the announcement that George K. Grantham, of Dunn, had withdrawn his name as a contender for the Democratic nomination for State treasurer, and James P. Cook, of Concord, had announced himself as a candidate for State auditor, activities were relatively quiet along the political Potomac over the week-end. There was some speculation here and there, but little else.

Mr. Cook makes the fourth bidder for the job recently laid aside by State Auditor Wood, the others being Major Baxter Durham, A. D. McDonald and W. T. Woodley. Mr. Cook is well known all over the State. He served as chairman of the Senate finance committee in the 1913 Legislature, and has been superintendent of the Stonewall Jackson Training School for a number of years.

Mr. Grantham is a well known druggist of Dunn, and finds that he has too much private business to allow him to seek the nomination for treasurer. He had not definitely announced himself by going so far as to pay the entrance fee of $20 to the Board of Elections, but had indicated that he was in the running. His retirement leaves the field to Treasurer Lacy and R. F. Renfrow.
